Boy Scout News— DECIDE SOON ON CATHOLIC HONOR

Ad Altare Dei Award Given For 250 Hours' Distinct Service to Church.

A meeting will be held next week to decide when the Ad Altare Dei award will be presented to deserving Catholic scouts in the Indianapolis area.

The Ad Altare Dei award is given to boys in recognition for faithful and dependable service at the Altar of God.

Boys may acquire merits for this award from the time they become tenderfoot scouts, but only first class scouts can receive the mark of distinction.

To achieve the award, a scout must give 250 hours of distinct service to the church. This service must consist of at least 200 hours, or two years, of faithful duty as an Altar Boy computed as to time in this manner: one Mass is equivalent to one hour; one solemn High Mass is equivalent to two hours, and Novenas, Vespers, Holy Hour, or Evening Devotions are equivalent to two hours.

Scouts must also know these things to qualify: How to set up the altar for Mass; the essentials for Mass; how to confer Baptism in an emergency; and how to prepare for a visit of a priest to a sick room.

Last year, the first year the awards were made, more than 30 boys achieved the honor.

City Loses Convention

INDIANAPOLIS SCOUT circles were disappointed yesterday to learn that the 1942 National Scout Council had chosen St. Paul for its convention city.

It had been hoped here that the council would choose Indianapolis in the local organization. In 1935 the number had risen to 2665; in 1939 it had gone to 5023 and last year the total stood at 5233. Membership now is around the 6000 mark.

Scout headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce Building, were next to complete emptiness this week with "Skipper" Delmar Wilson and his aides in Chicago to attend a scout executive conference at the Edgewater Beach Hotel.

Scout Growth Depicted

A CHART OF INDIANAPOLIS scout membership shows some interesting facts about the council here.

For instance it shows that out of every 12 boys nine want to be scouts and at the present rate four become scouts and five do not because they lack the opportunity.

A table of membership shows that in 1915 there were only 466 scouts in the local organization. In 1935 the number had risen to 2665; in 1939 it had gone to 5023 and last year the total stood at 5233. Membership now is around the 6000 mark.

Most of the City's scout troops that have participated in day, night and week-end hikes, are now collecting equipment and readying themselves for an extensive program of winter hikes. Plans are already completed for several troop visits to the State parks. As has been the custom in the past transportation to the hike locale will be furnished by volunteers, usually troop leaders, sponsors, friends or parents.

Draft Army Proposal to Balk Independent Air Force Plan

By CHARLES T. LUCEY Times Special Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The War Department, preparing to oppose in early Senate hearings the creation of an independent air force, is planning a counter move which would give the Army air forces additional "autonomy" but not independence.

The plan may be announced by Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air Corps and Deputy Chief of Staff of Air, when he is called to testify before the Senate Military Affairs Committee, or it may be announced sooner.

The step is expected in the department to help convince Congress that the air forces already have been made largely independent and to temper the zeal of many Army airmen who think the nation's fighting air arm should be co-equal in status with the land and sea forces.

The plan now being considered would represent the third major concession to the air force during a time of increasing pressure for freeing aviation from the command of the older defense establishments.

In July the War Department gave the airmen a first measure of autonomy by co-ordinating supply, training and combat branches under Gen. Arnold and creating a miniature general staff for air. It also gave the command of the vital Panama-Caribbean defense area to an airman, Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews.

The step now planned, it is understood, would give the air forces general staff more authority than it has now in dealing with established Army departments in matters of appropriations, supply, ordnance research and development, and general "housekeeping" functions.

There have been sore points in some of these fields in the past due to feeling among the airmen that they were given too little say in planning and developing for their own branch of the service.

A great majority of Army airmen have been counted as favoring independence for the air arm, and many are expected to testify to this effect in the coming hearings on the bill introduced by Senator McCarran (D. Nev.).

But others may testify that the present time is not the moment for a sweeping reorganization. The McCarran bill would take all of the existing Naval air arm and the Army air forces and put them in a new Department of Aviation.
