

JANE JORDAN

DEAR JANE JORDAN—I am in love with a boy whom I know cares as much for me, but he just won't come around and ask me to go back to him. We split up so that I could go out with others and see if I really cared for him. I find I am not contented with anyone else, no matter how hard I try. He is very jealous and stubborn, but in spite of all his faults I love him still. I have been going out with another boy and the other evening he told me he loved me. I can't return his love.

My mother likes the second boy best and won't permit me to go with the one I really love. Should I really try to care for the boy whom my parents approve, the one whom I like but do not love, or should I go back to the one I care for most if he wants me? How can I get the boy I love back? Is it possible for a girl to love two boys at the same time?

A. W.

Answer—It is seldom that a girl ever falls in love with a boy whom her parents pick out for her. They choose him for his reliability, his worldly goods, his ability to take good care of their daughter. The trouble is that the parents' choice does not suit the emotional requirements of the girl. Like you, she sees the man's virtues but does not respond to him. For one thing she is convinced of her inalienable right to choose her own partner. When her parents interfere they make her feel infantile and incapable, and in this state of mind she is ripe for mistakes.

For all you know your parents may be right about the boy you imagine you love. Your love for him may be based upon an attempt to escape from parental domination and make a life of your own. If he is worthy, you need not worry about your parents' objections. But just as their choice, based on intellect without emotion, is unsafe, so your choice, based on emotion without the approval of the intellect, would be unsafe.

If this boy wanted you as much as you want him, wouldn't he come back of his own will and accord? Would he have imposed these terms on you in the first place if he had felt any real enthusiasm for you? You say he is jealous, yet the presence of a rival has not stirred him to action. I don't know what you can do about it except to encourage him to come back and try it again. If he is reluctant to do this, it would be a mistake for you to urge him. When a man is indifferent it is better for a girl simply to accept the fact and wait for a more responsive suitor.

When a girl is very young and trying to find a permanent partner, she may be in love with two boys at the same time temporarily. Usually she has a secret preference for one of them as you have discovered for yourself. However, if you found yourself falling in love with the one whom you like but do not love, you'd be likely to resist it because it would justify your parents' judgment. At this stage of your development it is more fun to prove them wrong.

Your Weight

PATTERN 8709

The classic shirtwaist is almost as reducing as a liquid diet, and so much pleasanter in every way. This design (No. 8709) brings you a new and particularly good version of it—immaculately tailored, with slim, paneled skirt and bodice sections gathered to give correct fit. The front panel of the bodice is cut in one with the shoulder pieces, and continues the lines of the skirt panel; this detail makes for easy making, and accentuates height, subtracting from width!

As you see from the small sketch, you can trim the dress with button-decked pockets. You'll probably want it both ways—it's so endlessly useful. Make it of flat crepe, spun rayon, street cottons or sheer wool.

Pattern No. 8709 is designed for sizes 36, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires, with short sleeves, 5 yards of 39-inch material without nap; with long, 5½ yards.

For a PATTERN of this attractive model, send 15c IN COIN, YOUR NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE, NUMBER and SIZE, to Pattern Department, The Indianapolis Times, 214 W. Maryland St.

Sew the lovely clothes you'll find designs for in our new Summer Fashion Book. Just out and full of thrills for clever gals who like to wield shears and needle. Not that you need to be so clever at it, either. The step-by-step sew chart, included with each pattern makes the making very easy!

Buy Costumes Which Are Interchangeable for Vacation Wardrobe

By MARIAN YOUNG

A famous travel wardrobe advisor who heartily recommends this type of evening dress for the summer vacationist. Of white rayon jersey with gold-studded belt, it falls neatly into the dinner, rather than strictly formal, gown category.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Buy costumes which are interchangeable. Take a cost—even though the thermometer registers 90 the day you pack. For evening. Choose a dinner gown, rather than a strictly formal type.

These are just a few of the practical wardrobe rules for late summer vacationists, laid down by Sally Dickason, traveler, fashion consultant and eminent authority on travel clothes.

"The biggest mistake the vacationist can make," says the good-looking Miss Dickason, "is to start collecting miscellaneous items of clothing without first making a list of everything needed."

"It's odd but true that many a woman who wouldn't dream of buying a spring or fall dress for town without first deciding what her color scheme for that season will be, will go right out and get a brown sweater just because it is on sale. Then she'll wonder what to do with it because her linen skirts are black or her sports coat is navy blue."

"The smart shopper for mountain or seashore resort tags likes the interchangeable outfits which include slacks, a shirt, a jacket and a skirt. Among dinner dresses, cut somewhat on shirtwaister lines, those of silk or rayon jersey are her pets. They won't wrinkle when packed, and they lend themselves to a variety of scarfs and belts."

Miss Dickason plans travel and vacation wardrobe in relation to destination and activities planned. She sees no excuse for taking tennis dresses if you don't play tennis or golf dresses if you don't golf. She thinks it's a mistake to buy outfits for specific sports on the chance that you may want to try to play just once.

For motorists, seersucker suits are recommended. They don't require ironing and so can be washed at night in hotel or tourist camp and be ready for use the next morning. A gray seersucker suit and three or four blouses or a couple of two-piece, suitable seersucker dresses should see any motorist from one coast to another in spic and span style.

Incidentally, most of the vacation-fashion experts agree that too many motorists believe in wearing just any old thing in the car. They would prefer, from the standpoint of good taste and attractiveness, and not simply because they want to sell more merchandise, that the lady in the car try to look her best en route. There are attractive turbans, fishnet and handkerchief scarfs to keep hair in place while driving. There are lightweight party girl dresses that are extremely comfortable but which offer the necessary support. And, in addition to seersucker, there are any number of wrinkle-proof fabrics in dresses suitable for motoring. P. S.—Keep a pair of clean white cotton gloves, a bottle of cologne and a box of cotton pads and some special face cleaning pads in the pocket of the car.

WINDSOR LIKELY TO AID BAHAMAS

Flowerly Islands Expected to Get More Tourists While Duke Is There.

Travel to the Bahamas is expected to increase now that the Duke of Windsor has been appointed as "Governor and Commander in Chief in and over the Bahama Islands, Vice Admiral and Bahama of the Same."

The Bahamas that Americans know as a winter resort are in the western part of the 800-mile archipelago, covering 4500 square miles, roughly in the latitude of Florida.

Here the existence is brightly flowered, trimly designed, leisurely and orderly.

At Nassau are the houses of the government and the de luxe hotels. The social life moves on that high plane precious to the British Colonial. Shorts and backless dresses are not encouraged on the streets.

The islands for years have been famous for fishing. Especially around Bimini are there many varieties and large sizes of fighting game fish—tuna, marlin, tarpon and swordfish.

Cool Breezes Lure Many to Dunes Park, Barbee Lakes

The cool breezes and waters of northern Indiana are luring Hoosiers to the Dunes State Park and the Barbee chain of lakes. The Dunes Park is a laboratory of nature with 2250 acres of the most picturesque, primitive, historical and amazingly diversified landscape in America. Shifting sand cover forests to the depth of 150 feet or more and in the willow grove, leaving scarred, white stumps as markers in a forest graveyard. The cottonwood tree alone survives the battle by converting its branches into roots when they are covered.

Crooked forested areas beyond the dunes include a semi-tropical marsh where from May to October the botanist finds amazing native and exotic flora.

Has Fine Beach Here is one of the finest beaches in the Middle West. There are extensive picnic areas with shelter houses, sanitary facilities, ovens and pure water. There is a well equipped camping area and a group camp available for boy and girl organizations which can be reserved through the Department of Conservation.

Rooms are available at the Arcade Hotel with meals, rooms and cottages at the Duneside Inn. Mailing address is to the park at Chesterton, Ind.

The Hoosier Motor Club suggests this route as the one to avoid detours: U. S. 31 to Plymouth; U. S. 30 to junction with U. S. 35; U. S. 35 to junction with U. S. 6; U. S. 6 to junction with Rd. 49; Rd. 49 to the Dunes. It's about 170 miles.

Few persons other than fishermen, nature lovers and vacationists wanting to rest, ever have seen the quiet region around the Barbee chain of lakes.

Big Barbee, Little Barbee, Kuhn, Heron, Seaside, Irish, Sea Mill, Shoe, Daniel and Ridinger Lakes comprise the Barbee chain lying in the eastern part of Kosciusko County.

All are drained by Grassy Creek which empties into Tippecanoe Lake a little distance to the north.

The hilly and wooded land surrounding the lakes was purchased from the Government by a Ft. Wayne resident named Barber more than 80 years ago. Some old maps show the lakes as Barber Lakes, but for some vague reason the name was changed to Barbee. Some persons claim Mr. Barber's nickname was Barber.

Fish always have been plentiful in the Barbee chain. Natives say that netters one night took 2300 pounds of fish out of Big Barbee. The catch included big blue gills, fat old crappies and extra-large bass. The crappies and extra-large bass are conveniently clustered among the links of the chain. Various amusements are available at Warsaw and the nearby larger resorts of Tippecanoe and Webster Lake. The postoffice address is Warsaw, R. R.

The Hoosier Motor Club says the best route is: Take U. S. 31 to Peru; east on U. S. 24 to junction with Rd. 115; north on Rd. 115 to junction with Rd. 15; Rd. 15 to Warsaw. The distance is about 120 miles.

Travel to Crater Lake Park, Ore., rose from 28,876 in June, 1939, to 30,374 this June. Kings Canyon, Calif., had 22,043 in June, 1939, to 27,164. Aiming his gun at Harry Reddick, 66, of 331 N. Temple Ave., the night watchman, and two friends, the bandit forced them to walk to where Mrs. Pearl Sprangle, 54, and Miss Evelyn Gibson, 28, both of Danville, had entered their car.

When he ordered them out, Miss Gibson grabbed her purse and ran. When the bandit threatened Mrs. Sprangle, she got out, leaving her purse on the front seat. It contained $9 cash and a $14 check. The gunmen then drove away in the car.

The Rain Came To 'Save' Town

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 30 (U. P.).—The rains came to Waynesburg last night and a 66-year-old tradition that it usually rains here July 29 was saved.

The rain was light, but it was sufficient to sustain the record of failing to rain only three July 29's since a now forgotten farmer kept the first record in 1874.

Four persons listed as official witnesses described last night's fulfillment as "misty." However, the Greene County Court House bell rang out the official announcement that the tradition was saved with the same vigor a downpour would inspire.
