

Youngsters Make Rules

They Let Producers Know What They Like.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22 (U. P.).—Makers of serials for the younger trade do little worrying about censorship. The kids already have laid down their rules and the producers rarely violate them.

Weapons of the youngsters are not boycotts or polite printed denunciations, but the old-fashioned razzberry and Bronx cheer, delivered at first hand in the theater.

Ford Beebe, producing the "Gang Busters" serial at Universal, said he found out years ago just what could and what could not be included in pictures of that type.

Dictate Their Types

"Youngsters," he said, "are only part of the serial audience, but they dictate a hard and fast pattern for this type of entertainment.

"Basic among these imposed principles is what we loosely refer to as 'sex.' They don't want it in any form or under any subterfuge.

"Put a girl in scanties into a serial scene and you immediately get a chorus of whistles. Derisive, I suppose. Possibly appreciative in some precocious instances.

"Let the hero wrap his arms around the heroine and you have a similar situation. Drinking is taboo because the youngsters can't be counted on for a logical reaction."

A Storm Is Brewing

War Correspondent Don Ameche seems, at this point, to be facing intra-office rebellion by his teleplay, Joan Bennett, in the movie, "Confirm or Deny." The picture opens tomorrow at the Circle with "Cadet Girl," a romantic musical starring Carole Landis.

RECORDINGS

A BOMB FELL on Pearl Harbor. Flash. In a few seconds (about two) Tin Pan Alley was on the music racks with the first of the new crop of patriotic songs. Or so it seems.

Maybe the Navy wasn't ready, but Tin Pan Alley was. It has the market flooded with at least 10 notes for every bomb the Japs dropped. Perhaps there's no equal of "Over There" among the lot, although time will answer that, but at least there's plenty to choose from.

While others may sing of heroic deeds and daring escapades, Fats Waller (Bluebird) warbles gently of "Cash for Your Trash." It has the expected Waller touch (bouncy and funny) and the backside, "That Gets It, Mr. Joe," pays an apparent tribute to the Brown Bomber.

Freda Martin (Bluebird) assigns his quartet to "Fun to Be Free," while Glenn Miller's version (Bluebird) of that fateful Dec. 7 is "It Happened in Hawaii." Playing it as a march, Sammy Kaye (Victor) turns his talents to "Remember Pearl Harbor," most stirring of the current patriotic ditties. A double sided salute to the flag is dealt up by Frankie Masters (Okeh) with "Goodbye Mamma (I'm Off to Yokohama)," swinging of the new bunch, and "The Sun Will Soon Be Setting (for the Land of the Rising Sun)." Gene Krupa (Okeh) dedicates

Hit tunes

"I Said No"—Lillian Lane swings it with Claude Thornhill's orchestra (Columbia). It's a risqué ditty that winds up with an awful letdown. Jimmy Dorsey (Decca) gives it a new twist by turning the lyrics over to both Bob Eberly (male) and Helen O'Connell (female).

"I Don't Want to Walk With You"—Dinah Shore (Bluebird) makes you believe she really doesn't. Then she's "Fooled" on the backside. Artie Shaw (Victor) gives it the bounce treatment and then reports "Someone's Rocking My Dreamboat."

"The White Cliffs of Dover"—By a subdued symphonic arrangement, Jimmy Dorsey (Decca) gets across in a musical way what the song really means. Dick Todd (Bluebird) sings it simply and Glenn Miller's arrangement (Bluebird) sounds a bit canny.

"The Little Gypsy"—Ozzie Nelson (Bluebird) croons it to a little girl, but the platter doesn't come up to the Merry Macs' solid sendin' (Decca).

"The Shrine of Saint Cecilia"—One of the few war songs out with a genuine sentiment attached. The Andrews Sisters (Decca) make it plaintive and smooth. Eddy Duchin (Columbia) does it with the usual pianistic ripples, and it's good.

"I Found You in the Rain"—Chopin's Prelude No. 7 was the basis for this one. Skinnay Ennis (Victor) sings it in his usual out-of-breath manner (which appeals to more people than you'd imagine) and Xavier Cugat (Columbia) sets it to a beguine tempo, which manages to be nothing much at all. On the back side though, is "Chopin Nocturne No. 2 in E Flat," which manages to be a great deal more. It's soothing.

"Everything I Love"—Dinah Shore (Bluebird), not surprisingly, wins honors among versions by Tito Guizar, Victor (Victor), and Sammy Kaye (Victor).

"HIGHLY IRREGULAR" ADDS FOUR TO CAST

SURRENDERS 'SLOT' AND FACES ARREST

Keith Heartwell toted a slot machine to police headquarters yesterday and asked whether its operation would be legal.

Today he knew the answer. The slot machine was confiscated. Mr. Heartwell, 22, of 2061 Broadway, left the station under technical arrest, charged with possession of a slot machine.

Mere possession of a slot machine, Capt. Michael J. Hynes explained, is against the law.
