By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

PLUMS, YELLOW, GREEN and red, with crackers and cheese—that is one thought for dessert. And here are two others to give rich color to the early October menus:

Plums Grenadier

(Serves 6)
1 package cherry-flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
1 cup juice from plums
1 cup canned or stewed fresh blue plums.
Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add plum juice. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in plums. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm.

Red Plum Puff Pudding

(Serves 8)
8 large, fresh red plums, halved and seeded
2 cups water
2 1/2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sifted cake flour
6 tablespoons sugar
2 eggs yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored
2 eggs white
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
Bring plums and water to a boil. Combine tapioca, sugar and salt; add gradually to fruit mixture and boil briskly 1 minute. Pour into greased baking dish and keep hot.
Sift flour once and measure. Add sugar gradually to egg yolks, beating until light. Beat egg whites and salt until foamy; add cream of tartar and beat until stiff enough to hold in peaks, but not dry. Fold egg yolks mixture into egg whites; then fold in flour, a small amount at a time. Stir hot tapioca-fruit mixture; turn batter over mixture. Bake in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 50 minutes, or until cake is baked. Serve warm.

JANE JORDAN

DEAR JANE JORDAN—I am 18 years old and am madly in love with a married man who has one child. He is willing to give up his sweet little girl for me as he does not love his wife. We have planned to get married in February and leave the state as our relatives would not approve of our marriage. Do you think he would be happy with me? Do you think he would get dissatisfied and want to see his baby again?

Answer—How would you feel if you were the mother of the sweet little girl whose father was willing to sacrifice her in order to get a new deal for himself? You feel uneasy about the situation or you wouldn't have written to ask if the man would get dissatisfied again. You want me to reassure you but I cannot do so.

The tendency of human beings to repeat their mistakes makes me doubtful. Would the time come when you as the mother of a sweet little girl would find yourself on the losing end of the line? A man has to get a divorce from one woman before he can marry another. If the wife objects, the divorce may be delayed indefinitely. In the meantime you may discover that you aren't as much in love as you fancy yourself to be. Disillusionment, I am afraid, is inevitable.

Very likely family objections have made you contrary. At 18 you feel yourself completely grown up and able to choose your own course. Only one thing is hopeful. You're afraid you're wrong, and the chances are 10 to one that your fears are well-founded.

DEAR JANE JORDAN—I am a young girl in my middle teens. I have been going steady with a boy of 18 for about five months. He says he loves me dearly and has asked me to marry him. I have made it clear that I will not marry anyone until I am out of school. I have told him that I love him but I wasn't sure when I told him.

When I am with him I love him dearly, but when we are not together I feel different. I know it would break his heart if he thought I didn't love him, and he says he is willing to wait until I am out of school. Could I love one boy and enjoy being with others? What should I do?

Answer—You don't have to make up your mind to marry before you're out of school and should not tie yourself down with promises which you may not be able to keep. You're infatuated with the state of being in love, and one attractive boy will serve as well as another for an object, at present.

Your boy friend, probably, is in the same state of mind. Both of you are having a grand time dramatizing the situation, but it isn't serious for either of you. What you really want is freedom to have a good time and meet plenty of young people. You may be in love several times before you're ready to settle down to one person.

JANE JORDAN.

Claire Tilden

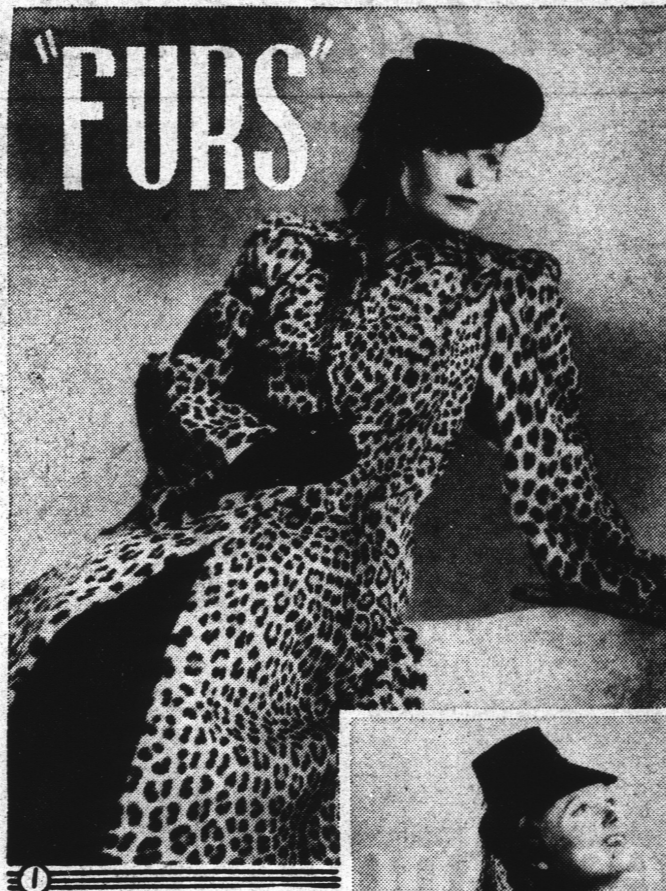

PATTERN 653
CHEERY SMOCK TO PROTECT FROCK

What a solid comfort the smock style is! It not only gives complete, all-over protection to your good clothes as you prepare the tea things or do the supper dishes, but it's also a fine way to use up that old skirt that's been hanging idly in the closet. And Claire Tilden's new smock, Pattern 653, is so jaunty and becoming! Both the back and the front are yoked to make the shoulders nice and smooth, letting the rest of the garment fall in easy, swinging folds. You may like the full, long sleeves with their trim wristbands, or perhaps you prefer the above-the-elbow style. The hemline may be high or low. Add roomy pockets for carrying odds and ends, and make a young and tailored collar. Rice-rac gives a colorful touch at sleeves, yoke and pockets. Use the Sewing Guide for a quick finish and choose a gaudy, splashy present print for this useful, smart smock.

Pattern 653 is cut in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric and 2 yards rice-rac.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this pattern. Write clearly size, name, address and style number.

Send orders to Pattern Department, Indianapolis Times, 214 W. Maryland St.

Former Hoosier Among Visitors To New York Modern Art Show

By HELEN WORDEN
Times Special Writer

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 24.—A deep-rooted tradition was shattered here recently. In an old-fashioned house at 47 E. 60th St., is the Crolier Club which was founded in 1894 to promote the arts and literature. With the years and the aging of its members, the organization settled into peaceful conservatism. A showing of Currier & Ives prints was radical modernism.

Recently a strong young wind blew through the house. It brought an unprecedented exhibition of modern American prints. The gent behind the startling show was Frederick B. Adams Jr. and Elmer Adler. An original feature of the show was the inclusion of many self-portraits by the artists. There's nothing like a picture of how the artist sees himself to give insight into his work.

It was a gay evening. Black and white lined the walls. The women's evening dresses added color to the affair. John Taylor Adams spoke with enthusiasm for print collecting. The famous printer, Bruce Rogers, formerly of Indianapolis, wandered around the room studying the etchings and lithographs. He was peering at an early John Sloan when I bumped into him.

Mr. Rogers is one of the leading type designers in the world. Only a year ago a show of his original drawings and books was put on in the same room of the club. He is a quiet unassuming person, with competent hands and a small white mustache. He first started his type designing for the Indiana Illustrating Co. in Indianapolis. His Centaur type is considered one of the most beautiful examples of Roman in America.

An extra room can make your home more adequate besides solving the problem of lodging guests.

If the lack of funds prevents modernization of your home now, we may help you. For instance, $1,000 of such work can be financed with monthly payments that figure about $2.50 per week. If you are buying your home we will consider a loan to cover your balance and the cost of modernization, too.

It is often possible to arrange monthly payments less than what you now pay. Why not let us see what we can do for YOU?
