

EX-KLAN CHIEF PREFERS TRIAL TO YEAR'S WAIT

Stephenson Asks Hearing
Now Despite Chances for Parole.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Sept. 28.—A new trial for murder before a jury is preferable to waiting a year for possible parole, D. C. Stephenson, former Ku-Klux Klan grand dragon, said today in a statement issued at the Hamilton County Jail.

Stephenson, serving a life sentence for the death of Madge Oberholzer, State House stenographer, was brought here from the Indiana State Prison this week for a new trial hearing in Circuit Court Wednesday.

After a lengthy conference with his attorneys, Stephenson issued a plea for a "fair and impartial trial before a jury of my peers, a fair and complete hearing."

Confident of Success

"I am seeking this form of relief because of faith in the rectitude of my cause and because I believe in the ultimate triumph of justice," he said.

"I am still conscious of the conditions which prevailed during my trial and also which prevail to some extent now, but I am still willing to go before a jury despite the fact that I might be released from prison 12 months from now on parole."

The former grand dragon declined to indicate what type of evidence he would present at the hearing on his petition for a writ of error, explaining that it would be better to reveal that to the jury.

Denies Planning "War"

He denied that at any time, even while leading the Hoosier Klan, he intended to "wage any war" against the Catholic church, the colored race or any other religious or social group. He said he never was a candidate for public office and that he was a member of the Klan for only 11 months.

Enlarging on his claim that he was prevented from testifying in his own defense during his original trial, he charged that a Klan official told him if he testified "they would blow my head off." He said other threats were made on his attorneys and that he was forced to choose between dying at the "hands of an assassin" or being convicted of a crime he had not committed.

Stephenson's present campaign to obtain freedom, his seventh since he was convicted of slaying Miss Oberholzer in 1925, started in March when E. E. Cioe of Noblesville, chief counsel, filed a writ of error before Judge Cassius M. Gentry here.

Charges Unfair Conditions

The writ alleged that Stephenson was afraid to testify in his own defense and that the original trial was not conducted under fair conditions.

Stephenson conferred with Cioe and Alban M. Smith of La Porte, another attorney, yesterday. After the conference and before Stephenson was interviewed the attorneys expressed confidence that the former political leader would be freed.

"It is the purpose of this petition and his counsel to strip the hearing of all political implications," their statement said. "Proceeding on this basis we are confident that we shall be able to prove Stephenson was convicted because of unusual conditions surrounding the trial which defeated the orderly process of justice."

FARMER WOUNDED IN NEIGHBOR'S FIELD

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 28 (U. P.).—Sheriff Merle Remley today investigated the shooting of Harold H. Ford, 49-year-old farmer, in the cornfield of Wheat Bratton, his neighbor.

Sheriff Remley said Mr. Bratton told him he had set up a watch after corn had been stolen from his fields for several nights. He said a man entered the field and that after six warning shots in the air he fired one shot directly at the intruder.

Mr. Remley said he found Ford at his home with a bullet wound through the body.

TRAINING URGED FOR PRISONERS

State Welfare Reports Need
Of Aiding Convicts in Michigan City.

One of every 10 prisoners at the Michigan City State Prison and State Farm is illiterate and there is need for vocational and character training, the State Welfare Department reported today.

A program under way is designed to correct this situation according to Donald T. Griffin, writing in the magazine, Public Welfare in Indiana.

Inmates are being taught brick-laying, auto mechanics, dairy work, poultry raising and cannery work because "most of the men are handicapped in earning their living by the fact that they have no special skills."

More library books have been secured and the habit of reading has increased Mr. Griffin reports. Athletic activities range from softball and boxing to horseshoe pitching. Inmates publish the magazine, Hill Top-ic, twice a month at the State Farm and the magazine, Bourne, is published each month at State Prison.

Projects at the Woman's Prison include a housekeeping class, current events discussion group and a mothers' club which studies health and hygiene, child care, budgeting and food preparation.

Briton Urges Variable Dawn

By Science Service

LONDON, Sept. 28.—With approaching winter months bringing shorter days and English city life ending at dusk because of the war-time blackout, a daylight saving plan under which 9 o'clock in the morning would coincide throughout the year approximately with dawn has been submitted by a Cardiff engineer to the Home Secretary.

Clocks would be advanced 50 minutes on Jan. 1; 25 minutes more on Feb. 1; 50 minutes, March 1; 50 minutes, April 1, and 50 minutes, May 1. No changes would be made in June and July. On Aug. 1 clocks would be turned back 20 minutes; on Sept. 1, 40 minutes; Oct. 1, 50 minutes; Nov. 1, 50 minutes, and Dec. 1, 25 minutes.

The scheme, its backers insist, would save fuel as well as provide more daylight leisure hours.

If Teacher Is Stumped Library Aids in Rescue

Indianapolis public school teachers are depending upon the Public Library for answers to questions and problems presented to them by pupils.

The Teachers' Branch of the Indianapolis Public Library at Meridian and Ohio Sts. attracts teachers immediately after schools close each day, according to library officials.

The teachers consult material among the 19,000 books, 3000 clip-pings and 14,000 pamphlets there in an effort to find needed answers.

Last week one teacher of commercial subjects wanted a textbook that taught a one-hand system of typing. One of her pupils who had only one arm wanted to learn to type. Library officials couldn't find a textbook, but finally located a series of articles in an educational magazine that gave the teacher the information needed.

Another teacher wanted a home economics course for boys who wanted to learn to cook. Another was faced with the problem of finding pirate music, while another needed information on the education and training of janitors.

A high school teacher wanted to know who was the first king of Norway.

As another aid to teachers, the library compiles a list of the latest books on education, and keeps an up-to-date schedule of special teachers' meetings, lectures, conventions and dinners.

Miss Kate Dinsmoor is in charge of the branch, assisted by Miss Marjory Wood and Miss Jessie Boswell.
