Traders Point Hunt to Give Landowners Their Ride Today.

The Traders Point Hunt will be host at a party today at the Hunt kennels at Royalton in honor of landowners over whose fields the members ride from October through February.

Hunters' trials, open jumping and trials for hunt teams are included in the games on horseback arranged for the afternoon's entertainment. Among riders expected in the trials are Mr. and Mrs. William Wemmer, Eugene Miller, Burford Danner, Ralph Lockwood, Robert Rhoads, Miss Lucy Kaufman and Miss Anne Elder.

Entertained 1200 Last Year

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bookwalter, who have charge of the games on foot, will introduce a three-legged race and potato race at the party. Thomas M. Kaufman and Mr. Lockwood will be in charge of the four-men-on-a-horse race, musical chair, mule race and balloon breaking contest. A Kiefer Mayer will be in charge of games for women and Charles Leavenworth, Crawfordville, will be in charge of the hunt teams.

The hunt members entertained 1200 guests last year and expect an even larger attendance today. Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stokely are general chairman of the party and Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Barnes head the reception committee.

Printed Textiles to Be Displayed

An exhibit of printed textiles will open tomorrow at John Herron Art Museum with many colorful and historically interesting pieces illustrating every method of printing patterns on fabrics from earliest times to the present day. Most of the pieces are from the Museum's permanent collection. This was enriched about five years ago by the acquisition of the Eliza M. and Sarah L. Niblack collection of 3000 pieces.

Miss Eleanor Merrill of New York has loaned pieces including two large Indo-European wall hangings and some interesting prints with American patriotic topics.

Artist to Lecture Monday

Several out of town art patrons will come to Indianapolis Monday to attend the lecture by Karl S. Bolander, artist and lecturer, on "The Enrichment of Lives Through an Appreciation of Art."
