

'I Saw Naples' Flaming Fury From Peaceful Capri Cafe'

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT
United Press Staff Correspondent

CAURI, Sept. 25 (Delayed).—Lunching on spotless linen with a cool bottle of vermouth, I watched Naples burn today, a bright flame 20 miles away across Naples bay over which rose a black pillar of smoke.

In Capri, where not a single bomb has fallen, a starch-shirted waiter served me at a $25-a-day resort hotel. The notes of a violin came to the ear.

Just across the water on the mainland, allied troops are locked in the battle for Naples. The sky flashes with big guns of American and British cruisers blasting the Germans.

Three huge fires are flaming in Naples. There had been two big raids by American planes, while the Germans had demolished docks, warehouses, power plants and factories.

An American officer waves toward well-dressed Italian women and a few Italian officers chatting over lunch and said, "You must be introduced to them."

I HAVE JUST returned from viewing the Salerno beaches, still littered with smashed guns and smoldering buildings.

Salerno bay was thick with oil, debris, ammunition boxes, electric fixtures, tires and life jackets. Along the coast south of Naples there were at least a half dozen fires and overhead parachute flares were just dropping from bombers—allied or German.

Two mighty red scars cut across the face of the steep hills from which the Germans had been shelling the beaches—brush fires.

Back at the hotel, an officer told about a trip he had taken into Salerno just after the Germans were driven out. He got into a deserted hotel and sat on a balcony listening to the 16-inch shells from the battleship.

A party of British soldiers was running along the beach to help unload a landing craft. A mortar shell landed among them, and that was the end of them.

"The Germans were mighty accurate," he said.

War-time Living

Extra Shoe Stamp Is Easy To Obtain—If You Rate It

By ANN STEVICK
Times Special Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Little Eva will not go barefoot in the snow for want of a shoe ration stamp. The OPA points out that getting a special shoe stamp is very simple.

You can get the form from your local ration board, by mail if you wish. The applicant must have no more than one pair of shoes in wearable or repairable condition. The shoes requested must be for occupational or general wear, not merely for keeping up appearances.

Children who have outgrown their shoes will thus be eligible for shoes for general wear, but not for party shoes. In order for anyone to be eligible for a special shoe stamp, all stamps in possession of anyone in his family group must have been spent.

Butter Problem

A step toward saving more cream for butter has been made by the war food administration in an amended food order. Heavy cream has been getting away, through the practice of adding a stabilizer and putting it on the market under a brand-name. So you won't see any more of those packages of whipped cream.

There has been a good deal of clamor to get WFA to decrease its take of butter for the armed services in order to increase the civilian supply. WFA points out that although it plans to decrease buying for the armed services, this will not create a surplus of butter on the civilian market. The peak season of butter production is over and is now declining sharply. Hence the four-point rise.

Hand-Me-Down Salvage

A new source of salvage is being considered by WPB. Before long you may be asked to review your closet and donate discarded clothing to salvage. It will be used for relief when it is practical, if not, for industrial uses. In the meantime, don't throw your out-of-season clothes away. The textile shortage is such that there will be some use for them.

Synthetic Scent

Artificially made synthetic rubber will soon be released for girdles, suspenders and such essential items. The synthetic rubber is now available in sufficient supply. The problem that agitates experts is the peculiar smell of the synthetic rubber.

Odds and Ends

The British have found it necessary to increase production of baby carriages, too. . . . Before you start your furnace, the vigorous use of a flue-brush, and the stopping of air leaks with insulating cement will help a lot in saving fuel. . . . A new "friction-motor" perfected in the department of commerce will test whether electric-lining fabrics will creep.

JUDGE WARNS OF ARREST METHOD

Cox Says Illegal Action Must Stop or There Will Be Trouble.

The police department was warned by Judge Earl R. Cox of Circuit court yesterday that unless illegal arrests are stopped "some one is going to get into some serious trouble."

The judge's warning followed a hearing on an 18-year-old girl's habeas corpus petition, seeking her release from the city isolation hospital.

"Police had no right to arrest this girl at all," Judge Cox said. "There is a legal way to get persons suspected of having venereal disease into the isolation hospital but the method used in this case was illegal and police officers should know better."

Urges Co-operation

The judge lauded as "wonderful work" the city health department's program for suppression of venereal disease and urged 100 per cent co-operation on the part of the public with Dr. Norman Beatty, superintendent of the isolation hospital.

"But these things have to be done legally or some one is going to get into some serious trouble," he said.

Patrolman Charles Viles testified that a police matron asked him to go to the girl's home and arrest her on a story told by another girl.

Made Arrest

"I arrested her and took her to the police station and stated her on a charge of vagrancy," the patrolman testified.

"You know that's not right," said Judge Cox. "You couldn't legally charge that girl with vagrancy and you know it. In the first place your information for the arrest was pretty flimsy."

The girl testified that she never had been infected with a venereal disease and that tests at the hospital showed that she was free of disease.

Tests Negative

Dr. Beatty testified that several tests showed the girl had no disease but that later tests revealed she had an infection and she was detained for further treatment.

"If I have a venereal disease now I got it at the hospital where I had to live in the same rooms with dozens of girls who were infected," the girl testified.

Judge Cox ordered that the girl be examined again by a physician appointed by the court.

"If she is not infected she can go home," Judge Cox said.

His ruling on the habeas corpus petition was withheld pending further testimony of physicians.

Allison Men Win

Two Allison men were given the Manly award yesterday at Los Angeles, by the Society of Automotive Engineers for their article on correlating ground and air performance of aircraft engine oil systems.

The medal, first to be presented since 1939, was awarded Harry C. Marcher and John Dolan, Mr. Dolan, 824 E. 36th st., is Allison development project engineer and Mr. Marcher, 887 N. Bolton ave., is installation engineer.

Truck Horses Provide Local Version of Beer Barrel Polka

The Gold Medal beer horses went berserk (excuse it).

The two big, sleek horses which draw the Indianapolis Brewing Co. wagon from tavern to tavern in the downtown area, were halted yesterday in front of the Moose club, 135 N. Delaware st., while Walter Davenport, 608 N. LaSalle st., was delivering suds to the club.

The team was frightened by traffic and teed off. As they galloped crazily up Delaware st., the wagon sidestepped at least four automobiles. Making a turn at the three-way intersection of Delaware and New York sts. and Massachusetts ave. one of the horses fell down. As his partner dragged him around the corner, the wagon careened against a fire alarm box.

That wrecked the wagon, put the fire alarm box out of commission and sent 15 barrels of beer to rolling.

By that time rescue squads arrived. Bruised horses were under control. The fire alarm box was repaired and 15 barrels of beer were loaded back on the wagon for delivery to the thirsty.

JANERTS TO MARK 55TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Janert Sr., early South side residents and pioneer meat packers, will celebrate their 55th wedding anniversary tomorrow with open house from 2 to 5 p. m. at their home, 923 Tabor st.

The Janerts' children will give a dinner at noon at the old Janert home in front of the meat company at 1445 Union st. Attending will be Herman and Albert Janert Jr., who are carrying on their father's business; Otto Janert, who is in his own meat business, and Mrs. Emma Brink, six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Mr. Janert came to Indianapolis from Germany 60 years ago and entered the sausage manufacturing business. His is said to be the first company in the country to make boiled and baked ham. Mr. Janert has been influential in getting civic improvements for the South side.

'Soapy' Cigarettes Are Yule Danger

WHEN YOU'RE SENDING a Christmas package to one of the service men overseas, don't include soap if your package also contains candy and cigarettes.

That's the advice of Albert C. Fritz, secretary of the Indianapolis Association of Druggists.

When candy and cigarettes are shipped in the same package with soap or any other scented material, he said, both the candy and cigarettes take on the taste and smell of the soap.

PREDICTS LESS DAIRY PRODUCTS

Dairyman Says Restriction To Effect City by Oct. 15.

Sale of milk and dairy products probably will be restricted in Indianapolis by Oct. 15 under a national plan to provide more lease-lend supplies, Carl Hedges, general manager of the Indiana Dairymen's Co-Operative, Inc., said today.

The restriction will be made through a system of dealer quotas based on June deliveries and was developed by the war food administration. Mr. Hedges just returned from Washington where he was informed of the WFA plan for 11 cities of at least 100,000 population.

Mr. Hedges said the cause of the restrictions was "failure of the government to provide means whereby dairy farmers could pay advancing production costs," citing a report of the co-operative dairy industry's national organization.

MP INSTRUCTOR DIES IN JEEP ACCIDENT

Lt. John Scanlon, an instructor of auxiliary military police attached to the local branch of the fifth service command, was killed today in a jeep accident between Bloomington and Columbus.

Officials at the sub-station here to which he was attached had no details of the accident. They said he was en route to Columbus to conduct a class.

Lt. Scanlon was 24 and was from Bloomfield, N. J.

HULL COLUMBUS POSTMASTER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—The senate today unanimously confirmed the appointment of Charles E. Hull as postmaster at Columbus, Ind.

The function of the skin is to protect the body and its contents. It insulates against heat and cold, controls the temperature of the body by radiation, sets up signals of injury through the nerves it contains, and helps to free the body from germs. The skin is remarkably elastic, and stretches too far, the inner layer breaks, and heals with scar tissue.

Most boys and girls in adolescence have some difficulty with pimples and blackheads. Careful habits of cleanliness, good diet, and normal glandular adjustment with time do away with the possibility of permanent marring for the majority of people.

Wrinkles inevitably appear with the onset of age. The skin becomes progressively thin, inelastic, and wrinkled, and nothing can effectively be done about this natural change. Plastic surgery or face-lifting is often followed by even more pronounced wrinkling. Older people are prone to carelessness about cleanliness, and since wrinkles are a good place for infection to form, they should be taken into consideration in daily cleansing.

Birthmarks and moles present special problems, best referred to the physician. Moles are seldom dangerous, except when susceptible to constant irritation, and birthmarks are usually caused by abnormalities of blood vessels under the skin, and are best treated in infancy. Fortunately, excellent preparations have been devised for concealing disfiguring blemishes, and much mental anguish has been put to an end by their use. Superfluous hair is properly removed by the use of the electrolytic needle, a few hairs at a time, and operated by a trained physician for the ordinary pulling out of hairs makes a good entrance place for infection.

Sunbaths of reasonable duration do no harm, and some good—though blonds and redheads must be particularly cautious about them. Real burning can cause serious damage, systemic as well as local. Protective ointments and creams may be of benefit in softening the skin—and the claims of individual creators notwithstanding, the basis of them all remains the same—i.e., a standard cold cream. Powder and lipstick are purely decorative, and in no way curative of dermatological ills.

Dear Fellows—

HOPE YOU'RE all well, and getting plenty of mail. Things have been pretty lively around here the last week. . . . The big story of the week is the way Indianapolis and Indiana went over the top in the third war loan drive. . . . The old home town exceeded its goal of 70 millions. . . . Remember? . . . We told you of equal interest was the announcement that War Manpower Chairman Paul V. McNutt had designated Indianapolis a critical labor shortage area. . . . It's not certain whether the 48-hour week will be ordered. . . . Industry leaders opposed the critical area order as unnecessary. . . . And then came the announcement that butter is being raised from 12 to 16 points. . . . Housewives nearly drove the poor grocers and milkmen crazy trying to buy butter before the point increase goes into effect tomorrow.

With the Services—

JACK B. SHIRLEY, Gunner's Mate 2-c, who has been on duty on a gunboat on the Pacific two and a half years, came home to marry the girl across the street. . . . She's Miss Martha E. Brown, 1006 W. 33d. . . . Wire stories told how Sgt. Harold R. Dietrich (1215 S. Meridian) put to good use the lifesaving instruction he had received at the Y. M. C. A. here when he saved a woman from suicide in a lake in a London park. . . . Second Lt. Karl H. Brauer (1131 N. LaSalle), who is with the 8th army air force in England, has received a bronze oak leaf cluster to his air medal. . . . Lt. James M. Tucker, who resigned as secretary of state a year ago to enter the navy, was wounded in the upper left arm by shrapnel while landing troops during the battle at Salerno. . . . Col. Lorenzo D. Macy, local R. O. T. C. supervisor the last five years, has been retired from active duty. . . . He's been in the army more than 25 years. . . . Col. John M. Weir, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Weir, 2428 Broadway, has been nominated by President Roosevelt to be a brigadier general. . . . Col. Henry M. Tiedale has succeeded Col. James M. Churchill as commandant of Ft. Harrison.

Fire in Brown County—

THE FAMOUS Nashville House down in Brown County, dating back to Civil war days, was destroyed by fire over the week-end. . . . The village fire department might have saved the structure if the village water supply—cisterns and wells—had held out another half hour. . . . Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Roubush, 3516 Kenwood, will celebrate their golden wedding tomorrow with an open house. . . . Charles A. Clark, auditor of The Indianapolis News, was elected president of the Exchange Club. . . . Paul V. Brown, former newspaperman and more recently with the National Park Service, has been appointed the new superintendent of Indianapolis parks. . . . He's a veteran of the other war. . . . Curtis Hodges, another former local newspaperman, has been named assistant information officer for the state OPA headquarters.
