OFFICERS OPEN PROBE IN DEATH MUNCIE MAN, 53

Contractor's Body Found in Cornfield; Suicide Is Suspected.

MUNCIE, Nov. 22.—Coroner O. M. Deardoff and police today began an investigation into the disappearance Aug. 16 of Page Cunningham, 53-year-old Muncie contractor, whose body was found yesterday in a cornfield two miles east of the city.

The mutilated body was identified by the teeth and hat near it. The coroner said death apparently had been caused by a head bullet wound.

No gun was found near the body, but Coroner Deardoff said he and the police believe Mr. Cunningham took his own life. Police said that the keeper of a roominghouse where he lived notified police of his disappearance in August and said then she believed he might have taken his life.

Police said Mr. Cunningham lived alone and that they believed he had been divorced. They said he had left his watch, Masonic ring and other valuables in his room when he disappeared.

Coroner Deardoff said he would hold his inquest today and would interview Mr. Cunningham's former business associates in an effort to establish a motive. The body was found by hunters.

CUMMINGS PRAISED FOR COURT REFORMS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (U. P.).—Solicitor-General Robert H. Jackson paid tribute last night to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, who is retiring in January, for achieving reforms in Federal Court procedure.

Speaking over a national radio hookup, Jackson, regarded as a leading candidate to succeed Cummings, said that legal procedure was a mass of red tape before Cummings launched his program to simplify rules.

He warned that the trend toward high court fees "is just the same as selling justice. The seeker after justice still finds too great burden of expenses, cost of advice as to his rights, cost of assembling and producing proof to convince the court of his claims, and the cost of advocacy," he said. "To hold justice at a high price is the same as selling justice."
