

COUNCIL PUTS O.K. ON PARK ASSISTANT

Measure Passes After Sharp Partisan Debate; Campbell Declares Board and Director Approved
'Because They Had To.'

The Park Board's recreation expansion program was over its first hurdle today, after City Council last night approved expenditure of $2100 for an assistant to Recreation Director H. W. Middlesworth.

Consideration of the measure evoked sharp partisan debate. Councilmen Harmon A. Campbell and Ralph Moore, Republicans, opposed it on the grounds it would raise the Park Department's tax rate. The expenditure must be approved by the State Tax Board.

Mr. Campbell initiated opposition to the proposed expenditure, which will be made by transferring funds from the department's WPA sponsor's contribution.

Claims Board Opposed

He asserted that the Park Board members and Director Middlesworth were "not in favor" of the recreation assistant, but had approved the idea "because they had to" after the Recreation Advisory Committee proposed it.

"I don't think those Park Board members were in favor of this at all," he said. "And I don't think Mr. Middlesworth is. The Mayor's Advisory Committee brought it up, didn't it?"

"The City of Indianapolis doesn't need a committee to tell us how to spend more money. There are plenty of officials in the City Hall to do that. We need a committee to tell us where to save money by operating more efficiently."

Allen H. Gisler, Park Board vice-president, Mr. Campbell's statement that other Board members and Mr. Middlesworth were not in favor of the assistant.

Opposed on Tax Grounds

"I am a member of the Board," he said. "And I think I ought to know how they voted on this proposition. Mr. Middlesworth called me tonight and he couldn't be here and asked me to speak for him in favor of this thing."

"He did that because he had to," Mr. Campbell insisted.

Mr. Moore said he opposed the expenditure because he believed it would raise the tax rate, despite Mr. Gisler's assurances to the contrary. The measure was passed, 7 to 2.
