

The Gallup Poll—

MISSOURI ENTERS WILKIE'S COLUMN

Switch Is in Step With G. O. P. Nominee's Gains in Kentucky and Oklahoma; Roosevelt Holds 53 Per Cent Of Popular Vote; Final Survey Results Monday.

out the nation during the week Oct. 22-27 has put the Republican candidate within striking distance of victory, because it pushed Roosevelt's popular vote percentage down from 54.5 to 53 per cent. This is only 1 per cent more than the percentage needed for Roosevelt to win, which, owing to the surplus Democratic majorities in the South, is approximately 52 per cent.

Sampling surveys are subject to a normal expectancy of error, which in recent elections has averaged 4 per cent. The Institute has pointed out that many unsurveyable factors, such as the activities of political machines, the effect of weather on election day, and the relative turnout of voters in each party, must be taken into account in interpreting any survey figures, including those of today.

The Institute is now compiling state-by-state returns, which will be supplemented by a special telegraph survey this week-end. Groups of states will be reported as the returns come in and a final 48-state roundup will be published next Monday.

Institute polls throughout the nation in the last two weeks have revealed an accelerating trend toward Mr. Wilkie—the second of two distinct trends noted in this campaign.

The first was a trend in favor of Mr. Roosevelt beginning in late August and continuing through September. Then in October came a halting and sharp reversal of this trend, and Mr. Wilkie has been gaining ever since. The latest National survey showed him advancing three points since early October, although President Roosevelt is still in the lead with 53 per cent.

Had the election been held a month ago, when Mr. Roosevelt was polling 56 per cent (Oct. 6), a Democratic victory would have been assured.

If the Wilkie trend continues unaltered, however, so many states may end up near the 50 per cent line that any scientific prediction of the election will become impossible. It is not unlikely, with a continued Republican trend, that as many as 15 or 20 states including New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and other large states, will be in the category where neither candidate has a majority of more than 4 per cent in popular votes.

This would bring all such areas within the range of normal expectancy of error in a sampling survey. Whether the Wilkie trend continues during the rest of this week remains to be seen, after the full effect of President Roosevelt's speeches has had time to sink in. It is entirely possible that the last-minute campaign activities of the Roosevelt forces may switch voters in the pivotal states back to the Democratic side.

KERN EXPLAINS HIS FEAR OF 3D TERM

A third term for the Roosevelt administration would present "real dangers" to the Americanism loved and lived by the workers of this nation," Charles W. Kern, Indianapolis, president of the Indiana Building and Construction Trades Council, said in an address at Evansville last night.

Mr. Kern said "the one-man rulers of totalitarian Europe use the labor movement as a stepping stone to that autocratic level from which they can subjugate whole nations into economic and political slavery."

Today's War Moves

operations are allowing Great Britain to increase its striking power in the Mediterranean at the expense of Italy.

Whatever may be the outcome of Italian military activities in northern Greece, it will be extremely difficult to dislodge the British from the Peloponnesian Peninsula. If the British can hold themselves there permanently, and establish bases as well on the nearby island of Crete, Axis hopes of dominating the eastern Mediterranean will approach the vanishing point.

The Italian troops in northern Greece now seem to be aiming their principal attack in the direction of Janina, about 30 miles south of the Albanian frontier. If they reach Janina, the Italians will be astride the only good western highway running continuously from southern to northern Greece.

Capture of the city would hamper somewhat the transport of Greek supplies for use in the northwestern area of combat. There are, however, various narrow mountain roads to which the Greeks are accustomed that would serve as reserve routes. The difficulty of penetrating this area has changed little since Homer's time. The modern Greeks have built no railways there and in addition to the natural barriers of the terrain, heavy rains have been falling since the Italian offensive began.

Conditions thus are favorable to the Greek defenders for the time being. The eventual outcome of the struggle, however, is as yet uncertain for the Greeks, insofar as the northwestern area is concerned. The Italians may be able eventually to seize the Greek territory which they claim forms a natural part of Albania.

But, how much farther they may go depends on the price they are prepared to pay in time and losses. There is still reason for believing that Hitler does not want Mussolini to engage in major operations against Greece for the moment.

It is thus within present possibilities that after some further gains in the region south of Albania, the Italians may call a halt. If they do, it should not mean relinquishment by Britain of newly-acquired Greek bases. This, from the standpoint of eastern Mediterranean control, is the most important factor in the Greek campaign.

WILKIE CLAIMS FOREIGN POLICY IMPERILS U. S.

come our opportunity to correct both and above all to keep out of foreign war.

Predicts Revolt at Polls.

"The people will not be fooled on Nov. 5. The people will turn to the cold facts of the third-term candidate's policies at home."

Mr. Wilkie issued the statement as he began his final day of touring campaign, which has taken him approximately 18,000 miles since he left Rushville, Ind., Sept. 12. He will rest on his special train to-night before going into New York tomorrow night for a final rally at Madison Square Garden.

He speaks on a national radio network (NBC-Red) from his private railroad car "somewhere in New Jersey" at 7:30 p. m. (Indianapolis Time) in reply to Mr. Roosevelt's Boston speech Wednesday night. In the talk tonight, he will deal particularly with aviation.

Adds 3 States to List

Mr. Wilkie told a cheering New Jersey crowd that he was confident of carrying Missouri, West Virginia and New Jersey, and that a swing toward him was growing in Kentucky. Mr. Roosevelt carried the three states in 1932 and 1936.

"The swing is on in Kentucky and is growing more rapidly every hour," Mr. Wilkie said. "I'm confident that we'll carry New Jersey. In your own state of New Jersey, there's no doubt that we'll carry it despite Frank Hague (Mayor of Jersey City). The firm of Frank and Frank soon will pass out of existence."

The reference was to President Roosevelt and Mr. Hague.

Stresses Domestic Issues

Mr. Wilkie said Mr. Roosevelt had injected the foreign affairs issue into the campaign by referring to Mr. Wilkie's approval of aid to Britain and other Roosevelt Administration foreign policies as "political sterility" and "me too" stuff.

"I wanted to devote myself mainly to our great domestic issues—the third term, the utter failure in every single element of the New Deal promises to cure our ills—agriculture, unemployment, industrial recovery, fiscal policy, unbalanced budgets, rising taxes, increasing deficits, our hard-long course to bankruptcy," Mr. Wilkie continued.

"The third-term candidate has avoided every one. Why has he refused to debate them? Obviously, because he couldn't. In every field after a record of failure, he has only to offer that he has spent almost 60 billions and increased our national debt by 24-billions—and accomplished no recovery whatever."

Charges "Cheap Politics"

He accused Mr. Roosevelt yesterday of "playing cheap politics with international affairs and the liberties of the people." He said the President asked a third term and told the people to "take me with my ambassadors, my courts, my legislatures, my corrupt bosses." The President, he added, says "take me, people. I own you. I have bought you with your own money."

Recalling that Mr. Roosevelt referred to Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, as "my Ambassador," Mr. Wilkie declared:

"We are sick of the kind of one-man Government that calls an Ambassador of the United States, 'my ambassador.' It used to be 'my friends' now it is 'my generals.' Then it will be 'my people.' But there is one thing that will be perfectly clear after Nov. 5th. It isn't his White House. It's the people's White House."

Egg Misses Mark

Hands were stretched toward Wendell Wilkie in Huntington, W. Va., but all weren't bent on handshaking. One held an egg. The missile fell short of its target, but splattered on the hood of the candidate's car.

cast by the major radio networks at 8 p. m. (Indianapolis Time).

Saturday morning, he campaigns in upstate New York for the first time this year. There will be 10-minute rear-platform speeches at Rochester and Batavia.

He will arrive in Buffalo where the factories are emptying at the noon hour to inspect the Curtiss-Wright aircraft and the Bethlehem Steel Co. factories.

There will be another stop in Erie, Pa., before he arrives in Cleveland for his final full dress speech of the campaign Saturday night.

In an address late yesterday dedicating the new $4,500,000 National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Md., Mr. Roosevelt denied that his Administration plans to socialize medical practice.

Declaring that "the ramparts we watch must be civilian as well as military," he called upon science to form a partnership with Government for "total defense" similar to the defense partnership between Government and industry.

"We seek the same partnership that we seek for industrial production in the advisory commission," he said. "Neither the American people nor the Government intend to socialize medical practice any more than they plan to socialize industry."

Pointing out that the objective in America, as almost nowhere else in the world, is life conservation rather than life destruction, Mr. Roosevelt asserted he is working to build defense in terms of humans as well as in terms of guns.

Last-Minute Political Fire Centering on Middle East

ises to be, there still is the possibility of a big electoral vote margin, especially if Mr. Roosevelt is the winner.

He goes into the contest with the votes of the so-called solid South but there is evidence of general weakening of his position among the border states in the latest poll indications. Democrats claim, also, that mountain states—where silver is a prime commodity—will swing to the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket.

The Republican drive on the Pacific Coast depends on the personal pull of Senator Charles L. McNary, Vice Presidential candidate, in Oregon and of Senator Hiram W. Johnson, Progressive Republican, in California.

Strive for 'Bloc' Votes

Both sides are reaching for the "bloc" votes. Republicans warn directly or indirectly that Mr. Roosevelt's re-election would move the nation toward war and the Democratic response is that Mr. Wilkie might be an appeaser or that he is playing politics with a war scare.

Henry A. Wallace told a Madison Square Garden audience in New York last night that there were "Nazi propaganda and Nazi pressure" for Mr. Wilkie's election.

In Camden, N. J., Mr. Wilkie said Mr. Roosevelt's Government would make "our Constitution a scrap of paper" and he and other Republican campaigners hit again and again at the possibility of a dictatorial Government.

Early Becomes Issue

In New York papers are making much of an altercation in which Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early sought to get through a police line to Mr. Roosevelt's special train Monday night. A Negro policeman reported himself kicked or "kneed" and the incident has become a political issue.

Mr. Early last night offered apologies to the policeman who made the charge and also to New York City Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine. He denied he attacked or kicked any officer in the altercation, which he described as "a regrettable affair."

At Lincoln, Neb., last night, Mr. Hoover said the New Deal's foreign policy was one of "hysteria" that might get the country into war.

At St. Louis, Mo., last night, Mr. Hoover said the New Deal's foreign policy was one of "hysteria" that might get the country into war.

struction of necessary equipment might be delayed slightly because of huge defense orders facing equipment manufacturers.

The station was granted a license by the Federal Communications Commission to operate full time, with a day-time power of five kilowatts, and a night power of one kilowatt.

The Capital Broadcasting Co. was incorporated several months ago with an authorized capital stock of $100,000. Mr. McConnell, who also is director and sales manager of Hamilton-Harris & Co., said an "experienced and highly qualified" staff of men would operate the new station.

Officers besides Mr. McConnell, are Alvin E. Jones, 231 Hampton Drive, president of Jones-Maley, Inc., automobile distributors, vice president; Edward W. Harris, 8510 Washington Blvd., president of Hamilton-Harris & Co., treasurer, and Joseph G. Wood, attorney, and president of the City Council, secretary.

LEWIS INDORSED BY MINE WORKERS' AID

In a radio address at Terre Haute last night, L. H. Bell, Brazil, representative of the United Mine Workers of America, charged that politics "have been held nearer to the hearts of the New Deal than has the defense of America."

Mr. Bell supported the recent stand of C. I. O. President John L. Lewis, who indorsed Wendell L. Wilkie for president.
