

CANDIDATES FOR 'OSCARS' LISTED

1945 Movie Awards Will Be Announced March 7.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28 (U. P.).—Movie queens, actors and directors who made the grade as candidates for 1945 academy "Oscars" braced themselves today for that long anxious wait until March 7, when the winners will be handed their gold-plated statuettes.

The nominations, announced last night by academy President Jean Herbolth, include:

Best performance by an actress—Ingrid Bergman in "The Belles of St. Mary's," Joan Crawford in "Mildred Pierce," Greer Garson in "The Valley of Decision," Jennifer Jones in "Love Letters" and Gene Tierney in "Leave Her to Heaven."

Best performance by an actor—Bing Crosby in "The Belles of St. Mary's," Gene Kelly in "Anchors Aweigh," Ray Milland in "The Lost Weekend," Gregory Peck in "The Keys of the Kingdom," and Cornell Wilde in "A Song to Remember."

Best Picture—"Anchors Aweigh," "The Belles of St. Mary's," "The Lost Weekend," "Mildred Pierce," and "Spellbound."

"The Belles of St. Mary's," starring both Crosby and Miss Bergman and directed by Leo McCarey, was named for honors in four of six major classifications.

Three of the actresses nominated by their fellow actors and actresses and movie makers already have "Oscars" for door-stops or mantel decorations—the Misses Jones, Garson, and Bergman.

Miss Bergman won last year, after several unsuccessful tries. If she makes it two in a row she'll have to present the "Oscar" to herself, since the winner of the previous year always hands over the coveted bauble to the current "best actress."

Miss Crawford, who's been a movie veteran before sound was invented, never has won an "Oscar." Neither has Miss Tierney, who hasn't been trying quite so long. Crosby, who was just another crooner until he donned priest's robes, is the only repeater on the actor's list. He won it last year for his Father O'Malley and landed on top again in a similar role. He's probably just as surprised as he was last year.

Other nominations included:

Best Performance by a Supporting Actress—Eve Arden in "Mildred Pierce," Angela Lansbury in "The Picture of Dorian Gray," Ann Blythe in "Mildred Pierce," Joan Loring in "The Corn Is Green," and Anne Revere in "National Velvet."

Best Performance by a Supporting Actor—Michael Chekhov in "Spellbound," John Dall in "The Corn Is Green," James Dunn in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," Robert Mitchum in "G. I. Joe," and J. Carroll Naish in "A Medal for Benny."

Best Achievement in Directing—Leo McCarey for "The Belles of St. Mary's," Billy Wilder for "The Lost Weekend," Clarence Brown for "National Velvet," Jean Renoir for "The Southerner," and Alfred Hitchcock for "Spellbound."

Best Screenplay—"G. I. Joe," by Leopold Atlas, Guy Endore, and Phillip Stephenson; "The Lost Weekend," by Charles Brackett and Billy Wilder; "Mildred Pierce," by Ronald MacDougall; "Fride of the Marines," by Albert Maltz; and "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," by Tess Slesinger and Frank Davis.

Best Original Screenplay—"Dillinger," by Philip Yordan; "Marie-Louise," a Swiss movie by Richard Schweizer; "Music for Millions," by Myles Connolly; "Salty O'Rourke," by Milton Holmes; and "What Next, Corporal Hargrove?" by Harry Kurnitz.

Best Original Movie Story—"The Affairs of Susan," by Thomas Monroe and Lazzio Gorgo, "The House on 92d Street," by Charles G. Booth; "A Medal for Benny," by John Steinbeck and Jack Wagner; "Objective Burma," by Alvah Bessie, and "A Song to Remember," by Ernst Marischka.

Meanwhile, some 9000 movie makers have until Feb. 11 to get their final votes in.

On March 7 the winners will be announced from the stage of Grauman's Chinese theater.

YOUTH RELEASED IN DINER FRACAS

A 17-year-old husband with domestic problems cannot be blamed for a certain degree of impatience. This was the conclusion today of Judge Mark W. Rhoads in juvenile court as he released the young husband.

The youth was charged with wielding a meat cleaver and throwing dishes at seven high school patrons of an all-night diner.

The disturbance occurred Saturday night in the Airliner, 2601 W. Michigan st., where the defendant is employed.

He said the high school boys taunted him until he lost his temper. "Domestic problems previously had paved the way," the youth told Judge Rhoads.

The youthful counterman's employer testified in behalf of the defendant.

WAR SECRET KEPT BY 3000 CANADIANS

OTTAWA, Jan. 28 (U. P.).—Reconstruction Minister C. D. Howe offered proof today that 3000 Canadians can keep a secret.

During the war, the French underground found it could get adequate 9 mm. ammunition from German arsenals, but had no guns the ammunition fit. Some one suggested the German Lugers taken as souvenirs in world war I. Three thousand Canadians contributed their souvenir Lugers and the secret never leaked out.

Gross Income Taxpayers Stampede to Beat Deadline

The last-minute stampede is on at the state gross income tax division, 141 S. Meridian st. With only three days of the 30-day grace period remaining, hundreds of taxpayers streamed into the gross income division lobby when doors opened at 8:15 a. m. today. Many sought help in filling out their 1945 forms.

270,000 Return to Jobs as Meat Plants Resume Work

Westinghouse and the electrical division of General Motors.

The 12-day tie-up in the meat industry was called off Saturday when representatives of nearly 200,000 C. I. O. Packinghouse Workers voted for a truce in their fight for higher wages. A. F. of L. strikers previously had been instructed to return to work when the government seized the plants.

Officials of the C. I. O. union admitted frankly that they were going back only on Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson's assurances that he would support any wage increases recommended by a fact-finding board in the dispute. They warned they would strike again if the raises weren't forthcoming.

Despite the Ford and Chrysler wage settlement, the union and strike-bound General Motors Corp. were as far apart as ever. C. I. O. officials said that G. M. would have to do better than the 18 1/2 cents offered by Chrysler to compensate 175,000 workers for losses incurred during their 69-day walkout.

NLRB Hearing Today

The union took its 68-day-old strike case against General Motors before a National Labor Relations Board examiner today.

Gerald D. Reilly, the NLRB examiner, refused to consider "ability to pay" higher wages as relevant to the main issue. He defined the sole question as whether the corporation had failed to bargain collectively with the U. A. W. before and after the strike of 175,000 G. M. workers began Nov. 21.

The main point of the case against the company was contained in a letter, dated Nov. 23, 1945, in which General Motors was alleged to have withdrawn a wage increase offer of 10 per cent and to have accused the U. A. W. of "unreasonable" pay demands.

The U. A. W. ordered some 7000 tool and die workers to stop work today on General Motors jobs. The supply workers, most of them in the Detroit area, continued to turn out materials for other auto makers.

Layoffs Threaten Output

Meanwhile new layoffs continued to threaten production of automobiles.

Ford announced that the steel strike would force a layoff of 40,000 employees by Friday, including 15,000 laid off last week-end. About 10,000 were idle in Chrysler and Packard plants because of material and parts shortages. Briggs Manufacturing Co. laid off more than 2000.

In addition, auto and aviation parts manufacturers reported that about 250,000 would be forced into idleness throughout the country within a week because of material shortages resulting from the steel strike.

THIEVES HERE GET $15,000 IN JEWELS

Theft of $15,000 worth of diamonds and semi-precious stones from 4362 Swanson dr. was under investigation by the detective department today.

Judging from the systematic non-destructive way in which the north-side home was searched, detectives believe the burglary job was executed by professionals. The jewels were taken from a box on the dresser of Mrs. George M. Dixon.

Among the loot were a ring containing 90 diamonds, a bracelet set with 100 diamonds, a ruby, amethyst and pearl, Mrs. Dixon said. She and her husband discovered the break-in when they returned home late Saturday afternoon. Telephone wires had been snipped.

STRAUSS SAYS:

THERE is much here for these wintry days—and it's good! And what there is here of Spring is good—albeit in rather limited quantities. But this latter condition will be repaired—because the streams of incoming goods will take an increasing volume before long—so we have been told. It's only 44 shopping days till Spring!
