JANE JORDAN

A YOUNG girl who wishes to conceal her identity writes that she has acquired a bad reputation which is undeserved. Neighbors have circulated yarns and tales about her which are not true. She has not worried about it until recently when she fell in love with a young man whom she had long admired but had not been able to attract until the last few weeks. Although he calls on her he does not take her out where he can be seen in her company.

The worst of it is that his mother has heard the gossip and objects to her son's calling upon the young lady. She even has gone so far as to curse the girl in the boy's presence. The girl is now in a predicament, afraid to go with other boys for fear the one she wants will lose faith in her, yet held down at home by her friend's hesitance to take her out in public. She has confessed her love.

Everyone has to pay a heavy price for acquiring a bad reputation. While I do not doubt the young lady's word that she is not as bad as she is reported to be, I do think she has been indiscreet on occasions when it would have paid her well to have avoided the appearance of evil. In the future she will have to be more careful than the average girl, and never under any circumstances behave in a way that invites criticism.

The fact that the young man's mother is against her and has such a crude way of showing it may improve her status with the young man and increase his desire to protect her from wagging tongues. It is seldom that a boy chooses a girl whom his mother admires. And her opposition only makes the choice more exciting. This mother unwittingly is acting in the best interests of the girl whom she seeks to annihilate.

I do not think the girl should shut herself away from all other contacts or so obviously reveal her love and anxiety to the young man. She should keep her other friends and go out with them when the opportunity offers, provided she always guards her dignity in the most straight-laced manner.

She should correct her bad reputation for her own sake, regardless of whether the young man sticks to her or flees from her. Otherwise, she only will find herself in a similar predicament in the future. In a small community it takes a long while to live down a poor reputation, but it can be done.

Tells About
Amsterdam
Conference

Rose Wright, Recently
Returned, Describes Dramatic Incident.

"Here we are, God, 73 nations come together, worshipping, but tomorrow we separate. Forgive us God! Forgive us because we are children who have not learned Thy way completely."

These words spoken unexpectedly after the reading of a printed prayer at the first World Conference of Christian Youth at Amsterdam were a "dramatic, startling though entirely unexplained" episode of the conference, according to Miss Rose Wright of Indianapolis.

Miss Wright, young people's work director in the missionary education department of the Disciples of Christ, returned from Europe Wednesday. She reports that about 1500 young people, representing every race, 22 different religious bodies and more than three times that many countries were present at the conference.

American Offers Prayer

The dramatic little prayer was offered by Dean Benjamin Mays of the Howard School of Religion, Washington, D. C. He referred to the fact that church doctrine would not permit the young people at the conference to receive the Holy Communion in a body but in separate groups according to their respective denominations. The four communion services which covered the varied beliefs were the Orthodox Eucharist and those arranged according to the Anglican, Lutheran and Dutch Reformed procedure.

The various denominations and nationalities were able to get together in study and discussion groups, Miss Wright said. In them they became acquainted with each other's viewpoints, customs, culture and religious practices. Groups were kept small enough to permit free exchange of opinion.

Among the young people in the World of Nations group to which Miss Wright was assigned was a particularly challenging Chinese, she said. He brought fellow delegates down to facts during discussions of war and peace by asking "What would you do if an enemy country invaded your own?"

Thus he made clear the difficulty of resisting evil with good when faced with the actual problem, and sent his brothers away from the conference with resolution to bring peace, she said.

Hold Different Services

Types of worship services used by the various nations and churches when held caused more favorable comment than any other program item, Miss Wright recalls.

The conference was a "great and unforgettable" spiritual experience for all who attended, Miss Wright said. Differences were brought out for the sake of fostering an understanding which will go farther toward increasing international friendship and Christian union than can be estimated, she continued.

Other delegates from Indianapolis in addition to Miss Wright were Misses Marion Anderson and Eleanor Young and those from the state, Arthur Pittenger, Kokomo; Kane Co. Wagoner, Ellettsburg; Miller and Emmett Siegel, Richmond; Albert and Allen Rosencranz, Evansville, and Lester Young, North Manchester.

Dr. Wilson foresees the need for an increase in the Pension Fund gift money. Accordingly during the coming two years Indianapolis Disciples will be asked to give a total of $370,000.

Gift money, Dr. Wilson explains, is used for those already on ministerial relief before the present pension plan was put into operation about eight years ago and others needing aid who have not built up pensions through dues. Pension plan reserves may not be diverted for this use.

There is now available about 75,000 for such gifts while the year's gift liabilities amount to $107,000. Dr. Wilson sees a deep significance in the plan.

Dr. Goebel To Give Talk Woman's Missionary Unit To Discuss Merger.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Midwest Synod of the former Lutheran Church in the United States will meet in conjunction with the Midwest Synod in the Immanuel Evangelical and Reformed Church Sept. 11 to 13.

The Woman's Society will be in charge of the Midwest Synod program Tuesday evening when Dr. L. O. Goebel of Chicago, president of the General Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, will deliver the sermon.

Among the speakers announced for the women's missionary sessions is Miss Marie Sauerwine of Plymouth, Ind., who will go as a missionary to India. Others are Mrs. F. W. Leich of Shelby, O., president of the Woman's Missionary Society of the General Synod; Miss Ruth Heinmiller of Cleveland, O., secretary of the Girls' Missionary Guild of the General Synod; and Miss Sara Jo Schilling, also of Cleveland, literature secretary of the guild.

Then the pastor and his wife will resume their motor trip home.

Seek to 'Save' Pastors From Social Security

In the face of heated arguments in church circles as to whether ministers should be included under terms of the Social Security Act, the Disciples of Christ pension fund here today undertook a fund drive.

Recent church conferences over the nation have witnessed exception gone on record as opposing participation in Federal old-age security plans. These have said that Federal pension plans for churches would constitute an invasion by the state into church affairs contrary to American tradition and ideals.

The Disciples of Christ fund has 1594 beneficiaries over the nation. A minister in active service pays 2 1/2 per cent of his annual salary into the fund; his church pays an amount equal to 8 per cent of his salary into the fund.

Upon his retirement he receives from the fund office in Indianapolis a monthly check the size of which is determined by his total payments to the fund. The average monthly check is $11 and the largest is $21.

The fund's checks are mailed from Indianapolis to retired ministers, former missionaries or pensioned college professors, their widows and orphan children in all parts of the world where the Disciples Church carries on its work.

Members of the Pension Fund staff include Dr. F. E. Smith, executive secretary; Dr. A. E. Cory, advisory director; and Drs. Paul Preston and Bert Wilson, general representatives. Samuel Ashby of Indianapolis is board president and O. H. Griest, treasurer.

George A. Huggins serves as secretary. Assistants to the treasurer are G. F. Prewitt and Harmon Pritchard.

Dr. Wilson foresees the need for an increase in the Pension Fund gift money. Accordingly during the coming two years Indianapolis Disciples will be asked to give a total of $370,000.

Gift money, Dr. Wilson explains, is used for those already on ministerial relief before the present pension plan was put into operation about eight years ago and others needing aid who have not built up pensions through dues. Pension plan reserves may not be diverted for this use.

There is now available about 75,000 for such gifts while the year's gift liabilities amount to $107,000. Dr. Wilson sees a deep significance in the plan.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Text: Isaiah 6:1-13
By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

IN the simple, direct words of our lesson, though the narrative is adorned with symbolism and vision, we have the story of the call of a great prophet to his life work.

Perhaps it would be found that the call of Isaiah came in the form of a vision, either dreaming or waking. Isaiah's vision evidently came in the form of a dream. It was in the year that King Uzziah died, after his long and prosperous reign of 52 years, that Isaiah saw the Lord sitting upon a throne "high and lifted up." The figure is not very clear, for Isaiah speaks of the seraphim which stood above the Lord. We do not know what sort of beings these six-winged figures were. This is the only place in the Bible where the word occurs.

While we may not understand the details of the vision, its full effect is very plain. The seraphim cried out another, "Holy, holy, holy, is Jehovah of hosts: the whole earth is full of his glory." It was this impression of holiness that was dominant in the mind of Isaiah, and that remained with him to dominate his life after the vision had disappeared.

WHAT is holiness? It consists in relationship with its essence, the idea of consecration and devotion. When Moses was ordered to lead them from the materialism of their sensual living back to the realities of spiritual life and health.

It is at times when the prophet is most forgotten or neglected that he is most needed. Isaiah stands as the type of the true spiritual reformer leading a wayward nation back to the realities upon which its very life depends.
