WORLD HEARS FOR MESSAGE

Allied Nations Jubilant;
Axis Fills Air With Distortions.

President Roosevelt's state of the union address to congress was received with almost unanimous approval in the United States, with jubilation in the countries of our allies, because of its revelations of mounting American war strength, and with amazing misinterpretations and distortions in the countries of our enemies.

A summary of world reaction follows:

Congress
REPUBLICANS: House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr.: "It is very encouraging to realize that we have passed from the defensive to the offensive." Senator Robert A. Taft: "It was conciliatory, and that ought to add to unity and create no dissension." Senator Warren R. Austin: "It was a great speech which will go down in history." Senate Minority Leader Charles McNary: "It was an excellent review of our war production and efforts based on a faith in ultimate victory."

DEMOCRATS: House Speaker Sam Rayburn: "It was a splendid report." Senator Burton K. Wheeler: "It was a very clever political speech." Senator Homer T. Bone: "I particularly liked the president's approach to the solution of post-war economic problems." Rep. Wright Patman: "The best speech the president has ever delivered before congress."

The Allied World
GREAT BRITAIN: The British Broadcasting Corp. broadcast the speech in 26 languages and dined hourly (beamed for Germany) the key sentence—"Wir werden zueinander kommen" (We will strike hard). London newspapers used rare superlatives like "a magnificent message" and "genuinely inspiring." The Daily Herald called the statement that the United States could not remain an island in the post-war world one of "great courage in the face of an isolationist renascence."

Britons reviewed the speech in club and pub, omnibus and lorry and said, "It won't be long now before those rattle blokes in Berlin are going to get a proper taste of their own medicine."

LATIN-AMERICAN ALLIES: Mexico, Brazil and Cuba were lavish in their praise. Press comment in neutral Latin countries ranged from the approving to the fervent. The pro-democratic La Prensa of Buenos Aires said: "The president's voice vibrated firmly, loudly and clearly with something resembling a prophetic trumpet."

The Enemy World
The axis radios, led by the German radio, began at once the task of misrepresenting, misinterpreting and generally tearing down Mr. Roosevelt's speech for their domestic listeners and for the oppressed in occupied countries.

The Nazi thesis was: Mr. Roosevelt revealed an intention to concentrate mostly on air attacks, indicating that America had realized "after their setbacks in North Africa and in the Pacific that American naval or land actions have not the slightest chance of success."

The Italian thesis was: His speech was one of "inflated, boastful hopes." He "sees already the United States dominating the whole world."

The newspaper Asahi of Tokyo found the president's message without "facts or convincing arguments. The message of a man who is driving his people still further to war."

What? A Curfew On Honeymoons

QUINCY, Mass., Jan. 8 (U. P.).—An unidentified man called police headquarters today and asked Lieut. William F. McIntyre if he would be stopped for driving his automobile after the noon curfew on nonessential driving.

McIntyre said he had received no orders on the matter and asked whether the man was going on a business or pleasure trip.

"Well," came the reply, "I don't exactly know. I'm going on my honeymoon."
