Wife of General Just Mrs. G. I. Joe

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 8 (U. P.).—She's the wife of Lt. Gen. C. A. Spaatz, commander of the American strategic air forces in the European theater of operations, but she doesn't know any more about her husband's work than the wife of the rank-and-file G. I. Joe.

"My husband is a close-mouthed Pennsylvania Dutchman and he doesn't impart much information," said Mrs. C. A. Spaatz, who is here to address the graduating class of Red Cross workers tonight.

"I wouldn't know there is a war on from what he writes me in his letters," she added.

Mrs. Spaatz saw her husband only for one week during the last three years but "he spent most of that week in the Pentagon building," she said wistfully.

U. S. HOLDS 359,247 PRISONERS OF WAR

Ducks and Geese May Understand

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (U. P.).—A new war production board order suggests that something ticklish has hit the feather market. The order:

"Conservation order M-102 (waterfowl feathers) which prohibits use of new goose and duck feathers, other than wing and tail feathers and body feathers over three inches in length, except to fill military orders or as specifically authorized by the WPB, has been amended to extend the restrictions to all such feathers up to and including four inches in length, including mixtures of such new feathers with used feathers."
