

Several Concerts to Help City Over Holiday Season

Three concerts by the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, the Jordan Conservatory's annual Christmas concert and various individual recitals promise enough music in the coming week to tide Indianapolis over the holidays.

In addition to the orchestra's third pair of subscription concerts on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, the symphonic schedule also calls for the season's first children's concert on Saturday morning at 10:30 in the Murat.

Ernest Friedlander, cellist, and Lynne Walwright, harpist, are listed as soloists. These two orchestra members will join forces in a performance of Saint-Saëns' "Carnival of Animals." Also on the children's program are Dubensky's "Tom Sawyer" overture; three pieces from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" music; songs by Sullivan, Emmet and Bloch, and the Finale from Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4.

The eminent pianist, Josef Hofmann, is returning for his second appearance with the orchestra this week-end. He will play the Chopin E Minor Concerto at the subscription concerts.

Other music on the program is the Serenata Nocturna of Mozart (first performance in Indianapolis), Franck's "Christmas Poem" (world premiere) and the Sibelius Symphony in D Major. The last work is being played as a part of the week's celebration throughout the musical world (or at least the democratic portion of it) in honor of the Finnish composer's 75th birthday, which was Sunday.

The Jordan Conservatory is now accepting requests, in person or by mail, for the Christmas concert next Tuesday night. There is no admission charge, and reservation requests are being honored as they are received. Miss Ada Bickling has announced that no telephone requests can be granted.

The concert this year will be held in the Murat, instead of at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, as in the past few years. Popularity of this annual event has forced the conservatory to take it to more commodious quarters.
