How Hitler Stands Now—

Nazis Privately Hate Their Italian Allies; Not Pleased By Duce's Demand for Booty

soning" Italy with large forces of troops or police. Units of both sorts have been sent to Italy, but as observers and advisers or on their way elsewhere, rather than as guarantors, in large numbers, of public order.

The Nazis have confined their aid to Italy, thus far, to the sending of transport and combat planes and crews—and they continue to be gratified by the Italian defeats.

Dislikes Are General

There are five main reasons why the Nazis are pleased by the Fascists' reverses, and the story of these five reasons is also the none-too-highly edifying story of German-Italian relations throughout the war to date. These are the reasons and this is the story:

1—Germans in general dislike Italians in general and have little respect for them as soldiers.

2—The Germans despised Mussolini's policy of waiting to see who appeared likely to win the war before entering it triumphantly on the side he thought would be victorious.

3—There is some reason to believe that Mussolini wanted to declare war immediately after the Germans broke through on the Western Front, which the Duce thought foreshadowed a speedy German victory, but that Hitler prevented him from doing so.

4—Hitler wanted to make it clear that Germany alone had defeated France, and that Italian participation in the war was of no importance as far as France was concerned. He therefore made Mussolini wait until Germany alone had obviously beaten France, it appears.

5—In spite of Italy's late entry into the war and the unimpressive showing it made against an already beaten France, Mussolini nevertheless has claimed so much credit for the victory that he has greatly annoyed the Nazis.

The Duce has also put forward territorial and other claims for booty which the Germans consider entirely out of proportion to Italy's contribution to the war, and any contribution which they think Italy is apt to be able to make in the future.

Some of the booty Mussolini is claiming, the Germans want for themselves, some they would prefer to allocate to Spain, and some they think the French and British should be allowed to keep.

The conflict of Italian and Spanish claims is particularly trying to the Germans, who are getting more and more annoyed by the necessity of having to win all the battles and then share the fruits of victory with others whose contributions to the victory are either modest, to put it mildly, or altogether non-existent.

Spain Wants Pa-O

The Spanish Fascists take the position that they have already done their part toward the setting up of the "new order" by winning the Spanish civil war. The time has now come, they argue, for their efforts to be rewarded.

The Spaniards have not felt strong enough themselves so far to take Gibraltar or to seize Portugal, the two jobs the Germans would like them to do.

Neither have the Spaniards been ready so far to agree to the Germans sending their own forces into and through Spain to do these jobs.

Economic and political conditions in Spain, furthermore, are such as to make the sending of large German forces into the peninsula an undertaking of some magnitude.

Blow at Portugal Possible

Spain has been so exhausted by the civil war and its aftermath that stocks of essential materials are extremely low. The Germans would have to provide all their own supplies. They would even have to feed the civil population to considerable extent, because the British are allowing only limited supplies to enter the country, and would stop credit for the victory that he has greatly annoyed the Nazis.

A large percentage of the people, finally, would oppose a German occupation or even a German army march through so bitterly that a police problem of some proportions probably would result.

None of these considerations may prevent Hitler from striking at Gibraltar or Portugal, or both, in the near future, but they have devalued him from doing so to date.

And so German-Italian, as well as German-Spanish, relations still leave something to be desired.

"Herr Franco was extremely precise in his demands and extraordinary in his vagueness," Hitler said after his meeting with the Caudillo on the Franco-Spanish frontier.

There is still another reason why the Germans have been pleased by the Italian fascists in Greece and North Africa.

Not only do these fascists deflate a people the Germans dislike and for whose military virtues they have little respect. Not only do they help put Mussolini's claims to have played an important part in the defeat of France in a perspective the Germans consider more correct, and make it easier for the Nazis to whittle down the Duce's claims to booty. But the Nazis also think that the Italian reverses, especially the reverses in Greece, will further serve to teach Mussolini to pay more attention in future to what Hitler says.

For the Germans had asked Mussolini to stay out of Greece. The Fascists had shown signs of attacking Greece on several occasions before they finally did so. On each occasion, the Nazis had asked the Italians not to move, Germany wanted quiet in the Balkans, the Nazis said, and a minimum of interference with the supplies of raw materials that came from that area.

Nazis Need No Help

But while Hitler was on a trip through occupied France, the Italians decided to attack Greece nevertheless. It is hard to be sure of precise details, but it appears that the Greek war was most especially the idea of Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, and that he persuaded Mussolini to approve it.

Ciano, it appears, was sure that the Greeks would surrender without fighting to an Italian ultimatum. Proper preparations for a real campaign were, accordingly, not made. The troops sent to Albania were seasoned, experienced units, but general staff preparations were hopelessly inadequate.

Hitler returned from France and proceeded to Florence as final preparations for the Italian invasion were made, but the Fascist troops moved five hours before Hitler's train reached the Brenner Pass. The Chancellor confined himself to saying that he hoped—and of course believed—that adequate preparations had been made for the campaign. He was assured that they had.

Duce to Stick With Hitler

These, then, are the reasons why the Nazis were pleased by the Italian reverses, and this is the outline of German-Italian relations during the war to date.

But there are two more points that should be made: The first point is that the Italian reverses probably will play no decisive part in the outcome of the war. Germany needs no Italian aid, and even if Italy should be eliminated from the war altogether, Germany still would be almost as strong as it is today. The Nazis are certain, furthermore, that they can prevent a complete Italian collapse.

The British badly need to keep control of the Mediterranean and the Suez Canal. It would help the Axis powers appreciably if they could drive the British out of both places. But the war will be decided in the British Isles themselves, and the skies above them and the waters around them, and Italian reverses in Greece and North Africa cannot exert decisive influence in the North Sea.

The second point is that, in spite of the equivocations of German-Italian relations in general, and the Nazis' pleasure about the Italian reverses in particular, the hopes of winning Mussolini away from Hitler are vain hopes as long as Germany seems to have an excellent chance to win the war.

TONIGHT

6:30—Cavalade, WLW.
7:00—Big Town, WFBM.
7:00—Tony Martin, WIRE.
7:30—Dr. Christian, WFBM.
8:00—Eddie Cantor, WIRE.
8:00—Fred Allen, WFBM.
8:30—Mr. District Attorney, WIRE.
9:00—Kay Kyser, WIRE.

If you like history you probably follow the Cavalade programs offered each Wednesday at 6:30 on WLW.

Usually historical subjects are more or less on the serious side but this evening's Cavalade promises to be different.

It's to be a comedy based on the inventive genius of that lovable Colonial patriot and statesman, Benjamin Franklin.

"Dr. Franklin Takes It Easy" is to be the topic of this dramatization and the radio play, written by Erik Barnouw, director of Columbia University's radio courses will attempt to show that the good doctor's desire for leisure furnished the inspiration for many of his labor saving inventions.

Benjamin Franklin desired to free humans from drudgery and he gave America many of the discoveries that lessened labor. John McIntire of the Cavalade Players is to play the title role. Don Voorhees will conduct an original musical score.

Dorothy Lamour is to pay Eddie Cantor a guest visit on his time to Smile program tonight, 8 o'clock, WIRE.

Ernest (Bill) Collins of the NBC press division has written music for four of Christopher Morley's "Chimney" verses and turned them over to BMI. John Scott Trotter, the orchestra leader, is to appear in the new songs.

Bing Crosby's flicker along with Oscar Levant and Mary Martin. It's to be "Kiss the Boys Goodbye."

Cliff Nazarro, the double-talk artist, is to play a role in "Dynamite." Irene Rich is nursing a poison oak rash following a weed-hacking expedition in a vacant lot. Norman Gray, Stamford, Conn., engineer who practices "Dynamite" (razor blade testing to you) is to be Fred Allen's guest tonight, WFBM at 8 o'clock.

Edward G. Robinson comes up with another timely topic as the theme for his Big Town dramatization tonight, WFBM, 7 o'clock.

"And a Little Child," is the topic of the play which deals with an infantile paralysis victim who lost his zest for living until a child visited in the same hospital shows him the way to victory.

The program is presented in connection with the annual campaign of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and its conclusion Mr. Robinson will make a personal appeal in behalf of the drive.

Nobody has to tell Bernard L. Schubert that truth is stranger than fiction. Mr. Schubert is director of the NBC and features, "How Did You Meet?" heard Wednesday at 7:15 p. m. on WIRE.

He spends most of his time sorting letters which pour into his office telling how listeners first met their husbands or sweethearts.

"Most of the stories are so fantastic that, dramatized, they would sound like wild fiction," Mr. Schubert says. He cites this example: An architect wrote that, desperately needing funds, he sold a piece of his rib to a plastic surgeon for $200. The surgeon used it on a girl injured in an auto accident, and later introduced the pair. Yep, they got married.

Harold L. Ickes will defend and Philip P. LaFollette, former Wisconsin Governor, will oppose the President's Lend-Lease Bill in a debate tomorrow night on America's Town Meeting of the Air, WENR, 8:35.

URGES MORE CYCLE OFFICERS FOR CITY

Sergt. Kenneth Dickinson, field representative of the safety division of the Indianapolis Association of Chiefs of Police said here today the Indianapolis Police Department does not have a sufficient number of motorcycle policemen to handle traffic adequately.

The local traffic division maintains a force of 30 motorcycle police. Sergt. Dickinson said "50 should be the minimum for a city of this size." At present there are no funds available for an increase. City officials say.

NASH

Proves its AMAZING ECONOMY!

LOS ANGELES (Jan. 19th) — Today, when Gilmore-Grand Canyon Run results were officially published, it was revealed that the Nash Ambassador "600" had delivered more miles to the gallon than any other 6, 8, or 12-cylinder car in America's official economy race.

NEVER before, in Gilmore competition, had a car so big gone so far, so fast, on such little gasoline!

But equally remarkable is the driver's own report of the race.

Even over rough mountain stretches, this Nash almost floated along—on its soft, four-wheel coil springs. And with its new Two-Way Roller Steering it gripped the sharpest curves, as if it were geared to rails.

High above the snow line, drivers were kept warm by its Weather Eye Conditioned Air System.

You've got to see and drive this Nash yourself to know what it's like.

It's the result of three years' testing, and an investment of many millions of dollars.

Scene of Nash victory... 599 miles of high speed travel... In desert heat, over mountain ranges.

Built with its body and frame welded together as one twist-proof, rattle-proof unit of amazing strength—it has the widest seats of any low-price car.

SEEK CAUSE OF SPAN COLLAPSE

Engineers Inspect Bridge Over Wabash River at Montezuma.

MONTZUMA, Ind., Jan. 29 (U. P.).—State highway engineers today were investigating the collapse of a 200-foot span of the 700-foot bridge over the Wabash River near here.

The bridge collapsed yesterday and occupants of two automobiles and a truck which were on it at the time narrowly escaped injury.

The truck occupants, Mack McCullister and John Oates, were severely shaken as it jolted from the span. The truck is owned by the Crawford Trucking Co. of San Antonio, Tex., and was loaded with shelled pecans.

Telegraph and telephone lines across the bridge were torn down.

The bridge had four spans, one of 46 feet in length and three of 195 feet each. It had a roadway width of 17.4 feet. It is on U. S. 36. It was built in 1892 and had a 10-ton load limit.

Traffic on the highway is being routed south from Rockville on Road 41 to Clinton and back north on Road 63 to Road 36 until the bridge is repaired.
