THE ARISTOCRAT FOR HALF A CENTURY

SPAIN WORRIES
SOUTH FRANCE

Border Area Is Critical of American Policy.

By HELEN KIRKPATRICK
Times Foreign Correspondent

TOULOUSE, France, June 13.—Spain and Syria are uppermost in the minds of people here in southwestern France, while Paris is primarily concerned with Syria and the French zone of occupation in Germany.

This area, which borders on Spain, is far more concerned with the Spanish question than with Germany, which seems here a dead issue.

I have just spent two days touring this area. I found everywhere the same question: "When are we going to rid Spain of fascism?"

The question is sharpened at this time by the arrival here of more than 3000 Spaniards released from German concentration camps. They are men who either escaped from Spain after the civil war, having fought on the republican side, or people who found life in Franco Spain intolerable.

The French cabinet, on June 4, extended French protectorate to them and the regional commissioner for southwestern France, Bertaux, a former professor at Toulouse university, is establishing a Spanish town for them in a now deserted German camp outside Toulouse.

Refugee Papers Banned

Up to a few months ago these Spanish refugees were able to lead a fairly active political life, but the French government has now banned all six Spanish newspapers, which appeared in Toulouse after France's liberation, and has prohibited Spaniards from any political activity.

The French in this region, fairly universally in sympathy with anti-Franco Spaniards, resent these bans and many blame them on American policy.

They also blame the U. S. and Britain for Franco's continued tenure of office.

Without Spanish and British support, they say, Franco would be forced out of office tomorrow. Now that Germany is defeated they fail to see why it should be necessary for the allies to appease Franco.

Here, also, feeling against the British runs high over the Syrian question, perhaps partly because the people are annoyed with the British over Spain. They think that fear of Russia, plus Anglo-American oil interests, has played a large role in the Syrian affair.

NAZI PHOTOGRAPHS

A showing of Nazi photographs, captured by Americans from the Germans, will remain at the Wm. H. Block Co. auditorium through Saturday.

The pictures which were intended for Nazi archives are viewed by 500 persons daily, according to the Marion county chapter of American War Mothers, who are acting as hostesses.

L. C. Duckworth, district commander of the American Legion, pointed out that the exhibit was timely in view of the preparations of the allied war crimes commission to prosecute those responsible for atrocities in Europe.

"These photographs show the nature of the enemy we fought and why they must be punished for their acts of barbarism," he stated.
