

M'NUTT URGES HEALTH DRIVE

Asks State to Mobilize Welfare Services in Emergency.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (U. P.).—Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt urges Governors of the 48 states to complete mobilization of state health and welfare services "to meet the wartime emergency."

Mr. McNutt, who made the appeal as director of defense health and welfare services, asked for immediate preparations to care for civilians whose safety "may be jeopardized by enemy action."

A function of the Government, he said, is the prevention and relief of suffering which grows out of wartime disaster.

Asks Sabotage Guard

He asked all communities in the 48 states to provide whatever additional services may be needed in case of attack or sabotage, as well as the extension of present services.

Wartime social services which now should be developed, Mr. McNutt said, include:

Those for the care of persons who may be rendered homeless or needy through belligerent action.

Provisions for shelter and feeding of the homeless and needy, "possibly in large numbers."

Operation of municipal lodging houses and municipal restaurants should be expanded, if necessary.

Care of Homeless

Communities with home registration bureaus should consider the need of what additional facilities may be needed for homeless civilian populations.

Communities should establish a "framework" for emergency housing and food distribution.

Pending legislative action, administrators McNutt asked that states and localities be prepared to provide "immediate cash assistance" for necessary food, clothing and equipment.

STUDENT COUNCILS ELECT ROBERT LYNCH

ANDERSON, Ind., Dec. 9 (U. P.).—Robert Lynch, Hammond, was named president of the Indiana Association of Student Councils at the close of the group's fifth annual convention here.

Others elected were Randall Smith, New Castle, first vice-president; Fred Bonnenberg, Anderson, second vice-president; Beverly Palmer, Bloomington, secretary, and Mary Grimm, Evansville Central High, treasurer.

The 300 delegates from schools in some 30 cities chose Hammond as the 1942 convention city.

50 State Plants Assisting in Placing Men Through Courses

In the last four months, 700 Indiana WPA workers have received jobs in private industry through the WPA's new in-plant training program and its vocational courses.

Under the in-plant program, WPA workers are put to work in private industry where their salaries are paid by the work-relief agency for a maximum of four weeks.

After that time, the employer wants to retain the employee, he hires him. About 95 per cent of the WPA workers who received in-plant training—learning a trade as they worked in the factory—got defense and non-defense jobs out of it, according to State WPA Administrator John K. Jennings.

About 50 plants in Indiana are co-operating with the program and 15 of them are located here in Marion County.

A typical firm is the Cooley Electric Manufacturing Co. of Indianapolis where W. E. Cooley interviews WPA men individually.

A typical worker employed by this method was Charles L. Brooks, 22, who was employed by Mr. Cooley after the four-week training period.

The in-plant training program is designed to serve a dual purpose, Mr. Jennings explained. It provides the manufacturer with labor trained in his own plant without cost to industry and it takes the WPA worker off the relief rolls.

Plants where men are assigned for training must be approved by WPA officials at Washington. Workers are then assigned to these industries when the WPA is notified that workers are needed.

SHRINE TO ADD 250 SATURDAY

Imperial Potentate Law To Attend Ceremonies; Parade Downtown.

The splendor of old Araby will blossom in Indianapolis Saturday when 250 candidates are initiated into the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine in Murat Temple.

Judge Dewey E. Myers, illustrious potentate of Murat, has announced that the imperial potentate of the Shrine in North America, Thomas C. Law, Atlanta, will be present at the ceremonies.

Downtown Parade

A downtown parade of Shriners, members of all the Murat uniformed units, will begin the session at 2 p. m. Marchers will include the band, the arabic patrol, gun squad, and oriental band. The bugle corps and chanters will accompany the neophytes, members of the Murat divan and imperial first and third degree sections of the initiation will be performed in the temple in the afternoon, after which there will be a Moslem feast in the dining room.

Candidates were feted last night in the temple by the Logansport Shrine Club with a minstrel show. John Regan and Jason Hollingshead acted as interlocutors, and Vernie Gray directed the singing.

Committees Selected

Committees to assist in the initiation Saturday have been appointed by potentate Myers. They are:

Henry W. Moeschke Jr., dramatic director, and Carl W. Lindemann, chief director of the ceremonial committee, of which the following are members: Albert D. Bremer, Charles Ehlers, Ed Friedrichs, E. M. Guinn, Dean Hall, Frank A. Holmes, Roy Holz, Hal Howe, J. A. Manning, Gordon B. Mess, Daniel F. Munn, Robert A. Puchner, Guy F. Rutherford, Clifford Richter, Joseph Waite, Ralph Wurz and W. Myron Yorker.

Other committees are made up of: Burford B. Miller, chief alchemist; Charles Apostol, chief of camel men; Charles F. Schlegel, stage manager; Fred C. Krauss, chairman, and George A. Livingston, vice chairman of the banquet committee, assisted by David Clark, Harry Gompf, Frank Lichtenberg, Dora Pummill, Otto Russell and Tracy Whitaker.

Lawrence L. Johnson is chairman of the safety committee, assisted by Fred C. Kennedy and Harry Gould. The reception committee is headed by Culver S. Miller. His assistants are F. N. Daniels, John C. Hobson, Clyde V. Montgomery, Edwin M. Steers, Walter J. Twinn and Oliver R. Wald. Vernon G. Sheller will be parade marshal.

Those Pots and Pans Given for Defense Are on Display in Museum of Modern Art

By JOSEPH L. MYLER United Press Staff Correspondent NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The pots, pans and gadgets which are about to die salute you, Donald M. Nelson of SPAB.

You and your Supply Priorities and Allocations Board may yet make them as extinct as the passenger pigeon, but you can never rob them of their final hour of glory.

Enshrined today at the Museum of Modern Art, they are receiving the plaudits of the multitude, perhaps for the last time before priorities make them one with the dodo.

Tastefully, even reverently, displayed in the same halls where the works of Picasso, Cezanne and Van Gogh once hung, all the entrancing items of the modern kitchen are shining bravely in the face of possible extinction, key pieces in the museum's "exhibition of useful objects."

The exhibits, which also include gardening tools, ash trays and bits of unbreakable beetleware for general use, were selected by the museum according to the degree of success with which their designers combined "respect for function, respect for material and respect for methods of production."

ONE OF THE more satisfactory items, esthetically speaking, was a shiny pair of poultry shears, beautifully mounted against a white background. This piece attracted the attention of a large woman in sables who paused before it.

"Fascinating, fascinating," she said.

Perhaps the most colorful objet d'art, however, was a super juicer of red and white plastic. Made of material vital to defense, this device for depriving oranges of their liquid content was obviously making its last bid for fame. According to the museum, its maker had combined the elements of artistic design "with imagination and skill."

A triumph of graceful, if simple, line was the butter curler, available for the nonce at most five-and-ten-cent stores.

Genuinely moving was the vegetable peeler and bean slicer with its swelling lines reminiscent of a Greek column. It might have stepped out of a painting by Giorgio De Chirico.

SIMILAR in inspiration was the ham rack—two metal loops, one tilted, held in place by four vertical metal spikes of different lengths. Braque never did anything better.

The most powerful piece in the exhibition was a spading fork of great severity of line and packed with connotations of fruitful toil. Esthetically less notable but equally interesting were the blow poke, which is a combination bellows and poker; a combination key ring and change holder, and a device which was at once a lead pencil and a night light.

Of great beauty were a pair of sandwich tongs of wild cherry, displayed on a sheepskin, and a magnolia humidor.

The piece de resistance of the exhibition, however, was a four-quart pitcher of stainless steel. It lacked just one thing to make it a perfect work of art—there was nothing in it.
