

SENATOR SLAPS ALL RATIONING

'One-Man Revolt' Started With 'Cotton Ed' Smith Defending Ruffles.

WASHINGTON, June 2 (U. P.).—Senator Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith (D. S. C.) today classified himself as a "conscientious objector" to all wartime rationing, whether of gasoline or trouser cuffs.

Why, they even tell me that now they're taking the ruffles off ladies' lingerie," Mr. Smith said. "Now who in the hell expects to win a war that way?" He announced his one-man revolt after a study of the gasoline, rubber, trouser cuff and ruffle shortages. "All these rationing orders are nothing in the world but Chinese puzzles," he said. "They've got the people so restless that they don't know what to do."

"Rationing of rubber and gasoline is the most horrible and irritating thing ever invented, and the American people just aren't going to stand for it, and I don't blame them."

"One of these days the American people will rise up and tell the government just what they are going to do. They are going to say: 'We're willing to fight a war, but we aren't going to fight one right here, so now you get rid of all those rationing orders.'"

Blames Inefficiency

When a reporter asked whether ship sinkings along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts were not responsible for some of the shortages producing the rationing orders, Mr. Smith exploded:

"We ought to be kicked for being so inefficient."

Mr. Smith, who recently informed a senate committee that the initials W.P.B. stand for "we pass the buck," proposed this solution:

"We ought to take back every bit of the power congress has delegated to these rascals in all these agencies."

"Them Days Is Gone"

"What were doing is just letting every branch of the government except the executive branch go to hell. The time used to be when congress passed the laws, the executive branch carried them out, and the judiciary decided if they were constitutional."

"But them days is gone forever. Now we haven't got but one branch, and the others are just puppets."

"This nation has a right to be led by men who believe in the right things instead of men who are so all-fired concerned about what is going to happen to their business after the war."

INDIANA LAW SCHOOL TO HOLD GRADUATION

The 46th annual graduation of the Indiana Law school will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in the ballroom of the Columbia club.

Dinner will precede exercises given by the law school's alumni association and a business session of the association with Judge Dan C. Flanagan of the Indiana Appellate court, presiding. The exercises will be conducted by James M. Ogden, school president. Governor Schricker will speak and George H. Kistler will represent his class as valedictorian.

Indianapolis men upon whom bachelor of laws degrees will be conferred are Loren M. Beasley, Gordon Clancy, Richard Park Davis, Mr. Kistler, George M. Mott, Edward T. Newcomb, Thurl G. Rhodes, William T. Sloope Jr. and Frank A. Symmes Jr.

Others are Myron Curzon, Chicago; Lloyd Little, Smithville, Ind.; and Edwin F. Harlan, Anderson, Ind., and Robert R. Girk, St. Paul, Minn., both in the armed services.

CITY SOCIAL WORKER ACCEPTS DAYTON JOB

Miss Verna Maude Sutton, Indianapolis social worker, will become secretary of the social service exchange of the Dayton, O., council of social agencies June 15.

Miss Sutton is now completing a special study for the Indianapolis community fund and the council of social agencies, dealing with the administrations of the Shuman Coleman home for unmarried mothers.

Rare Opportunity for MFRS. AGENT

Surviving Foundries and Industrial Firms in Indianapolis and Vicinity

An old reliable, highly rated manufacturer of an item used by all foundries, as well as most manufacturing plants—seeks to augment its present sales force through the addition of a Manufacturer's Agent in area stated.

The item in question is of superior construction; priced competitively; repeats regularly; pays an attractive commission on both initial and repeat orders—and is NOT faced by any raw material problems.

Accounts on protected basis. The Agent we seek must be firmly established, have evidence of a worthwhile clientele, and willing to exchange such evidence as will lead to local personal interview with one of our company executives.

To repeat—this is a rare opportunity for qualified Agent to substantially add to his permanent income through representing a firm he will be glad to be associated with.

In writing, please give all particulars about yourself, bona fide, and references, etc. Address Box 96, The Times.
