Fail to Calm Angry G. I.'s Who Demand Early Return

ing I'd sail right off—but when I hit the ground I ask him "when am I going home?"

Private McNeill said that he had a few trades he wanted to make. "I want to swap a G. I. latrine for a tile bathroom," he said. "I want to swap an army cot for an innerepring mattress covered with white sheets and with green pillow cases."

The band struck up: "I Wanna Go Home."

Opl. Whartman asked the crowd if they were going to let American ships carry Chiang Kai-shek's troops and help put down "a legitimate fight for independence." The crowd thundered: "No." He asked if they were going to let American ships be used to quell another fight for independence in Java and the crowd again shouted its disapproval.

"The generals may laugh at this," one G. I. said, "but there is certainly more to it than they think. We don't want to occupy the Philippines. They are going to be independent this year, aren't they?"

Another Rally at Batangas

While the Manila mass meeting was going on, a similar rally was held at Batangas where 600 enlisted men approved three resolutions, one to President Truman, one to congress and one to the senate military affairs committee, urging quicker demobilization.

More than 2500 men marched four abreast to Gen. Syler's headquarters in the morning and sent a five-man delegation into say they wanted to go home, and quickly.

Late in the afternoon, hundreds of soldiers swarmed to the city hall for another protest session. They arrived by the scores in army trucks. The soldiers were angry at statements by Secretary Patterson and high army officers that their return home would be delayed because it had been decided not to make further drastic cuts in the necessary discharge point score.

Tries to Calm Group

They demanded to see Mr. Patterson, but Gen. Syler told them he was not going to visit the Philippines on his world tour.

Gen. Syler tried to calm the restless troops with a 10-page statement that he had no control over the discharge system. He said their desire to become civilians was "entirely understandable." However, he said, the United States has large world responsibilities to meet.

"We have won the final combat victory, but if we do not follow through with our task we shall surrender the goals we have gained," he said.

Mimeographed handbills charging "double talk" by army commanders about discharges were denied by Gen. Syler. "To my knowledge there's been no 'double talk' or broken promises," he said, "and certainly there are no ulterior motives on the part of any responsible official of the government, either military or civilian."

Concedes 'Bad' Statement

Gen. Syler conceded that some statements have been issued causing justified alarm about redeployment, but said they were from "wholly unauthorized sources" or were incomplete versions of longer statements.

The general said he hoped to have his force down to 70,000 by July 1. He said the army had 335,000, against 600,000 last Oct. 1.

Six hundred enlisted men of headquarters company, sub-base R at Batangas, cabled President Truman to speed up "the hopelessly confused demobilization program."

"We urge you to take the demobilization program out of the hands of vested interests in the

TOLL MOUNTS TO 34 IN FREAK WEATHER

New York City thermometers to 62 yesterday, a Jan. 6 record.

Hospitals in the Mississippi-Arkansas area were still receiving injured, many of them not expected to live.

Hurling out of what the weather bureau termed a "very turbulent area," the first storm struck Colla, Miss., where Mrs. Ernest Shute, and her seven-year-old daughter were killed. Her husband and four other children were seriously injured.

Rescue workers toiling in mud and continuing thunderstorms said that the Shute home had been picked up by the wind and deposited as a mere pile of splinters.

Doctors at the Greenwood, Miss. hospital said that the four children were not expected to survive. The father was still unconscious.

According to meager reports, the swirling winds struck next at Seven Pines, Miss., some 12 miles west of Colla, leveling most of the buildings minutes after many of the residents had headed for storm cellars.

At Indianola, Miss., approximately 40 miles west, what the weather bureau said "probably" was another storm, or one of a series originating in the area, a 3-year-old girl was killed.

Arkansas Woman Killed

At Lake Village, Ark., about 37 miles west of Indianola, another woman was killed and four men injured.

Reports said the wind had hit earlier at Wilnot, Ky., where it ripped off parts of houses and other buildings and deposited debris on the main line of the Missouri Pacific railroad, tying up train traffic for 35 minutes.

It struck again, he said, at Jennie, Ark., killing another woman and injuring three men, all unidentified. The warmth extended as far west as Indiana. Yesterday's temperatures included Baltimore 64, Boston 56, Buffalo, N. Y., 61, Cleveland, 60, Detroit, Mich., 62, Cincinnati 0.

The highest temperature was 79, reported at Jacksonville, Fla., and the lowest was 7 degrees above zero at Elmira, N. Y.

PAY 'PATTERN' MAY BE 15%

G. M. Fact-Finders Nearly Ready to Report.

Thursday to present the White House with their findings.

Judge Walter P. Stach, third member of the board, is sick with flu.

Basis for the opinion of some observers that an immediate 15 per cent increase will be recommended is a report made public Oct. 25 by Secretary of Commerce Wallace.

15 Per Cent Called 'Possible'

It reached this conclusion: "It is apparent that present cost-price relationships are such throughout industry that a basic wage increase is possible without raising prices. For 1946, a general increase of 10 per cent is possible."

"Such an average would mean a rise of 15 per cent or a little more in the manufacturing industries. Some industries could afford more, some not so much."

"The automobile industry is in the former class—15 per cent can be granted without adverse results in the first year of restricted operations, and a further increase of 10 per cent can be given for 1947 when production will have reached peak rates."

Findings Attacked

These findings were attacked as likely to mislead the public in a protest to Secretary Wallace by George Romney, of Detroit, general manager of the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

Mr. Wallace denied that, and also stated that "the report presented conclusions for the industry as a whole. It did not say that every company was in a position to give an equal wage increase."

Reasons why a fact-finding recommendation along the line of the commerce report would be acceptable to both sides in the General Motors dispute are:

ONE: The corporation has been edging toward the 15 per cent figure—its last offers were interpreted by the union as more than 10. It would be disposed to accept a wage recommendation that did not imperil its adamant position against the union or anybody else (without an act of congress) a look into its confidential books.

TWO: The union would find it difficult to reject a finding based on material sponsored by its economic and political friend, Mr. Wallace.

General Motors probably would refuse to bind itself to a further wage increase next year. The could be left to future argument, and the union is pretty sure to demand a further increase, anyway, at any time it thinks conditions are favorable.

the four states and that Austria may progressively acquire the status of an independent state."

The department also expressed hope that an Austrian agent will arrive soon in Washington to discuss matters of mutual interest which do not affect supreme authority of the allied council."

Until the November elections—the first free elections in Austria in 15 years—the country had been under a provisional government headed by Renner, a Socialist. It was formed under Russian auspices soon after the country was liberated from the Nazis.

The elections, however, proved a sharp setback to left wing parties in their hope to control immediate post-war destinies of the country.

Fig's peoples party emerged with 35 seats in the national assembly as against 76 for the Socialists and only four for the Communists. In accord with the mandate of the people, Renner resigned but the parliament elected him president shortly afterward for a six-year term.

The November elections marked the first time since 1919 that an Austrian party had emerged with a clear-cut majority.

MACARTHUR FAVORS MILITARY COUNCIL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (U. P.)—Informed quarters said today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur hopes that the new four-power allied control council for Japan will be made up of generals as is the allied council for Germany.

Gen. MacArthur, it was said, feels that he will be able to get along better with military men than civilians because they will have a soldier's appreciation of his problems.

At the same time, it was said that Australia was urging Britain to name an Australian for the British commonwealth seat on the four-power council. London, it is understood, may accede.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7 (U. P.)—An Australian military court at Labuan, North Borneo, sentenced two Japanese officers to death today after finding them guilty of responsibility for the deaths of 820 Australian and British prisoners of war, Melbourne radio reported.

A "Capt. Takakura," officer formerly in command of a prisoner of war camp, was sentenced to death by hanging, and his adjutant, a "Capt. Watabe," was sentenced to be shot, Melbourne radio said.

SMOKE CONTROL BOARD NAMED

'Not Just Another Flurry,' Mayor Promises.

control department marks the first time Indianapolis has had a single agency devoted to smoke elimination work and nothing else. Heretofore, smoke abatement has been a secondary duty of other city agencies.

The new department was proposed by the smoke abatement subcommittee of the post-war planning committee, headed by Mr. Overly and Theodore Griffith.

Follows Long Study

"This is the result of several months of careful study by representative citizens who have sought to find a way by which we can get rid of the smoke nuisance once and for all," the mayor declared.

"This new agency cannot conceivably have much effect this winter. Nor can we expect to see the problem solved substantially until supplies for improved heating devices and proper grades of coal are available in greater abundance."

Installation of smoke control devices in furnaces and stoves will be a primary objective.

To Strengthen Education

The department has ample powers of enforcement. For instance, any alterations in heating plants, or any new units, must receive the approval of the board. The department also may order changes in heating plants.

Violators of city smoke regulations are subject to heavy fines. However, as recommended by the Indianapolis post-war planning committee, the board will stress education and co-operation over drastic and abrupt enforcement.

Education will be the "major tool" of the board in developing a long-range smoke eradication program, said the mayor.

The elimination campaign will cost Indianapolis about $40,000 a year. But, the post-war planning committee pointed out, "this is a small investment for the dividends the city will reap in savings."

STRAUSS SAYS:

Another recent addition was the installation of a complete metallurgical control laboratory for investigation, control and research under the direction of Justin S. Blay, chief metallurgist.

Key personnel besides Mr. Silbermann and Mr. Blay include Sidney Ruddell, plant superintendent; Ray Headlee, office manager; W. E. Silbermann, charge of sales; Lloyd Taylor, head of copper brazing department, and Lawrence Albison, superintendent of the second and third shifts.

tributed by Doenitz to the frequent breaking of allied convoy codes in 1942. By 1943, he said the code key was lost due to frequent changing by the allies.

Other Revelations

His report also revealed:

1. The Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, "was a complete surprise for Germany's political and military leaders."
2. German declaration of war against Russia was "particularly painful, though we supported the Fuehrer in his opinion that Japan was an urgent necessity and unavoidable. It was hoped, however, to bring the war with Russia to a successful conclusion within a few months."
3. The U-boats engaged in battle with convoys in which more than half "and in some cases over two-thirds" of the ships were "wiped out."

4. Use of radar by allied ships sent U-boat losses to 50 per cent of all naval losses in 1943. In May of that year, 43 U-boats were said to have been sunk.
5. As a result of the "surprise" Anglo-American landings in North Africa, all German subs which could be mustered were sent to the Gibraltar area. U-boat losses, however, were said to have been "high" there.
6. Armed German merchant cruisers were serviced and repaired at Japanese bases after Japan entered the war.
7. The Germans did not know the date or the location of the allied invasion of France.
8. The Germans were banking heavily on jet-propelled fighter planes as a means of combating allied air attacks.

SEES SERUM DEFENSE IN BIOLOGICAL WAR

AMES, Ia., Jan. 7 (U. P.)—Dr. A. G. Norman, professor of agronomy at Iowa state college, believes the best defense against biological warfare is immunization by serums and therapy.

Norman, who has been working on the biological warfare project since its start in 1943, said last night that defense measures had been developed to a "reasonable" point. But the "top secret" nature of the work prevented his elaborating further, he said.

THE NEWS AT THE MAN'S STORE

Is quite varied in scope and character!

There are a few CLEARANCES in progress—the Neckwear Sale at 1/3 off is doing particularly well. There are quite a few Belts at Half Price — and quite some Suspenders at Half.

The new goods for Spring are coming in—but only yet at a snail's pace — (as soon as business subsides a bit — we shall take time off to go to Research—and actually measure a snail's rate of travel).

But — between what we have and what we've added — and what is reduced—the Store holds a lot of interest to one and all — and this interest extends to the purse.

In the Women's Shops—quite a few things for Spring are in — and they are wonderful!

In the Boys' Shops—Spring is peeping in—and Winter is clearing out.
