

LINDBERGH RAPS U. S. LEADERSHIP AS WAR-MINDED

Elect a Man Who Will Lead Us to Strength and Peace, He Urges.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (U. P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh charged in a radio speech last night that the present leadership of the United States—in whom, he said, the people have lost confidence—is leading the nation into war.

In an address entitled "A plea for American independence," Col. Lindbergh appealed for election of leaders on Nov. 5 "who will lead us to strength and peace, rather than to weakness and war."

Results of the election, he said, will determine the entire future of the United States and its system of life.

The Colonel deleted from his prepared text the statement that the election "can either bring or avoid a disastrous war for our country."

Fears for Independence

The independence and destiny of America "were never more in jeopardy than they are today," he said, asserting "what we lack today is the type of leadership that made us a great nation; the type that turned adversity and hardship into virility and success."

"No one doubts that we are in the midst of a world crisis. No one denies that our defenses are weak. That our debt is great, that dissatisfaction is rising among us. We do not question the need for rearmament, for reform, or a better economic system. What we do question is the leadership that has brought these conditions upon us."

"We have alienated the most powerful military nations of both Europe and Asia, at a time when we ourselves are unprepared for action, and while the people of our nation are overwhelmingly opposed to war."

Points to Confusion

He insisted that the nation does not need "untold thousands of military aircraft" unless it intends to wage war abroad. He said the maximum needed was a "thoroughly modern and efficient air corps, trained, equipped and maintained for the specific mission of American defense."

"Adequate defense does not necessitate this alarm and confusion," he went on. "With intelligent leadership, we could have built an impregnable defense of America."

Artists Praise Record Plan As Banquet Opens City Drive

By JAMES THRASHER

Now that symphonic music has been placed in hitherto unmusical homes by the records of the National Committee for Music Appreciation, a similar attempt is being made on behalf of opera by the same organization.

Approximately the same group of 1500 Indiana musicians and music lovers who gathered in the Claypool Hotel last February to launch the distribution of orchestral records were invited to the Riley Room last night to inaugurate the operatic record campaign. Once again the toastmaster was Robert A. Adams, and the speakers included a distinguished representation of artists and music-minded citizens, not only from Indiana, but from the international community of concert and opera artists.

The principal addresses were delivered by Mme. Frieda Hempel, whose illustrious career on the Metropolitan and other opera stages is well remembered. Fabien Seitzky, conductor of the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, and Reinold Werrenrath, who admitted to having been in about every possible musical field, church singing and male quartets, recital, concert and oratorio, the Metropolitan Opera (for three years), motion pictures, vaudeville and radio.

"It is a pity," Mme. Hempel said, "that most of the people now living in the United States may go to their graves never having seen a first-rate performance of Wagner or Verdi or Puccini or of the other masters who compose for the theater."

"If, as we believe, there is plenty of talent in America, and if the American people love music as we think they do, nothing remains but to increase the opportunities for the artist to sing for the people, and for the audience to listen to the artist. I understand that we are here for this good purpose, and I am happy to be with you."

Both Mr. Werrenrath and Mr. Seitzky spoke of the beginnings of opera, any Mr. Werrenrath traced musical patronage from the people to the church, royalty, aristocracy and back to the people again.

'Sold' on Movement

When he first heard of the work of the National Committee for Music Appreciation, Mr. Werrenrath said he wondered "What's the racket." But he said he had investigated the movement thoroughly and was "sold" on it. Through the sale of millions of records at an infinitesimal profit, he said the Committee is able to give some profit back to the towns in which it operates.

Mr. Seitzky thanked the Music Appreciation Committee for the "generous help" to the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra. He likened the Committee's work to the establishment of orchestra centers here; both, he said, had been very successful.

Given Applause

The audience stood and applauded Mr. Lilly as he stepped forward to receive the plaque. After his brief remarks of acknowledgment, he introduced Mrs. Evelyn Foster Mowbray, composer's niece, and Fletcher Hodges Jr., curator of the Foster Memorial in Pittsburgh and the "wheelhouse of the whole endeavor," as Mr. Lilly described him.

Edward T. Ingle of the National Committee brought greetings from the organization's 75 chapters and 3000 members. He spoke of the founding of free circulating libraries of recorded music by the Committee in 30 American cities during the past year, and said that the Committee's records had gone into a million American homes.

He spoke of $81,000 that had been distributed by the Committee to various musical organizations in the last year, and said that the next problem would be to build opera houses throughout the country.

As for the operatic recordings, Mr. Ingle said they had been made "by world famous artists—not for money, not for fame, but to give others the love of music which they themselves feel."

Mr. Ingle announced that "Carmen," the first of 12 opera albums, would be distributed beginning next Friday. In closing, he introduced William H. Ball, Indiana State Symphony Society president and Indiana chairman of the National Committee for Music Appreciation, who said that more than $5000 had been received by the Symphony Society from the sale of the Music Committee's orchestra records.

Others at the speakers table were Mrs. H. H. Arnholder, Bernard Batty, Mrs. Frank Gregor, Charles J. Lynn, Miss Josephine Madden, DeWitt S. Morgan, D. S. Robinson, Ferdinand Schaefer, Elmer A. Steffen, Clyde E. Wildman and Ralph W. Wright.

ELLIOTT HELD TO ARMY POST

Two Efforts to Resign Air Corps Captaincy Are Rejected.

DAYTON, O., Oct. 15 (U. P.).—Elliott Roosevelt, whose commission as an Army Air Corps reservist captain at Wright Field aroused widespread criticism yesterday but it was refused by Brig. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, Wright Field commandant.

Gen. Echols said the 30-year-old son of the President earlier had tried to resign Saturday, but was also refused.

In an official statement, Gen. Echols said Capt. Roosevelt asked to resign his commission because he "thought his appointment might have an injurious effect on the selective service program."

Gen. Echols refused both resignations on the grounds that Capt. Roosevelt's physical examination showed him unfit for combat and flying duty because of poor eyesight. Capt. Roosevelt reported for active duty last Thursday and at present is in the production engineering division.

Capt. Roosevelt urged action on the resignation immediately in order to get a War Department ruling on his return to his Ft. Worth, Tex., home to register for selective military service in event the resignation was accepted.

Gen. Echols' refusal of the resignation was regarded as final. Gen. Echols, in an official statement, attributed Capt. Roosevelt's attempted resignation to "publicity given him by the press."
