

HOUSEWIVES FACING
CALL TO WAR JOBS

WASHINGTON, April 29 (U. P.).—The U. S. government said today 6,500,000 American housewives "available for full-time employment" were the "most important of the sources of potential workers" for the nation's war industry labor supply.

IF YOU ARE baffled by slang words and phrases that have sprung up in the speech of America from the jazz age to the jitterbug era, there's a new book at Central library that may help you translate some of it into English.

For instance, if you don't know what "gazinkus" or "wofin-whiffle" mean, the new American Thesaurus of Slang will inform you that they merely are synonyms for any kind of mechanical device—in a word, "gadgets."

The thesaurus contains three full pages of slang words for intoxication. Just a few of them beginning with the letter "p" include: "Pifficated," "polluted," "plastered," "poddy," "polluted," "ploughed under," etc.

According to the slang dictionary, the feeling on the morning after is called "smozle wobbles."

Love and courtship come in for a large share of "jitterbug" phraseology. "Plant me a burner" is the way some slang-addicts say it when they ask for a kiss, according to the dictionary.

In courting his best girl, the slang-wise guy would say "jam a jitterdoll" and so on through a long list of words that never were in any dictionary before and perhaps will be outdated before the last edition of the new thesaurus is printed.

The publishers of the slang book said all the words and phrases were verified as authentic by "authorities" in the various fields of slang. They said Bing Crosby read proof on all the slang words in connection with music and an inmate of Ohio State prison checked all the words used in the underworld.

It was noted that the trend of slang in the 20th century has been toward shorter and more terse words.

YANKS TO 'BY-PASS' AUSSIE BLUE LAWS

MacARTHUR HEADQUARTERS, Australia, April 29 (U. P.).—American forces will "by-pass" Australia's Sunday blue laws and establish their own recreational centers for entertaining troops on week-ends and holidays, it was announced today.
