

CONSTITUTION'S
SURVIVAL SEENDocument to Outlast Today's Struggles, Dean
Pound Says at Fete.

Our constitutional government has survived transition from 13 states along the Atlantic to a continental empire, and will survive the struggles of the nation today, Roscoe Pound, dean emeritus of the Harvard university law school, said last night.

Dean Pound spoke on "The United States Constitution—Its Future" at an observance sponsored by the Constitution day committee in the Mural theater.

"Our constitutional government has survived the struggle between a society of planters and one of traders and manufacturers, survived civil war and come out stronger, survived entry into world affairs, survived transition from a homogeneous folk of one stock to a melting pot of races and peoples," he said.

"There seems no good reason to fear it cannot survive the class struggles incident to modern industrial development and economic unification in the wake of air transport, radio and streaming trains."

Some day other governments may arise on this soil, the Harvard dean said, but they will not be the United States, unless in name only.

Dean Pound said the constitution owes its adaptability to the wisdom of its framers in avoiding too much detail.

"A Different Land"
"Thus the constitution has been able to govern a very different land from that for which it was first drawn, and to govern that land in very diverse stages of its development and under very diverse conditions at different stages," he explained.

Although the dean said there is nothing to indicate that the constitution will prove less adaptable to the further development of this era, he stated that it was not adaptable to a Communist, all-embracing, all-competent state, nor to a fascist, corporative or Communist dictatorship.

16,100 WORKERS
OUT IN STRIKESDetroit, Cleveland, Chicago
Plants Affected by
New Walkouts.

By UNITED PRESS
The walkouts and dismissals of 270 workmen today threw 16,100 other workers into idleness in five separate work stoppages throughout the nation.

Twelve hundred other workers were out in lesser Michigan strikes. Largest of the individual strikes was that of approximately 5000 employees at the Mack avenue plant of the Briggs Manufacturing Co., Detroit, where workers protested dismissal of 10 die setters for refusing to work.

The Corliss-Kinney plant of the Republic Steel Corp., Cleveland, O., scene of the "little steel" strike riots of 1937, was closed down today by a walkout of 1400 workmen, forcing 4000 other workers into idleness and halting production of approximately 4500 tons of steel daily.

At Chicago, a worker who was sent home for refusing to pour molten brass into a narrow mold, when he wanted to pour into a wide mold, was responsible for 2000 other workers going on strike at the Hever Copper & Brass Co.

Production of landing craft at the Inland Corporation shipyard at Wilmington, Del., was halted by a strike of 100 foremen and sub-foremen which resulted in company officials sending home 1000 night shift workers after they reported at the yards.

Republic Steel Corp's steel mill at Gadsden, Ala., employing about 3500 workers, was threatened with a complete work stoppage and eight open hearth furnaces were idle, as a four-day strike of 28 bricklayers continued.

Board Order Ignored
Striking managers of National Tea Co. stores in the Chicago area today ignored a war labor board order to return to their jobs.

Other strikes in war plants involving 1200 workers in Michigan were listed by the labor department as:

Ford Motor Co., Flat Rock, United Auto Workers (C. I. O.), 350; Gale Manufacturing Co., Albion, Molders and Foundry Union (A. F. of L.), 97; Norge Machine Products Co., Muskegon Heights, United Auto Workers (A. F. of L.), 400; Aluminum Co. of America, Monroe, United Steel Workers (C. I. O.), 400.
