

TYNDALL TO SPEAK
AT OCD CONFERENCE

If You Have Ration Worries Look to Weeds—Many Are Tasty

By Science Service

Leaders in the city's civilian defense program will meet at 8 p.m. tonight to hear a talk by Mayor Tyndall and receive instructions from Walter Holt, chief instructor.

The meeting will be in the offices of Thomson and McKinnon on the second floor of the Circle Tower building. Zone and district coordinators and their staffs, Chief of Police Clifford Becker and his assistants, Fire Chief Harry H. Fuller and his aids, and Maj. Herbert Fletcher, chief air raid warden and his assistants will attend.

Harry E. Yockey, civilian defense director, will lead the meeting, and colors will be presented by Gilen Findley, chief messenger. Russell Paxton will lead the singing.

Many wild plants that can be used for food grow along the roads and in the woods—and they require no ration points. Some grow into our lawns and gardens where, because they are considered "just weeds," their food value is frequently overlooked, states Eva L. Gordon in a new publication on wild foods by the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell.

Boiling removes the sting of the stinging nettle (nettle) leaves which are used in soups.

Curly dock and garden sorrel leaves may be used separately or combined to make a delicious green salad. Fresh leaves of summer mustard or burdock are also good when used in this manner. Miss Gordon recommends dandelion leaves which have been tossed with French dressing and garnished with slices of hard-boiled egg and cooked beets.

Leaves and stems of the common chickweed or lamb's quarters may be cooked like spinach. Purslane, which can be cooked alone or with other greens, has long been considered a delicacy in many lands.

Boiling removes the sting of the stinging nettle (nettle) leaves which are used in soups.

Jerusalem artichoke, a late-season plant, is cultivated for present-day markets, but may also be found wild. The tubers of this perennial sunflower are delicious raw, as relish, or in a salad. They may be boiled or baked like potatoes.

Young milkweed stalks a few inches high can be gathered, cooked and ground, can be used as a coffee substitute.

Many of the summer and autumn fruits which we buy in the market grow wild, such as blueberries, huckleberries, wild raspberries and blackberries.

Leaves of the wild strawberry, sweetfern, or spicebush, when dried, may be used for making tea. Miss Gordon also suggests that blackbirch twigs or bark of the roots may be used as a tea substitute, although she admits that none of these are as satisfying as the real thing.

Fully aware of the danger which a little knowledge carries, Miss Gordon constantly repeats this warning: "To be safe, consult notes on each wild plant before using it."

CHINESE, JAPS NEAR
SCUFFLE OVER FLAG

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8 (U.P.)

—Forty-seven Chinese sailors were lodged in the Alameda county jail today while authorities investigated a near-riot between the sailors and 172 interned Japanese at the Sharp Park immigration detention camp, precipitated by the raising of a Chinese flag.

A spokesman for the sailors, interested for "jumping ship," said they had raised the flag and exhibited posters yesterday to celebrate the sixth anniversary of Japan's attack upon China.

The Japanese, mostly from Hawaii and held at the camp on presidential warrant, gathered in a menacing crowd, the Chinese said.
