

Lynn, 'the Generous,' Is Honored

At the testimonial dinner last night in his honor, Charles J. Lynn, vice president of Eli Lilly & Co. and secretary of the Indiana Draft Horse and Mule Breeders association (left), was presented with a leather-bound folder containing signatures of all guests by C. O. House, vice president of the association.

Given Testimonial Dinner By Horse and Mule Breeders

A testimonial dinner was tendered the "generous gentleman from Indiana" by 225 of his state-wide friends last night at Spencer's restaurant, 4411 Allisonville rd.

Charles J. Lynn, the "generous gentleman," was so called by Dr. E. C. Elliott, Purdue university president, at the testimonial sponsored by the Indiana Draft Horse and Mule Breeders of Indiana of which Mr. Lynn is president.

Vice president of the Eli Lilly & Co., Mr. Lynn became a horse and mule enthusiast a few years back and fostered the improvement in stock at his 623-acre Lynwood farm which he gave to Purdue three years ago.

Prof. Don J. Kays, animal husbandry department, Ohio State university, principal speaker, paid tribute to Mr. Lynn saying, "Democracy is a form of living and Mr. Lynn typifies it."

"Too often we pay tribute to a man, his friendship and leadership after he is gone. The time for such honors is in his lifetime."

Speaking of Lynwood farm, Dr. Elliott said:

"We of Purdue do not think of Lynwood in dollars and cents. To us the farm, not the land itself, is priceless in thought, feeling, memories and deeds. Mr. Lynn is a great benefactor of our institution."

Although the present year has hit rock bottom in the sale and price of draft horses and mules, Dr. Elliott sees an upswing coming with the close of the war in Europe.

"In the not too distant future I see a great need for horses in Western Europe," he said. "When that time comes the name of Mr. Lynn will carry to the Old World. Many of those horses will bear the name, Lynwood, Purdue."

Given Testimonial Folder

C. O. House, vice president of the Indiana Draft Horse and Mule Breeders association, presented Mr. Lynn with a leather-bound folder containing the signatures of all the guests attending the testimonial function.

Harry J. Reed, director, Purdue university, acted as master of ceremonies. Short tributes were paid by Howard J. Brandt, Wabash, secretary of the American Belgian Horse Breeders association; Ellis McFarland, Chicago, secretary of the Percheron Society of America and Wayne Dinsmore, Chicago, secretary of the Horse and Mule Association of America of which Mr. Lynn is vice president.
