G.I. and His Trumpet Thaws
Hearts of Reims Civilians

By ROBERT RICHARDS
United Press Staff Correspondent
REIMS, Sept. 1 (Delayed)—The people of Reims were cold after the Americans came. They stood in the street staring at you from the corners of their eyes and sometimes you almost realized how German soldiers felt walking through the same town.

They were like that all the first day and the second day. The second night something happened to thaw them out—something named Pvt. Bernie Badler of New York City.

The French, after four years without making "whoops," were gathered in a cafe listening to Frenchman Lou Gammes' band. Then American G.I.s entered. The same coldness the Americans encountered in the streets was shown by the crowd.

Then this short, grinning Badler jumped up on the band stand and grabbed a saxophone. He signaled the orchestra and began playing "Honey-Suckle Rose."

The fear left the faces of the French. They began tapping feet to the music, laughing and clapping hands.

Badler, who formerly played with Jerry Wald's orchestra, got hotter and hotter. He played "Stardust" until the French hearts turned over and by the time he reached "The St. Louis Blues" G.I.s and French girls were dancing all over the place.

Although the girls had not danced since the German occupation they managed somehow to follow jitterbugging partners.

Pvt. Lester Schimming, 23, of Fargo, N. D., who was busy bouncing a girl around the dance floor exclaimed:

"She can't talk English and I can't talk French but boy are we having fun."

Hearts Right Again
One Frenchman, almost weeping, explained the change:

"Allemande come and everything halted and Frenchmen's hearts were bitter. Americans come and everything changed. The Frenchmen's hearts are light again."

So Bernie Badler played and everyone had a marvelous time.

The Frenchmen could not quite get over the spectacle of seeing a tank destroyer captain, with shaved head and coveralls, jitterbugging.

They thought it a strange but wonderful way for an officer to behave.

Then the military police came. "You know this town is out of bounds. Scram."

They chased out all the soldiers and made Badler quit playing the saxophone.

But they did not destroy the good will that had been created. The next day the people of Reims smiled at you.

And I heard one or two of them humming "Honey-Suckle Rose."

Spivak Band
Due at Circle

Week's Engagement to Begin at Theater Friday

Charlie Spivak, "the man who plays the sweetest trumpet in the world," will open a week's engagement with his orchestra Friday at the Circle theater.

Spivak, who recently signed a seven-year contract with a Hollywood studio and appeared in "Follow the Boys" and "Pin-Up Girl," will bring with him Irene Daye and Jimmy Saunders, formerly featured singer with Harry James.

Also on the bill will be Wally Crane, an "international screwball," and Joe Lou & Marly Caltes, dance trio.

"Henry Aldrich's Little Secret" will be on the screen.

Roof to Open Its Season Sept. 15

The Indiana Roof will open its 1944-45 dance season Sept. 15, Miss Alice McMahon, Roof manager, announced today. Director of the ballroom since 1940, Miss McMahon will be assisted by Eugene C. Poth as house manager.

Since 1940, the Roof has been renovated gradually, redecorated, and now has the bright Spanish type decorations that it had when it was first opened in 1927.

Miss McMahon announced that popular "name" and "semi-name" bands would be engaged throughout the season and that stars from radio, stage and screen also would be featured.

About everywhere that Miss Jackie Wise, 120 E. 30th st., went at the 4-H club state fair yesterday the lamb followed her. Miss Wise is holding one of the prize lambs from the flock of D. S. Dyson and his son, Jack of Fairmount, Ind.

5000 STREAM
INTO 4-H FAIR

View Record Exhibits of 60,000 Indiana Boys
And Girls.

More than 5000 persons streamed through the gates of the state fairgrounds today to view the record exhibits of Indiana's 60,000 4-H club boys and girls.

The fair opened Saturday with a record attendance and will continue until Wednesday night.

Rivaling exhibits of the big state fairs of the past, which have been abandoned for the duration, Hoosierdom's boys and girls of the farms proved they can raise livestock and can foodstuffs as well as their parents.

More than 1000 head of livestock on exhibit, competing for cash prizes of $10,549 offered by the state fair board.

Thousands of women filed through the food exhibit building where long lines of clothing, baked food products and canned goods attested to the skill of 4-H club girls in home economics.

A new feature of the fair is a free show in the coliseum where thousands yesterday and today watched a program that included animal acts with lions, dogs and ponies, roller skating and juggling acts. The shows are being given at 2:30 and 8:15 p. m. daily.

PARK OPEN TODAY,
CLOSING IS NEAR

Riverside amusement park will remain open for only a few more days, Hurshel Parker, general manager, announced today. No definite date has been set, Mr. Parker said, but the park will close earlier this season than heretofore due to a manpower shortage.

Seventy-five per cent of the park employees this summer have held down jobs in war plants in addition to their work here.

Park gates and attractions will be open from 1 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. today.

GI'S HOLD ART CONTEST
ABERDEEN, Md. (U. P.)—The army ordnance proving ground here recently conducted an art contest for G.I.s stationed on the post. Contributions were limited to art work—painting, drawing, prints or sculpture—done as a hobby and for non-commercial purposes. Ninety-six dollars in purchase orders on an artists' supply store was awarded to fledgling Rembrandts in khaki.
