Dr. Benson Expresses Hope Medicine to Remain Free

GREENCASTLE, Ind., Oct. 12.—Hope that medicine "will be left free from the deadly hand of politics to continue its matchless liberation of humanity from its frailties" was expressed by Dr. John G. Benson, general superintendent of the Indianapolis Methodist hospital, today at DePauw university.

Dr. Benson, whose subject was "A Minister Looks at Medicine," spoke at the weekly navy-civilian assembly on the Greencastle campus.

Discussing the science of medicine from the historical point of view, he said that magic is being produced by medical science, with humanity its beneficiary, bringing prolonged life, less illness and greater zeal for living.

"Unless the spark of scientific interest is snuffed out by the attempted socialization of medicine," Dr. Benson said, "the medical personality of tomorrow will discover vast new physical experience for the human organism."

"In tomorrow's medicine we believe that all healing forces—including religious faith, emotional interests and intellectual integrity as well as physical welfare—will be brought together to bear upon the future of humanity's health," he predicted.

Dr. Benson stressed the importance of the religious influence on health, adding that the trained minister of today will take his place, beside the physician at the bedside as successfully as he takes his place in the pulpit or classroom.

In the post-war period, Dr. Benson said, the unshackled profession of medicine is most promising and commands the co-operation of society to guarantee its freedom.
