

Post Holiday Journeys Continue to Highlight Local Society Activities

Mrs. Douglas Pollock Johnson and Daughter Expected Today from Norfolk; Travel Film Enjoyed at Propylaeum.

By VIRGINIA MOORHEAD MANNON

Perhaps it's just an excuse to pack shiny new luggage—this epidemic of postholiday visiting. Maybe it's a desire to see relatives and old friends. Anyway, society is dispelling its January apathy by shuttling in and out of town.

Mrs. Douglas Pollock Johnson and her daughter Diane, are to arrive from Norfolk, Va., today to spend several months with Mrs. Johnson's mother, Mrs. Stanley M. Timberlake, at the Marrot Hotel. Mrs. Walker S. Harban returned to Washington yesterday after a visit with her sister, Mrs. William H. Remy, and Mr. Remy. Mrs. Harban's father, Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, who was here for the holidays, returned earlier to Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Brooks entertained a few friends Saturday evening for their week-end guests, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Champney Jr. of Cleveland, who left today for Texas and Mexico. Mrs. John H. Roberts of Scarsdale, N. Y., has been visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Roberts Jr. Col. and Mrs. Sam I. McCants are back from a visit in Evansville.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fairbanks have left for Pasadena, Cal. Their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fairbanks Jr., are at Miami Beach, Fla., for the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. White Jr. have returned to Los Angeles after spending the holidays with Mrs. White's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Denny, and Mr. White's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. White.

Mrs. Bain Back From Florida

Mrs. Roy Bain and her daughter, Marjorie, returned yesterday after several weeks' stay at Miami Beach. Also home from a two-week trip to Miami are Dr. A. F. Weyerbacher and his sister, Miss Gertrude Weyerbacher. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilmeth have been spending a few weeks at Miami Beach.

Mrs. Henry Eitel and Mrs. Harry G. Murphy will entertain a number of friends at a buffet supper and card party Wednesday evening at Woodstock Club. Mrs. Eitel is to leave Saturday for an extended stay in New York.

With several hundred feet of excellent colored movies, Philip Brown made "The Forgotten Peninsula," which extends from Wilmington, Del., to Cape Charles, something to be remembered by the Propylaeum audience which heard his lecture last night following the monthly Sunday evening buffet supper.

The Rose Polytechnic Institute athletic director who stepped out of character to score as a speaker was introduced by his mother, Mrs. Demarchus C. Brown.

His memories of De-Mar-Va began with the Wilmington Tercenary celebration last summer in honor of the Swedish settlers which the rain caused to "wash out as completely as the original colony."

Eastern Shore Rich in Tradition

Maryland's eastern shore "which is the greatest section of the country for water sports" is steeped in tradition, he said. It boasts its own Paul Revere in the person of Trench Tillman who rode to Philadelphia, at George Washington's request, to bear the glad news that Cornwallis had surrendered. "Melfield," the ancestral Tillman home, stands just as it was built 200 years ago, Mr. Brown said.

"The Maryland shore is famous also for its mock terrapin (muskrat to you), its lack of industry, its friendly inhabitants and its box-wood shrubs which provide an endless source of revenue," he added.

The two Virginia counties of the peninsula "have nothing but agriculture and a peculiar type of architecture," Mr. Brown said. "The substantial citizens of the 'quaint town of Accomac' live in dwellings described as 'big house, little house, colonnade and kitchen'—rambling structures which begin with two stories, diminish to a story and a half and thereafter sink to a less than one story pantry before rising to a single story kitchen. Residents, a grade lower in the social scale, live in 'big house, little house, an arch and a tectural innovation which apparently presented fewer building problems to early American contractors," Mr. Brown declared.

Other places of historical interest along the peninsula he described included old St. Michaels (attacked by the British Navy in 1812); the house on Sassafras River where Kitty Knight, great and good friend of George Washington, lived, and Pocomoke City at the mouth of Pocomoke River, "where the first naval battle in the U. S. was fought by white men."

Butler Campus Groups Name Major Dance Committees

Committees for three annual dances of Butler University campus organizations were named today.

Plans for the "Riters' Roundup," yearly dance of Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary and professional journalism society, are being made under direction of Miss Kathryn Smith, president.
