

F. D. R. 'Mistake' May Lose Fire to Allies, Shaw Asserts

GLASGOW, March 31 (U. P.).—George Bernard Shaw, in an article published today in the Scottish weekly "Forward," said that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's "crack-brained neutrality line" with Hitler might succeed as result of a "stupid mistake" by President Roosevelt.

"With all Ireland's Protestants and Catholics behind him, Mr. De Valera will tell the President, in fact, to go to hell and he will get away with it again," Shaw wrote.

Shaw said he wanted De Valera to side with the British commonwealth in the "second Punic war."

The article said De Valera had declared his army of 40,000 men would fight any invaders.

"It seemed like a crack-brained line to take yet Mr. De Valera got away with it," Shaw said. "England, with an eye on American reaction, pocketed his refusal of ports and decided to be content with northern Ireland. Thus he was saved by partition which he abhorred."

"Pearl Harbor changed the situation completely. The U. S. A. came thundering into the war and now it is not Mr. Churchill asking for ports and putting up with defiant refusal but President Roosevelt pre-emptorily ordering Mr. De Valera to declare war on Germany at once."

"It is Mr. Roosevelt's first really stupid mistake. . . . Can it be that Mr. Roosevelt is overworked and is catching too many colds?"

SEES HUGE LOSS DURING INVASION

Quentin Reynolds Reports Drive to Cost More Than Half of Men.

WASHINGTON, March 31 (U. P.).—Allied casualties will greatly exceed 50 per cent in the invasion of western Europe, war correspondent Quentin Reynolds predicted today in an article in Collier's magazine.

Reynolds, who witnessed the commando raid on Dieppe and the battle of Salerno beachhead, said that after establishing beachheads, allied armies will have to literally blast their way through 50 miles of concrete as they come up against the tough German defenses.

"The second line of defense is the brain child of the late Maj. Gen. Fritz Todt," Reynolds said. "To make invasion impossible, he built what the Germans call a second westwall."

Describes Defenses

"The main defensive belt is crisscrossed with new roads, new supporting airfields and is pockmarked with heavy artillery. These roads are so designed that within nine hours 10 divisions of German troops (150,000 men) can be brought to any point along that 1800-mile front."

And, he said, there will be "hard-to-kill tanks" as well as German infantry, "their courage and cruelty matched by the hardness of their weapons."

"But," said Reynolds, "when Gen. Eisenhower gives the word to go, it will be because he thinks the chances are good. If he says we can do it, we can do it."
