

Democrats, Casting Their Eyes Toward '44 Election, Urge Roosevelt to Devote More Attention to Politics

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Times Special Writer

WASHINGTON, July 19.—President Roosevelt is being urged to devote more attention to the domestic political situation, looking to next year's elections.

Reports from party scouts in the field are gloomy, particularly from the Midwest and Far West.

Perhaps these reports acquire a darker hue than the circumstances justify because the party organization leaders who submit them are in a disgruntled and discontented mood, which traces to the feeling they are being ignored by the New Deal.

It is these state and local party leaders to whom Mr. Roosevelt's attention is being directed, for they will become increasingly important as the 1944 elections approach.

Every ounce of organizational strength will be needed next year, with every precinct worker at his post to help get out the vote.

From an organization standpoint, the Democratic party is not nearly in such good shape as four years ago, for two reasons: One, the departure of James A. Farley who had an efficient and loyal organization throughout the country, and, second, the capture by Republicans in the interim of so many state governments formerly controlled by Democrats.

Republicans now have a majority of governors outside of the South. The governors are equally divided, 24 Democrats, 24 Republicans, throughout the country, and in Indiana the state administration is Republican below the governor, who is a Democrat.

The inside political command here is divided right now in an unhealthy schism between those who want to pay more heed to the regular organization leaders back in the hinterlands in making plans for 1944 and the strictly New Deal group, headed by Harry L. Hopkins, who is accused of ignoring the regular organization and trying to build up his own organization of dyed-in-the-wool New Dealers.

Mr. Roosevelt, himself, thus far does not seem to have become much interested, one way or the other, though emissaries from the organization have tried to lay their case before him.

The latter insist that the regular organization leaders can be counted upon to go along for a fourth term and to remain loyal to the President. After all, the Democratic party is their bread and meat, so to speak, and when that is at stake, the politicians will not argue too much about party policy and philosophy.

But Mr. Hopkins apparently does not feel quite sure of this. He wants his own crew aboard the 1944 ship. He is aware of the continued activity of Mr. Farley, who still has a substantial following among the regular organization leaders.

And, on two occasions in recent weeks, he has come down to Washington and sat down with a group of conservative senators in the interest of checking a fourth-term nomination.

It may be indicative of some awakening curiosity in the President that he called in for a lengthy conference this week Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, who sat in both of the Farley meetings and was host at the first of them.
