

PROF. RICHARD MILLS WILL ADDRESS CLUB

Prof. Richard Mills of the University of New Mexico psychology department will be guest speaker tomorrow night at the Indianapolis Motor Transportation club's annual dinner in the gold room of Hotel Washington at 6:30 o'clock.

New officers to be installed are Lawrence Berry, president; Harold Dardy, vice president; J. A. Garrett, secretary-treasurer, and Robert Dinnen, Louis Alexander and F. M. Jackson, directors.

Mayor-elect Tyndall and federal and state government officials identified with regulation and control of wartime motor transportation will sit at the speakers' table.

Gunner Sticks to Post in Burning Bomber, Dies to Save Pals

By GEORGE WELLER

Copyright, 1942, by The Indianapolis Times and The Chicago Daily News, Inc.

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA,

Dec. 1.—"I'll stay up here in case the Japs come at us again."

Those are the words which saved six men's lives but cost the life of the one who spoke them. They were the last words uttered by Sgt. Glenn Campbell and his valet, who were in a big American B-26 marauder bomber falling into the sea, stricken in a raid over Dill, in Portuguese Timor.

Campbell's last words buzzed in the interphone of his pilot, Capt. Charlie Hitchcock of Winchester, Ind. The plane was burning. It had been burning since they left Dill, when it was attacked by four zeros.

Campbell, who came from Franklin, Pa., was the top, or turret, gunner. When the four zeros came on from straight ahead, making a simultaneous attack to scatter the bombers' fire, Campbell had sent a raking fire from his machine gun which dissolved two zeros into balls of flame. But before his fire was opened upon the zeros, anti-aircraft had put four hits in his right engine.

The engine turned into a streamer of smoke. The flames crept along a wing. The engine was flooded with fire extinguisher liquid, but still the flames ate their way around the nose of the bomber.

In the cockpit, Navigator Lieut. Albert J. Lilkington of Mobile, Ala., fought the fire with a hand extinguisher. Still pursued by the zeros, the plane was now out over Arafura sea, limping along, its short, high-speed wings barely held aloft by a single engine.

Hitchcock, unable to see the instrument panel in the thick black smoke, twice opened the window and the flames suddenly licked up again. The controls were almost too hot to touch.

The zeros were still behind, watching for their chance. The other members of the crew, Sgt. Pershing A. Arbogast of Dunmore, W. Va.; Sgt. Joseph G. Schank of Throop, Pa., and Sgt. Samuel Miller of Prout Run, Pa., got out the rubber rafts and prepared for again: "I'll stay up here in case the Japs come at us again."

When the terrible moment came, when the plane hit the concrete-hard surface of the water and cracked open, the others got out but not Glenn Campbell. All were dazed and some were bleeding.

Yet before the plane sank, Hitchcock in what was an equal risk of being drowned with the plane, managed to dive underneath the fast-sinking fuselage, fight his way up through the doors into the turret and pull Campbell's unconscious body back down through this diving bell filled with water.

When they got him on a raft, they turned him over and saw that he was dead.

Rear-gunner Shank had the cord of his interphone cut by bullets right under his throat. Then came Campbell's words which no member of his squadron will ever forget again: "I'll stay up here in case the Japs come at us again."

When the terrible moment came, when the plane hit the concrete-hard surface of the water and cracked open, the others got out but not Glenn Campbell. All were dazed and some were bleeding.

Yet before the plane sank, Hitchcock in what was an equal risk of being drowned with the plane, managed to dive underneath the fast-sinking fuselage, fight his way up through the doors into the turret and pull Campbell's unconscious body back down through this diving bell filled with water.

When they got him on a raft, they turned him over and saw that he was dead.

Rear-gunner Shank had the cord of his interphone cut by bullets right under his throat. Then came Campbell's words which no member of his squadron will ever forget

GERMAN GENERALS BLAMED FOR WAR

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2 (U. P.).—Harold Beresford Butler, minister and director general of the British information service, believes that the German general staff and not Hitler was responsible for the present war.

He spoke at the 193d annual dinner of St. Andrew's society in the Union League Monday night.

"As far back as 1934," he said, "it was clearly evident that the general staff was the bulwark of Hitler's support, because it saw in Hitler the chance for the re-establishment of Prussian militarism."

"Hitler did not start this war any more than the Kaiser did the last one," he said.

Axis Telephone Numbers Gone

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 2 (U. P.).—The axis has lost out, as far as the new telephone directory is concerned.

There was an "Axis" exchange but it has been dropped in favor of "Cypress." The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. said clients requested the change.

REBEKAHS TO MEET

Past Noble Grands auxiliary of Progress Rebekah lodge, will hold a monthly meeting tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Hazel Gillis, 1301 N. Pershing ave. There will be a Christmas gift exchange.

A Popular-Price Gift Store for the Whole Family

AYRES DOWNSTAIRS STORE

Christmas Will Be Merrier . . . With Gifts Bought NOW

By Popular Demand . . . a Large Collection of Light, Bright

Duco Dots

$5.00

From our large collection of dresses with a lovely, gracious air . . . handsome duco dots on rayon remaine crepe, in one-piece styles and two-piece combinations. You may choose bright or monotone duco dots on blue, black, green or gray backgrounds. Sizes 18½ to 24½. From our collection of dresses for Misses and Juniors, neat gay prints and print combinations, rayon alpaca crepes, spun rayons, wool blends and bunny suedes in black, blue, green, aqua or rose. Sizes 9 to 15 and 12 to 20 in the group.

—Fashion Dresses, Downstairs at AYRES.

Giveable and Wearable

FRUIT OF THE LOOM Rayon Shirts

$1.39

Lovely to look at and delightful to wear . . . Fruit of the Loom shirts of rayon crepe. Good companions for suits, for slacks, for shirts. With long sleeves, convertible neckline. White, maize, blue. Sizes 34 to 40.

ALL-WOOL SWEATERS

$1.29

Wonderful and warm sweaters of all-wool, made to sell for much more, but marked at this low price because of slight irregularities almost impossible to distinguish. Attractive novelty weaves in all your favorite colors. Sizes 34 to 40 in the group.

—Sportswear, Downstairs at AYRES.

$3.00

$5.98

$3.98

$5.98

Candlelight Beauties

To Wrap Her in Glamour

$3.00 TO $5.98

Fireside flattery . . . personal dramatics. Robes with a lovely elegance, a pretty practicality . . . to lend beauty and luxury to her leisure hours. Choose candlelight candlewick, narrow-wale, chill-chasing corduroy, exquisite, shimmering rayon satin, or dainty quilted lawn sprinkled with flowers. In the group: wine, blue, peach, red, pink, or yellow; sizes 12 to 20 and 14 to 42.

—Downstairs at AYRES.

Candlelight Comfort Under Foot

Elegance Starred With Leisure After Dark

$1.49 $1.85 $1.49 $1.35

Cross strap slipper dashed with exquisite embroidery. It has an open toe, a platform sole, a wedge heel. Blue or burgundy rayon crepe.

Quilting design embroidered on rayon crepe. With open toe, a wedge heel, and a platform sole. Pink, royal or light blue, burgundy.

Fur-warm and cream-rich rayon velvet slipper with large plush cuffs, and a low leather heel. Royal blue or red.

D'Orsay style slipper in rayon crepe, with an open toe, wedge heel, soft leather platform sole. Topped with a neat frivolous bow.