Procedure Same Whether Loan Is for Buying, Building Home

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Here are some more questions from veterans about buying homes with the aid of the government:

Q.—My wife and I have decided to build exactly the kind of house we want rather than buy one already built. Is the procedure different for getting a loan to do this and can it be done?

A.—The procedure for getting a loan to build your own house is the same as getting one guaranteed to buy a house. The government will have to okay your plans and you will have to furnish a pretty accurate estimate as to how much it will cost.

Q.—We are considering buying a house for $10,000. If we borrow the money and get a loan guaranteed by the government approximately how much would our monthly payments be on a 20-year basis?

A.—The monthly payments would be $64.68.

Q.—If you want to make a loan to have your house repaired will the government guarantee it and how much interest will you have to pay?

A.—You can get a loan guaranteed to make repairs on a house. Interest on the loan is four per cent.

Q.—I am just getting started in the drug business and don't want to buy a house now. How long can I wait before making application to get a loan guaranteed to buy a house in the future?

A.—Application to have a loan guaranteed must be made within five years after the war.

Q.—Is it true that the government pays the interest charges on a loan that is guaranteed under the GI Bill of Rights?

A.—It pays the interest charges on the loan only for the first year. Q.—Can you get a loan from the government to build a house and then rent it to somebody else? A.—You must state that you intend to live in the house yourself.
