Rah! Rah! Sis-Boom-Bah!

Cheer leaders Jenny Phipps of Speedway High School and 3-year-old Tommy Mueller of Howe High School . . . The folks hid his drum on game nights.

Tommy, at 3, Gave His All But Howe Let Him Down

By EARL HOFF

You'd think that after a fellow has given his all as a cheer leader, 3-year-old Tommy Mueller did couldn't miss in the State basketball tournament.

When they lost out in the second round of the sectionals, Tommy had a feeling shared by many glam courts last week-end. But a fellow Tommy's age can afford to be philosophical about them being another season. There will be, in fact, at least 10 more before he wins any kind of official status at Howe.

Services Free

Until this time Tommy, with his megaphone and gold and brown uniform, will continue to get excited about the Howe Hornets and donate his services as a cheer leader absolutely free, except maybe for a couple of free tickets which are the right of any cheer leader.

Tommy got his start in cheer leading by fidgeting at home games at Howe this season. Something about the action of the cheer leaders struck a responsive note.

When he would return home, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Mueller, said he would mimic the actions of the cheer leaders.

Then, at one basketball game, Tommy just couldn't stand it any longer.

Acquires Megaphone

Clad in a snow suit, he trotted right out on the basketball floor and gave the cheer leaders a hand. There was no doubt after that about Tommy's utility to the Howe Hornets. As soon as his trade he acquired a megaphone and gold and brown jacket and trousers. He was on hand at all the home games.

Throughout his service to Howe, however, there was one thing not exactly to Tommy's liking. As well as being an accomplished cheer leader he is a drummer of no mean ability.

His folks always hid his drum on game nights.
