NAZIS DEVELOP FINN QUILSLINGS

Building Up Machine to Create Strife Even if Peace Comes.

Nat. A. Barrows, Times foreign correspondent based in Stockholm is one of three American newsmen recently permitted to visit Finland.

By NAT A. BARROWS
Times Foreign Correspondent
STOCKHOLM, March 23.—

Cleverly boring within through devious methods learned long ago in other countries, the Germans are patiently trying to build a Quisling machine inside Finland which will precipitate internal strife, no matter what happens to the Finnish - Russian peace discussions. Nazi activity at present is confined largely to rural districts but German efforts to create a basis for future trouble are not absent in Helsinki itself.

The Germans are determined that they are going to obtain the fullest advantage from Finland's unhappy position, regardless of how the peace football rolls. A week of intensive survey of the Finnish political scene has given me ample firsthand evidence for this statement about German methods. They are trying to plant seeds among their hirelings, which they hope will one day sprout into an ugly internal problem.

Too Subtle
This German fifth column activity appears to have no connection with the present peace talks between Finland and Russia. It is more subtle than that. The Nazis are skillfully building for the future when they can utilize their preparations to set up political machinery within Finland.

One of the highest Finnish government leaders declared privately last week that the Germans had exerted not the slightest diplomatic pressure during the eventful period while the Finnish government was trying to decide what to do with the Russian conditions for an armistice discussion in Moscow. Finland today is like its capital, Helsinki, where thousands of boarded-up windows make the avenues and streets even more depressing and gloomy.

The type of censorship which defies any reasonable understanding has deliberately blacked-out Finnish public opinion from what is happening directly in front of the nation's 3,800,000 people.
They have not been told and they are not being told. A handful of Finnish leaders dictate the censorship policy and the people are not told what or why or how.
Even today few Finns have anything but the vaguest idea that the Finnish government lingers stubbornly over the problem of peace with full knowledge that relations between Finland and the United States are hanging by a delicate thread.

It is a gloomy situation inside Finland. I tried desperately for a week in Helsinki to find hope for a solution—and always blind, stubborn mistrust for Russia reared up like an immovable wall.
