

F. D. R. TO PUSH HOOSIER IN '40, METSKER FEELS

Publisher Asks Democrats
Support 'Man of Hour'
For Presidency.

Times Special
PLYMOUTH, Ind., Aug. 1.—Clay W. Mettsker, Indiana publisher and Democratic leader, last night called upon an assemblage of Marshall County party members to support Paul V. McNutt as Democratic nominee for President.

Others who spoke were Alvin Johnson, former Indiana Young Democrat Clubs president; Attorney William Osborn, Culver, Ind.; Kenneth Gorrell, Breman; District Chairman George F. Stevens, and Marshall County Chairman George Proysman.

Lauds Roosevelt Ideas

Mr. Mettsker said he was "confident" that President Roosevelt "will choose retirement when his term as President of the United States is ended."

"However," he added, "I am forcefully conscious that he will determinedly command that the great principles for which he has stood shall continue to ring in the hearts of a populace that believes in fairness one to the other as they follow the trail to a destiny of a grander civilization."

"I believe that the President can not at this time, and possibly not until the convention assembles, declare himself against a third term without crippling his great influence in efforts to assure a continuance of his program in behalf of the multitude whose appeals are unheard in committee rooms."

Feels McNutt Man of Hour.

"He must remain silent, but if a succeeding leader is assured who will carry on as he has carried on, I am confident that he will bestow his blessings at the psychological moment. And in my humble judgment Indiana's choice will be his choice.

"If you think that Ex-Governor Paul V. McNutt is the man of the hour to take up the cudgel where a great President has laid it down, arise to your feet and cheer as you are impressed."

The medal was awarded by the National Society, Sons of the American Revolution, and presentation was made by Newton H. Kestler of Franklin, Ind. Mr. Phillips today completed his fourth year at the camp and was recommended for a commission in the Officers Reserve Corps. He is a graduate of the Anderson Senior High School. Nude Deal Too Tough, 2 Quit Fair

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 (U. P.)—Two World's Fair nudes announced today that they were putting on their clothes and quitting their jobs.

Rosita Royce, who wears seven doves while doing her dance, said the Crystal Palace management was unfair to the doves and chorus girls. Della Carroll, who a couple of years ago linked her name romantically with Clark Gable only to have Mr. Gable unromantically deny it, denounced the Fair's "stupid nudity ban and unfair censorship of dance costumes."

Miss Royce said her doves had been impaired, as well as her own, by the management's requirement that she do her dance 10 times daily and 12 times on Saturdays.

Another reason, Miss Royce said, was "to protest at treatment of chorus girls in the show."

Miss Carroll declared that the Fair's nudity ban, which has been relaxed somewhat recently, still is so strict as to "make proper presentation of aesthetic performances impossible."

AUBURN BOY TELLS OF KIDNAP ESCAPE

AUBURN, Ind., Aug. 1 (U. P.)—Police today were attempting to check details of the story told by 10-year-old Richard Groves, who told authorities he had been kidnapped by an unidentified man early yesterday.

According to Sheriff Artus Coyle, young Groves said he was standing in front of his father's home yesterday when a man stopped a car and forced him to climb in. The boy said they drove to a point south of Garrett, Ind., when the stranger left the car but ordered him to stay in it.

Instead, he said, he ran and hid in the weeds along the road, finally making his way to the home of Freeman Kelham.

Young Groves traveled alone from Hawaii here two months ago to make his home with his father. His mother is Mrs. Isabelle Nichols of Toledo, O.

Ohio Grand Jury Urges School Course in Morals

CLEVELAND, Aug. 1 (U. P.)—A question in child sociology was raised today by a recommendation of the Cuyahoga Grand Jury that courses in morals be given pupils of the eighth and ninth grades.

The Grand Jury made the recommendation to Common Pleas Judge Joy Seth Hurd, father of 14 children, at the end of its term yesterday. Most of the jurors were fathers and mothers, drafted into a brief career of public service, who had been appalled by the youth of most lawbreakers they investigated.

The course would entail discussion of various kinds of crime, the penalties, and visits to jails and criminal courts.

Judge Hurd said of the recommendation: "It might be effective to teach these young people what is right and what is wrong; what conformity and co-operation with society mean and the manner in which it can be accomplished; what non-social activities are and their consequence. Such a class could teach morals instead as it would not teach religion and would stop short of that, for we cannot teach religion in our public schools."

A survey of authoritative opinion elsewhere produced conflicting arguments.

Emphasizes Economics

Chicago, Miss Charlotte Carr, head of Hull House, said: "I think we need more emphasis on the economic situation which breeds youthful lawbreakers. . . . Most of the young criminals come from the slums and families unable to get economic relief."

Director James V. Bennett of the Federal Prison system at Washington thought the grand jury's idea was "great," but did not believe such a course could cause more harm than good."

Further support for the idea came from Warden W. W. Lawes of Sing Sing Prison:

"It is better," he said, "for children to receive sex advice from competent authorities in a classroom than from other children behind a barn." He said, however, that skilled instructors would be necessary because "crack-pots at the head of such a course could cause more harm than good."
