JANE JORDAN—
DEAR JANE JORDAN—I am a girl 22 years old. I have been engaged to marry for over a year but due to conditions at home I have failed to carry out my plan. I have three brothers who are married. I have two younger sisters at home. Both my mother and my father are unable to work or make a living and this is left for the older of my two sisters and I to do, which we have been doing for the last four years.

Although my three married brothers are financially able to help out at home they fail to do so. Do you consider it any more my place to accept family responsibilities than they, even though they are married? If they only would help out a little each week, I could do the same and still be married.

I am afraid that if I wait much longer it will be too late. Won't you advise me what to do? UNDECEID.

Answer: The only thing you can do is to set the date for your wedding and tell your brothers when it is to be. State exactly what you will be able to do for your parents after your marriage and simply take it for granted that they will make up the deficit.

No fair-minded person would ask you to renounce marriage for the sake of your parents. I cannot believe that your brothers will do so. They may complain but they surely will come across when the necessity arises. Try not to get into a quarrel with them. Just go ahead with your plans and let them fall into line.

No doubt the rest of the family will try to make you feel guilty for leaving your parents, but remember that it is only because they are married that they are able to do so. If you are married you can turn the guilt back on them where it belongs. You may be somewhat unpopular with them for a season, but you'll have to put up with it or be a spinster. Which do you prefer?

DEAR JANE JORDAN—I went with a boy for about five months and liked him very much. He seemed to care for me. Then I started working nights and we couldn't see each other so often. When we started dating regularly again he seemed different but I don't know how. He treated me the same as ever, but I knew something was wrong.

In the past three weeks, dates have been few and far between. In the meantime I have met another boy who just about swept me off my feet, but I can't get the other boy out of my mind. Can you help me, please? JANE JORDAN.

Answer: Give yourself time. The sting to your pride will last longer than your love, but it, too, will disappear as other interests crowd it out.

Put your problems in a letter to Jane Jordan, who will answer your questions in this column daily.

Jews Pray For Peace

Year 5700 to Be Greeted On Wednesday.

At midnight tonight there will be prayers of penitence (selichos) services in preparation for the Jewish New Year, or Rosh Hashanah, at Beth-el-Ezede Temple.

The dawn of the year, 5700, according to the Hebrew calendar, will be celebrated for one day in reformed temples and for two by the orthodox, beginning at sundown Wednesday.

"We shall add our voices to others in the world praying for peace and happiness of mankind," Rabbi Elias Charry of Beth-el-Ezede Temple promises for the selichos services. "Midnight is chosen as the hour because mankind are free then from worldly affairs and because mystics believe the gates of Heaven are open to prayers, at that time. 'However,' he added, 'many people say their prayers at dawn for the same reasons.'"

Rabbi Charry, assisted by Cantor Myro Glass, will also conduct services Thursday morning at 7 a. m., preaching on "Faith for the Jew," and Friday on "Faith for Israel."

TO PLAN WORK

Women Join Conference; Baptists, Methodists and Reformed Synod to Meet

Two of Conferences Complete Unification of Denominations; Other to Map Plans for Evangelistic Crusade.

By EMMA RIVERS MILNER
It is significant that two women are to be included in the new Indiana Presbyterian Planning Conference to meet here for the first time Monday, the denomination's state office pointed out today.

The two women among 28 men are Mrs. Robert Simpson of Vincennes, president of the Synodical Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society and Mrs. Fred Helland of Lafayette, the society's recording secretary.

Indiana Presbyterian women have for many years carried on elaborate work for missions but until June of this year they had never served their church in an administrative capacity in any other branch. Then they became members of a synodical Christian education committee. Monday they will go a step further and take part in the planning conference which will deal with various lines.

Mrs. Simpson will speak on "Women in the Church and Their Enlarged Opportunity," during the day-time session Monday in the Sutherland Presbyterian Church, recalling the 1937 Biennial Conference for Women of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. at Buck Hill Falls, Pa., when the membership voted to widen the scope of their church activities.

At the same session Monday a year of spiritual advance in the 316 Indiana congregations will be outlined. A mass meeting for the general public is scheduled for the evening.

Dr. Henry Little of Chicago, Board of Foreign Missions secretary, will speak on "Our World Task" and Dr. William F. Klein of New York, of the Department of Evangelism of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. on "Our Evangelistic Task," at the mass meeting. Dr. James F. Riggs of the Presbyterian General Council will also be present.

The Rev. Florizel A. Pfeiderer, host pastor and conference chairman, will preside throughout the day.

Six spiritual objectives adopted by the Indiana Synod in June for local churches and ways for their attainment will be discussed Monday.

The six are: a 25 per cent increase in church attendance; six new members on confession of faith for every 100 on the roll; a 10 per cent increase in church school enrollment and 20 per cent gain in average attendance; every member enlisted for at least one activity; church and benevolent budgets fully pledged; all women's groups united in an association in the local churches.

In addition to the host pastor and men from over the state, the following from Indianapolis are members of the planning conference: Dr. Alexander E. Sharp, new synodical executive secretary who succeeded Dr. Henry B. Hostetter last week; Dr. Robert J. McDaniel, synodical director of the Christian education; Dr. Jean S. Milner, Second Presbyterian Church pastor; Dr. W. H. Kendall, Memorial United Methodist Church pastor; and the Rev. Henry E. Chace, Washington Street Church pastor.

Methodist Laymen Gain New Importance
Fears regarding mergers of churches at the first Indiana conference of the (united) Methodist laymen is past.

Most of the church unions now under way are being accomplished after long periods of preliminary discussion to adjust differences.

The Rev. Mr. Nelson pointed out that five years ago the Evangelical Synod of North America and the Reformed Church in the United States decided to unite immediately and then to iron out their differences later.

A final part of this five-year "ironing" out process will be done at next week's 19th and last synodical meeting of the Reformed churches. Hereafter Indianapolis churches of the denomination will belong to the new South Indiana Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, the name of the united communion.

Among the nationally known speakers at the meeting will be Dr. Louis W. Goebel of Chicago, president of the General Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, and Dr. Charles E. Schaeffer, the church's Board of Home Missions general secretary.

Nuns' Order Century Old
Little Sisters of Poor Will Celebrate.

A three-day program of high masses, special music, solemn benediction, receptions and a luncheon will mark the centennial of the Little Sisters of the Poor beginning tomorrow.

Indianapolis members are joining others of the order in celebrating the founding of the Little Sisters of the Poor in France 100 years ago.

All three afternoons, the Little Sisters will hold open-house at the home, 529 E. Vermont St., when visitors will be shown through the house and introduced to the elderly people who live there.

The Most Rev. Joseph R. Ritter, bishop of the Diocese of Indianapolis, will celebrate a pontifical high mass at St. Peter and Paul Cathedral at 11 a. m. tomorrow. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Raymond R. Noll will deliver the sermon and Elmer Steffen, director of the Little Sisters Cantorium in the music of the mass.

On Tuesday at 10 a. m. the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William Keefe will celebrate mass with Bishop Ritter on throne and delivering the sermon in the convent chapel. The clergy choir will sing.

After luncheon in the Little Sisters Convent, the tridium will close with benediction celebrated by Bishop Ritter and music again furnished by the Clergy Choir.
