Cast for Children's Theater Play
Saturday and Sunday Announced.

Eldon Nyhart and Wymond Angell are cast in the roles of Zar and Zan, the two roving adventurers in the comedy, "The Emperor's New Clothes," which the Children's Civic Theater will present at 10:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. Saturday and 3 p. m. Sunday at the theater.

Mrs. John Gordon Kingham, the play director, has chosen Victor Barry to play the part of the emperor, the vain ruler of the mythical land patterned after China.

Zar and Zan arrive on the scene as the Royal Weavers are being threatened by the scheming, thieving minister of the robes, played by Robert Stempel. Other roles are to be taken by Beety Hagerman, Mary Ann Compton, Betty Welch, Ralph McComb, William Heath, Mary McClure, Hugh Miller and Carol Jane Wood.

The citizens and weavers will be Tom and Jacqueline Campbell, Nancy Sewell, Devine Enright, Jean Rickhoff, Van Arbogast, Joselyn Lyda, Marian Osborn, Jean Steinhardt and Judy Bright.

The play, suitable for the child from 5 to 12 years of age, was written by Miss Charlotte Chorprenning for the Children's Theater of Evanston, where it was first presented by Northwestern University students. The play also has been given by the Chicago Civic Theater.

Urges Aid for Partially Blind

Dr. Robert J. Masters, assistant professor of ophthalmology at the Indiana University School of Medicine, today recommended that the Indianapolis Parent-Teacher Association support the building of a state school for the partially blind on the campus of the State School for the Blind here.

Dr. Masters, one of the speakers at the seventh annual health conference sponsored by the Indianapolis P-T-A Council in Ayres auditorium, pointed out the need for educating the partially blind child who is unable to attend public schools but is not totally blind and eligible to attend the state school.

Parents' Aid Asked

In speaking on "Eye Defects in Children," Dr. Masters explained refractive errors in children's sight including near and far-sightedness and astigmatism. He pointed out that these sight errors can be spotted early both at home and in school by the children's ability in classroom work and by the degree of fatigue they show at home after school. He also said that glasses will not cure these sight errors but only help the child to see better and more comfortably. He urged mothers to correct crossed eyes as soon as their child is old enough to be examined by a physician.

Dr. William Niles Wishard Jr., associate professor in genito-urinary surgery at the medical school, listed ways by which mothers can aid their children in maintaining good health. He talked on "Life and the Pursuit of Health," the conference theme. He urged mothers to use preventive measures: to realize physical defects in their children and to assist in overcoming them; to educate their children in avoiding accidental injury from motorists; and to pay close attention to their children's diets.

He also stressed the importance of the effect of public legislation in health and the need for regular medical examinations of children.

Dr. Jennings Speaks

In Dr. Mary H. Westfall's talk on "Dental Care," she listed a four-point preventive program including right foods, exercise, home care and regular visits to the dentist. Her talk was illustrated by a film, "Nature—Builder of Teeth."

Frank L. Jennings, superintendent of Sunnyside Sanatorium, spoke on "Tuberculosis in Children." His talk was illustrated by slides.

Motion pictures dealing with nutrition and with syphilis were to be shown at the afternoon session.

On this afternoon's program will be: Dr. David A. Boyd, chairman of the Department of Mental and Nervous Diseases at the medical school, "Growing Mentality"; Dr. Gordon W. Batman, assistant professor of orthopedic surgery at the school, "Constitutional Types and Structural Growth," and Dr. Louis Segar, clinical professor of pediatrics, "The Common Cold Allergies and Pneumonias."

Voters League Sees FHA Units

Climax of the Indianapolis League of Women Voters' study of educational facilities for underprivileged youths between the ages of 16 and 18 will be a tour of National Youth Administration units Friday morning.

Mrs. James Bawden, chairman of the league's department of government and education, led the survey of the situation and is in charge of the trip.

The group will meet at 10 a. m. at 272 Century Building where Mrs. W. P. Sneathen, NYA director of girls work, will start the trip. Visits will be made to the home making project for girls, the workshop for boys, the work experience center for Negroes and the Marion County Center. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Bawden by Thursday.

The department has been studying the problem at its study group meetings this winter. It has observed systems used in other cities seeking to assist the youths who leave school at 16 and are unable to enter industry until 18. Next month the department will study Indianapolis' provisions for education of this age group and will observe the NYA Continuation School Project at Technical High School.

This morning Mrs. Lester Smith conducted the second program of the new "What-Every-Voter-Should-Know" series at Rauh Memorial Library. The subject was City Government.
