GALLOPING GHOST
RETURNS UNHARMED

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7 (U.P.)—The light cruiser Philadelphia, nicknamed the Galloping Ghost for its good luck in combat, was back at the Philadelphia navy yard today after participating in major engagements in the Mediterranean.

Veteran of 35 bombing attacks, during action off the Anzio and Salerno beaches and the invasion of southern France, the Philadelphia came back to the yard where she was built eight years ago, admitting that she only turned stern to a foe once.

That one occasion, Capt. Walter Ansell and his crew of 1300 officers and men related, was a retreat from a volcano. The Philadelphia, anchored off Naples, was moved when Mr. Vesuvius burst into eruption and showered her with ash.

Her designation as "The Ghost" came from the fact that in her outstanding combat record, the Philadelphia was not struck by a single shell, torpedo or bomb.

SOUTH BEND Flier
FIGHTS JET PLANE

PARIS, Nov. 7 (U.P.)—Pilot Robert O. Elmore of South Bend, Ind., played hide and seek with a jet-propelled German night fighter during a recent patrol in the bright moonlight over Germany.

Elmore, flying a Black Widow night fighter, and the German foe wheeled in a series of 180-degree turns, with each trying to get on the other's tail, before the American's electrical system went dead and forced him to break off and dive into a cloud.

Elmore said the German plane spouted a fiery jet 10 to 15 feet long, but the pilot switched it off frequently to save his limited fuel.

CONCILIATION CHIEF QUIT LABOR BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (U.P.)—The resignation of Conciliation Director John R. Steelman, effective Nov. 25, has been on the desk of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins since July 1.

On that date the last of the service's 25 field officers was ready to operate, Steelman told reporters, but he stayed on at his job until he was sure all parts of the organization were running smoothly. He has been with the service 10 years, seven of them as director.

In her letter accepting the resignation, Secretary Perkins praised Steelman's "ingenuity and resourcefulness, as well as persistence, in handling situations in which emotions as well as economic circumstances were involved."

NAZIS DROP PUZZLES OVER SOUTH ENGLAND

LONDON, Nov. 7 (U.P.)—Some of the leaflets showered over Southern England Sunday night by Nazi flying bombs contained cross-word puzzles in which the blackened squares formed a V-1 design, it was disclosed today.

Others carried pictures of war scenes and British government officials, including Prime Minister Churchill, while one bore a photograph of dead children claimed to have been killed by phosphorus at Hamburg.

One of the leaflets, according to The Daily Mail, said: "Bombs are still dropping on England yet nobody there knows whence they come."

The News Chronicle, in connection with the leaflet story, published on its front page a photograph of a flying bomb low overhead.

The leaflets, some of which were four pages in well-printed English, a similar situation.

TUESDAY, NOV. 7, 1944
also carried long extracts of parliamentary speeches "jubilating over the coming end of the war."

RETURN TOLEDO WAR PLANTS TO OWNERS

DETROIT, Nov. 7 (U.P.)—Eight Toledo, O., war plants, seized by government order Saturday as a result of strike action by the Mechanics Education Society of America, have been restored to private ownership, the army announced last night.

Col. Phillip R. Raymondville, army representative who took charge of the struck plants, reported the change of their status a few hours after 29,200 striking workers in the Detroit-Toledo industrial area started back to work in some 51 factories hit by stoppages during the last two weeks.

The army reported from Toledo that production there was "rapidly approaching normal," and spokesmen for local plants indicated a similar situation.

Pvt. Samuel and Mrs. George, through ave., were serving with in January.
