

TEACHER GROUP ASKS MORE PAY

Federation Requests $300 Average Raises in Proposed Scale.

The Indianapolis school board today considered a proposal by the Federation of Indianapolis Public School Teachers which would give the city's 2000 teachers annual salary increases averaging around $300 apiece.

New rates proposed by the federation before the board yesterday would set the minimum salary for teachers with bachelors' or masters' degrees at $1500 a year. The present schedule calls for a minimum of $1250 regardless of degrees.

The federation schedule, designed to replace the schedule adopted in 1938 and adjusted occasionally since, was presented to the board by Raphael W. Wolfe, chairman of the federation's salary committee.

Conforms to Law
Mr. Wolfe told the board the plan should go into effect next September, conforming with effective dates of new teacher salary laws passed by the 1943 general assembly. Minimum salaries of $125 a month for 10 months for teachers without degrees and $150 a month for teachers with degrees also would be in conformance with new state laws.

Estimated gross cost of the proposed salary increases, according to federation figures, would be $665,585, but additional revenues resulting from increased tax valuations and an increase in amount of tuition support from the state were expected to reduce the net increased cost to around $350,000.

Even so, Mr. Wolfe told the board, the school tax rate would be lower than that for 1942.

In urging the adoption of the new salary schedule, the federation's salary committee pointed out that the starting pay for a teacher with a master's degree still would be $900 a year less than the starting pay of a city policeman or fireman who will receive $2400 annually for 1944 and '45.

The law requires that if a new salary schedule is to be adopted on or before May 1.

'Khaki-Kapers' Preview Tonight

There are soldiers, too, in the soldier comedy production, "Khaki-Kapers." These four girls, all from Indianapolis, will do a specialty military dance and will form one-half of the chorus line in several other dance numbers. They are (left to right) Rosalyn Ludwig, 615 Madison ave.; Joan Degischer, 843 Bosart ave.; Marsha Ettinger, 5790 E. Michigan st.; and Gloria Morris, 5345 E. Washington st.

Public to See Ft. Harrison Musical Comedy Tomorrow

"Khaki-Kapers," Ft. Harrison's first attempt at a musical comedy, will be presented tonight at a preview for a limited audience at the English theater.

The production, typical of a soldier's dream of what army life should be, will be given again Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. A cast of 60 persons, includes young women from Indianapolis. Curtain time for each performance will be 8:30 p. m.

Sgt. Carl Baker, producer and co-director with Pvt. Jack Good, have met all incoming trains for soldier talent and have formed a show of comedy, dancing and music. Soldiers Baker and Good along with Corp. Albert Hodges, Sgt. Jack Goldie, Sgt. Vincent Daniels, Pvt. Joe Vira, Billy Tryall, Francis Carpenter and Bob Martinez have leading male roles. Miss Lynne Shore of Indianapolis, of the Civic theater, has been cast in several scenes. Miss Shirley Stonebraker, 16-year-old Ben Davis high school student, will do a ballet dance. Two other representatives of the same high school are the Misses Bernadine Cook and Delores Blacker, who will do a specialty dance number. They are known professionally as "Bernadine and Bernadette."

Corp. Don Ewell has written original orchestrations for the finance replacement orchestra which will play in the pit. Master Sgt. Earl Wellhaven will direct. Pvt. Jack Porter, former continuity writer for a local radio station, has written the narration for "Khaki-Kapers" and has dialogued one scene, "Guadalcanal." The entire proceeds will go to the athletic and recreation fund at Ft. Harrison.

Appraisers Plan 'Quiz' Program

IT WILL BE "razzberries" instead of roast, because of rationing, at the dinner meeting of the Society of Residential Appraisers at the Columbia club at 6 o'clock tonight.

The "Nail Counters" will battle it out with the "Form Fillers" in an "Information Please" quiz session which will take the place of after dinner speaking.

Wendell M. Hicks, vice president, said these designations for members of the competing teams were chosen because they constitute the greatest insults which can be hurled at any appraiser. "Professor Askem" will preside over the quiz.

LIEUT. GASTINEAU DIES OF GUN WOUND

The body of Lieut. James Gastineau, 23, was found today in an apartment in the basement of the home of his stepfather and his mother, Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Williams, 3837 Central ave.

There were shotgun wounds in his breast and his face. When his mother awakened this morning she noticed blood in the hallway. She followed the trail down the stairs, through the kitchen, into the basement and to the excavation for cellar expansion.

There she found the body of her son, clad in pajamas and the weapon at his feet.

A note was found in the lieutenant's bedroom, addressed to his parents. Lieut. Gastineau, who has been in the army 15 months, suffered a breakdown four months ago and had been home on sick leave for a month from Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., where he is in a tank division. He graduated from Tech High school, took an Indiana university extension course and engaged in the insurance business before entering the army.

Besides his mother and stepfather, he is survived by a sister, Thelma Louise; a half-brother, Roland Williams; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Magiuder.

STATE AGENTS FOR RATIONING NAMED

Three officials of the state board of accounts have been designated by Governor Schricker in an executive order as agents for the state to open and operate ration accounts for all state institutions.

The are Otto K. Jensen, chief examiner, and Ross P. Freeman and Edward A. Cooper, deputy examiners. The governor also designated the Indiana National bank as the agency in which the ration accounts are to be kept.

THE BIG SHOW STARTS NORTH

You'll Be Seeing the Circus On the Same Old Lot; It's Morale Builder.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 31 (U. P.).—The "greatest show on earth," started north from winter quarters today to keep a date with thousands of kids and grown-ups who each year thrill to the "most gigantic spectacle of the universe."

And the 1943 edition of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus will be back at the same old lot in your home town with full consent of the office of defense transportation.

Government officials decided that the big show was too important as morale builder to keep out of circulation for the duration. The big top this year has gone old-fashioned. Nostalgic touches of the circus of past days have replaced the modernistic trimmings. The original six-pole type tent has been resurrected and subdued pastel colors have given way to the brilliant red and gold displayed so profusely in the old days.

Elephants as Usual

But the elephants, the clowns and all the freaks will be back as usual. Rationing is expected to cause little difficulty. Meat-eating animals will be fed horsemeat.

The circus opens at New York's Madison Square Garden April 9 with the opening under canvas scheduled at Philadelphia on May 31. Longer stops will be made in principal cities this year because of transportation difficulties. This year the route will be cut to 8000 miles and will include about 30 cities.

Pets Can Live Without Liver, Head of Humane Group Says

NEW YORK, March 31 (U. P.).—The American Humane association today offered some "how to live without liver" advice for cats and dogs who may be worried about meat rationing and high point values.

Sydney H. Coleman, president of the association and executive vice president of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, has been getting panicky because of help from pet owners whose dogs have "always been fed on good beef" or whose cats are fussy about the brand of salmon they are served. One woman asked if she couldn't get extra ration points for her pet.

Mr. Coleman, who met the other day with association executives from Chicago, Boston, Albany, Hartford, and Milwaukee, drew up with them a wartime non-rationed diet for pets which he believes will take care of any dog or cat without deficiency.

Commercial dried dog foods provide a "sustaining diet," the association found, and can be supplemented by moistening with pot liquors, or water from cooked vegetables mixed with table scraps and enriched with dish scrapings or discolored and unsalvagable fats. Meat trimmings, scraps, large bones, spleens, lungs, entrails, of fish and fowl, unusable portions of rabbits and poultry and horse meat

HEIRESS FREED FROM CAPTORS

Chase Follows Kidnaping Of Wealthy Chicago Girl.

CHICAGO, March 31 (U. P.).—Miss Helen Priebe, 18, Lake Forest heiress, was kidnaped by five bandits early today and held captive for an hour in a careening automobile pursued by 25 police squad cars through Chicago's north side and loop district.

Her two escorts—Thomas Stanton Armour, 18, grand nephew of the late Ogden Armour, the meat packer, and Kent Clow Jr., son of a wealthy plumbing supply manufacturer—were robbed of $30 each and released shortly after the bandits forced Armour's car to the curb on the outskirts of Chicago. Three of the bandits later were captured.

The three Lake Forest youths were returning from a party in the loop district when the holdup occurred. Young Armour said he noticed that their car was being followed, but he did not become alarmed until he turned into the Old Mill road in Lake Forest. He tried to speed up, but the other machine forced him to the curb.

"Pull over. This is a stickup," Armour quoted one of the men as saying.

Inherited Large Estate

After robbing Armour and Clow, the bandits forced Clow into the bandit machine while three of the men remained with him. Armour was forced from the wheel of his car by one man while the other sat behind with Miss Priebe, the daughter of a wholesale poultry dealer and heiress to the bulk of an $800,000 estate left by her grandmother, Mrs. Emily Rice.

Armour and Clow were released at Sheridan road and Pratt where Armour pleaded for the release of the girl.

"We'll take care of her," one bandit said. A citywide alarm was broadcast. The two cars remained together until police intercepted them in the loop. The car with Miss Priebe sped up and the other machine and its three bandit occupants was captured. Detective squads caught up with the girl and her two captives at an intersection south of the loop. The detectives opened fire on the bandit machine.

After about a two-mile chase, the bandits slowed up and released the girl. Then they sped on.

'Look, Honey . . . His Fine Was $6

CLARENCE SMITH, 142 Bright st., stepped up before Judge John Niblack in Municipal court today confident that his story would win acquittal on a charge of driving 39 m. p. h. at 32d and Meridian sts.

"I was driving along with my girl friend," he said. "I saw those policemen with the stop watches on me. I turned to her and said 'Look, honey, look at those policemen,' and when she turned to look her foot slipped over on mine, pushed down the accelerator and my car shot forward. 'Look, honey,' I said, 'you've caused me to be arrested.'"

The judge got a chuckle. Smith got a $6 fine.

SOFT COAL WAGE MEET RECESSED

Operators Hear Lewis' 22 UMW Proposals; Convene Friday.

NEW YORK, March 31 (U. P.).—Operators from the anthracite region of northern Pennsylvania and the United Mine Workers representatives considering a new wage contract adjourned today until 1:30 p. m. Friday, after John L. Lewis, U. M. W. president, had outlined the union's 22 proposals.

The conferees adopted a resolution approving a bill now pending in the Pennsylvania legislature which would provide for state inspection of all "coal holes" where two or more men are working. The act is aimed at control of so-called wildcat mines.

Maj. W. W. Inglis, president of the Glen Alden Coal Co., Scranton, Pa., was named permanent chairman of the bargaining sessions.

Want $2 Raise

Anthracite miners in northeastern Pennsylvania are asking a $2-a-day pay increase and other benefits also demanded for the bituminous region.

It was learned that Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the U. S. conciliation service, who has made himself available to both negotiating groups, returned to Washington last night. It was said his trip was made "to report and be enlightened" the latter apparently referring to White House reaction to the progress so far made by the sub-committees.

Bombardiers Blame Misses On the Gremlin-Like Bombii

WASHINGTON, March 31 (U. P.).—"Bombii"—demons akin to the R. A. F.'s gremlins—are now harassing American bombardiers.

A complete history of the bombii and warnings against their tactics are contained in a hand-book given cadet bombardiers reporting to the San Angelo army air base in Texas.

Spawmed by Satan, bombii use bomb shackles for teething rings, the booklet states.

They understand the mechanism of the famous secret bombight, and can ride falling bombs, make them turn handspins in the air, or guide them to one side of the target.

Can 'Push' Target

"Bombii are divided into air crews and ground crews," the booklet declares.

"A prime function of the ground crew," cadets say, "is to move the target as soon as the cadet bomhardier has released his bomb. Groups of the little demons can push a 200-foot target as much as 50 yards in a few seconds."

The ground crews also fitch vital mathematical tables from the bombardier's "greenhouse" before the plane takes off. At 15,000 feet, he can't find his charts.

Pilots Skeptical
In the air some bombii carry "widgets." A widget is a tool which is a cross between a Boy Scout knife and a machine shop, including pencil and eraser.

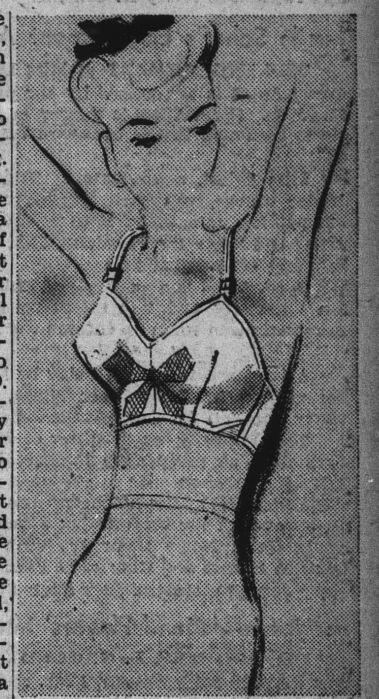

As the bombardier computes his date, the bombii erases his figures and substitutes others, and the bombs land half a mile from the target.

The booklet explains that pilots are unable to perceive bombii and don't believe in them and, therefore, are unsympathetic when bombardiers complain that bombii caused them to miss the target.

The woman with an average size bustline often, and erroneously, thinks she has no figure problem at all. It's true that it takes little to solve that problem, but that little is very important. It is not so much a question of the right brassiere as it is of the proper fitting. Most women, knowing their bustline proportions are average, give little thought to the selection of a brassiere. They buy a size 34—if that's their size—and think that everything is all right, that their figure will be perfectly beautiful and normal-looking. As a matter of fact, the size 34 is only the beginning—because brassieres also come in depth sizes, A, B, C or D. Now a woman buys just any brassiere size 34, doesn't bother to try it on, and when she starts to wear it finds it is often too big or too little, and that her entire silhouette doesn't look at all the way it should. If it is too big, she had too much brassiere for her figure. . . . too much material that she doesn't need and that gives the dowdy appearance of badly-placed, unnecessary padding. If the brassiere is too small it binds the figure and the bustline bulges out at the top (which was considered a good line in Napoleonic fashions but certainly isn't now) and it also bulges out at the bottom of the brassiere, giving her a bad roll just above the waistline.

The best way to be sure you have the proper brassiere for your average size bustline is to try it on before you buy it. Then you can see in a minute whether it is right for you. And these are the things to look for before you even think of trying it on. It must be a B cup size which means it has the proper amount of depth for the average bustline. It must be wide enough around the entire figure so that it fits easily but without any sloppiness; controls without discomfort. And its material must be firm enough to support firm tissues or tissues that may be broken down, in a good uplift line; to mould the bustline into a young contour. One of the best ways we have found to fit the average size bustline is with the Ball brassiere sketched here. It is a B cup size, therefore the right depth. It has an adjustable back so that you can fasten it where it will fit you best (the adjustable back also allows for shrinkage). It is of fine, firm broadcloth that uplifts beautifully. It has adjustable, rolled and padded shoulder straps that will not curl up; will not cut into the shoulders. It is 1.00. Other Ball brassieres up to 5.00.

If the proper fit for an average size bustline is your problem, won't you come in and let us help you solve it?

That Extra Something!

...You can spot it every time

"SPOTLIGHT Bands", the radio program broadcast over Blue Network every week night for Coca-Cola, features the nation's favorite name bands. Their names mean something because their bands have something extra to offer. Coca-Cola got where it is by offering something that more than quenches thirst. It brings a delightful after-sense of refreshment, too.

In ice-cold Coca-Cola you find quality you count on. You find delicious taste that sets it apart. You find refreshment that goes into energy. Anybody can make a soft drink, but only The Coca-Cola Company makes Coca-Cola. The only thing like Coca-Cola is Coca-Cola, itself.

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called Coke. Both mean the same thing... "coming from a single source, and well known to the community."

Lines are put in, stages fixed, loudspeakers hooked up, and rehearsal begins. Soon, the boys in uniform will hear their favorite band in person just as their families will on their home radios.

The best is always the better buy!
