Dear Fellows—

THE CHRISTMAS rush is on. . . . Stores are more crowded than ever, and here and there a few of the more foresighted citizens are crowding: "I've got my Christmas shopping done." . . . The young fry are having a big time calling on department store Santas and explaining what they want for Christmas.

Folks have been advised to get their Christmas trees early. . . . Dealers say there's not likely to be a surplus of trees such as we had last year. . . . City trucks were busy all week picking up bundles of waste paper in a city-wide salvage campaign. . . . The paper goes to the waiting paper mills. . . . And the proceeds from sale of the paper go to the post-war building fund of the Children's Museum. . . . In the entertainment field, the highlight was presentation of the operetta, "The Merry Widow," at the Murat. . . . Fritz Kreisler, the eminent violinist, is scheduled for Jan. 28 in Cadet tabernacle. . . . Miss Phyllis Dell, 5801 N. New Jersey, wears the crown of the Butler home-coming queen. . . . She was elected at the Butler-Franklin college basketball game.

Musicians Walk Rails—

OUR INDIANAPOLIS Symphony orchestra went to the big town of New York and made a hit with a concert in Carnegie Hall. . . . The critics gave them nice reviews. . . . The musicians arrived at Hanover, N. H., another town on their tour, with sore feet. . . . A baggage car on their train was derailed and they had to carry their instruments and other baggage about three miles down the railroad track to reach town. . . . The Indianapolis News had a birthday Thursday. . . . It was the paper's 75th anniversary. . . . Dr. Ellis W. Hay, pastor of the First Congregational church, has resigned, effective Jan. 31, to assume the pastorate of a church in St. Louis. . . . Vote Probers Busy—

THE SENATE'S "election fraud" probe have had things in a turmoil here the last week or so. . . . They've been checking on campaign expenditures of Senator-elect Homer E. Capehart—at his request—and looking into Democratic complaints that many voters were disfranchised in the November election. . . . A senate subcommittee is scheduled to hold a hearing Dec. 18. . . . The probes thought someone had attempted to break into their records when they found a peephole in the wall of their room in the Claypool. . . . But this theory was discounted later. . . . It was reported in Washington that Senator William E. Jenner—filling out the term of the late Senator Frederick VanNuys—had declined an offer by Senator-elect Capehart to serve as his secretary said Jan. 3. . . .
