Clean Your Electric Light Bulbs;
On Jobs, Children and Manners

DO YOU GET AS much light as you pay for? Or is the brilliance of your electric lights obscured by a film of dust on the bulbs? Experiments conducted by an illuminating company demonstrated that a clean bulb yields from 25 to 40 per cent more light than a dirty one. A 75-watt lamp that is kept thoroughly clean is practically the equivalent of a 100-watt lamp that has been neglected.

Electric light bulbs should be given periodic cleanings with a damp, soapy cloth.

Remove the bulb, then wipe the glass section only. Dry with a clean cloth. Be sure that both glass and metal parts are thoroughly dry.

Clean Ice Cube Trays

When ice cubes leave an unpleasant taste in beverages perhaps unclean ice trays are the cause. Every time the refrigerator is defrosted, the trays should be washed with soap and water, then scalded and dried before they are refilled with water for fresh cubes.

'Pat' Anderson Leaves

Indianapolis women are doing a bit of sacrificing so that the Duchess of Windsor may have her new hairdresser.

Several of the customers of Patrick Anderson over at Block's Antique Salon are happy for him that the Duchess' yen for a newly styled coiffure has brought him a promotion but secretly are a bit disgruntled that the Duchess has been responsible for the loss of their favorite stylist.

No, "Pat" is not doing the former Wally Simpson's new hair-do. That's the job of Wayne Forrest, who was called to Nassau to do the Duchess' hair. "Pat" has been taken to New York to replace Mr. Forrest in the salon there. Allan Corneil, one of the men in the Continental Salon, is in New York receiving training to replace Mr. Anderson in the Antoine Salon.

When Looking for a Job

With fall and a whole new crop of beginning career girls approaching, Walter A. Lowen, New York placement specialist, offers these five commandments on how to get a job:

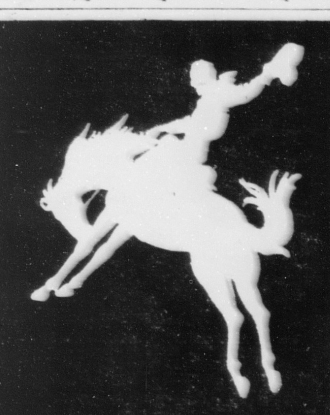

1. Dress simply in becoming street clothes.
2. Wear a stylish but not extreme hat, clean gloves and street shoes.
3. Carry a handbag the contents of which can be found without prolonged struggle and which is free of powder and lipstick stains.
4. Have scrupulously clean hair, worn in a simple, flattering style.
5. Wear natural looking make-up, with moderate amounts of rouge and lipstick and light nail polish.

On Laundering Rayon

Remember the old days when it was practically impossible to launder rayon dresses, bed spreads and such? Well, you need no longer worry about the stretching or the dress melting away under a hot iron. Today the majority of rayon articles launder with great success.

Rayons should never be twisted, scrubbed or wrung out. Soak them a long time in luke warm water with plenty of suds and then squeeze the suds through the fabric. Rinse thoroughly. Press the water from the garment, roll in a towel and knead as much water from it as possible. Dry away from the heat and sunlight.

Do not use a hot iron and always iron on the wrong side. If moisture is needed for removing wrinkles, place a piece of dampened

Living Pictures Are Part of Ayres' Fashion Week

As a part of the "It's Fashion Week at Ayres" presentation, living pictures of the new fall and winter mode will be shown throughout the week in Ayres' Tearoom on the eighth floor. The Fashion Portraits will be presented during the luncheon hours every day this week from noon until 1 p. m. and from 1 o'clock until 2 p. m. The photograph above shows one of the living pictures in the town costume series. It is a costume suit, America's most favored fashion, with a simple and slender wool dress. Over it is worn a coat with the new fitted waist, bloused back, straight skirt made fluid with front pleats. For drama, the coat has plastrons and pockets of the season's most favored fur—staccato-sharp leopard. With it, the model wears a feathered front, off-the-face, veiled felt hat.

JANE JORDAN

DEAR JANE JORDAN—I am a girl of 15. My birthday is October 15 and I will be 16 then. I moved here from a small town about a month ago. While I lived in a small town I went with boys to a certain extent. The boy had to be nice, with good parents, I had to be in by 11 o'clock, and I could not just go riding.

Since we came here Mother won't even let me walk eight blocks to a movie with a boy. She says I am too young to go with the boys here. I disagree. I can't have a boy friend at the house because we live with my stepfather's sister and she has five little children. Besides them I have two brothers, and I can't run them off every time I want to have company; so what am I going to do?

A boy whom I like and who likes me says he will take my 14-year-old brother along on our dates if Mother won't let us go out alone. I can see Mother's point of view in not just riding around because I was hit by an automobile once, but I can't see why I can't go out at all. Do you?

I've heard that you give good advice on all such problems and I hope that you can help me. Please try. K. D.

Answer—Perhaps your mother's fears about city boys will die down after she has lived here for a while and got used to the idea. In a small town where everybody knows everybody else and there aren't many places to go, parents feel more secure about their daughters. Doubtless your mother has a certain fear about the city and the strangers in it which will grow less as she gets acquainted with more people.

I think a fine way to ease off her fears is to double date with your 14-year-old brother. Every young girl craves companions of her own age and should have them. If she has no place in her own home to entertain her friends, what can she do but go to the movies?

Loving parents usually respond to gentle, insistent pressure from their children. They do not want to deprive the young of all pleasure in living but they are loath to admit that they're growing up and getting more independent. Overwhelmed by their fears, they are apt to over-protect their children, thus preventing them from gaining the experience which is the best protection of all.

You needn't be defiant, but you can speak up and explain your point of view. You can insist upon some social experience, and compromise by accepting your brother as a chaperon, by coming in at a reasonable hour, and by telling your mother where you will be. Remember that as you grow older your problem will be less. The more responsibility you take for yourself, the more confidence your mother will have in you. JANE JORDAN.

Put your problems in a letter to Jane Jordan who will answer your questions in this column daily.
