

Nazis Try To Hide Emotions At Verdict; Some Squirm

How International War Crimes Tribunal Doomed 12 Former Aids of Hitler to Die on Gallows

MILITARY MEN HOLD UP WELL BEFORE COURT

Hess Mumbles at Thought Of Spending Rest of Life in Prison.

NUERNBERG, Oct. 1.—The Nuernberg defendants—who deliberately brought suffering to so many millions—tried mightily to hide their own emotions today when the time came for them to squirm.

Some of them succeeded. But not all. As the war crimes tribunal announced its verdicts and then the sentences, the German military and naval defendants held up well, but some of the politicians seemed stunned, bewildered.

This is how they took their sentences: Hermann Goering, commander of the German air force, sentenced to death, flushed slightly.

Rudolf Hess, No. 2 Nazi, looked depressed, mumbled and fumbled. He held his earphones at his side while the court announced he must spend the rest of his life in prison. Hess remained standing, and had to be led from the dock.

Kaltenbrunner Bows
Field Marshal Wilhelm von Keitel, chief of the German high command, stood expressionless with straight military bearing while he received his death sentence. He left the dock smartly.

Ernst Kaltenbrunner, chief of the Nazi secret police, bowed stiffly from the waist, heard his death sentence, bowed again, and left the dock.

Alfred Rosenberg, anti-Jewish Nazi philosopher, angrily threw down his earphones when they cracked out his punishment—death.

Hans Frank, the Nazi governor of Poland, apparently did not know what to do when he entered the dock. He smiled weakly at his lawyer, just before he received his death sentence.

Julius Streicher, the world's most vicious Jew-baiter, stopped chewing gum for the first time in two days. When he heard his death sentence, he grimaced, nodded slightly, and left.

Doenitz Bangs Earphones
Walther Funk, economics minister and Reichsbank director, seemingly stood in a fog after he received a life term. A guard had to nudge him to get him out of the dock.

Adm. Karl Doenitz, commander in chief of the German navy, stood gravely as he learned he must serve 10 years in prison. He banged down his earphones and walked quickly from the court.

Adm. Erich Raeder, 70-year-old navy commander, appeared almost unmoved by his life sentence. A guard, however, had to tell him to remove his earphones. He grimaced toward the bench as he disappeared from the courtroom for the last time.

Baldur von Schirach, youngest of the defendants, stood with his hands crossed over his waist. The 39-year-old leader of the Hitler youth movement glared angrily at the bench until he received his 20-year sentence, then left the room without further display.

Fritz Sauckel, who conscripted forced labor from Nazi-occupied countries, gulped when he learned he must hang. His tiny, toothbrush moustache worked up and down in front of a frowning face. He had to be told to remove the headset.

Sentence Bormann in Absentia
Gen. Alfred Jodl, army chief of staff, continued to stand silently for a moment after receiving his death sentence. Small red spots appeared on his brightly flushed cheeks, but that was the only sign of emotion.

Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Nazi chancellor of Austria, gripped the bench with a grave face, and swayed forward when the judge said "death."

Konstantin Von Neurath, Hitler's first foreign minister, took his 15-

Hermann Goering... "Adviser and active agent of Hitler and one of the prime leaders of the Nazi movement. His guilt is unique in its enormity."

Joachim von Ribbentrop... "His diplomatic efforts were so closely connected with the war that he could not have remained unaware of the aggressive nature of Hitler's actions."

Ernst Kaltenbrunner... "Under his direction about six million Jews were murdered," and he ordered police not to interfere with attacks on "parachuting allied fliers."

Alfred Rosenberg... "Helped formulate the policies of German annexation and exploitation, forced labor, extermination of the Jews and set up the administration which carried them out."

Hans Franck... convicted by his own words: "The Poles must be slaves of the greater German world empire. . . . We must annihilate the Jews wherever we find them."

Martin Bormann... "Was active in ruthless treatment of Jews, prominent in the slave labor program and annihilation of conquered populations, responsible for lynching allied airmen."

Wilhelm Frick... "He had knowledge that insane, sick and aged people as 'useless eaters' were being systematically put to death but did nothing to stop it."

How Nuernberg Tribunal Ruled On Defendants

NUERNBERG, Oct. 1 (U. P.).—These are the guilty and their sentences:

The four counts of the indictment on which they were tried:

ONE: Conspiracy in the common plan for aggressive war.

TWO: Crimes against peace.

THREE: War crimes.

FOUR: Crimes against humanity.

The verdict:

Herman Goering—Guilty on all counts; death by hanging.

Joachim von Ribbentrop—Guilty on all counts; death by hanging.

Wilhelm V. Keitel—Guilty on all counts; death by hanging.

Alfred Rosenberg—Guilty on all counts; death by hanging.

Alfred Jodl—Guilty on all counts; death by hanging.

Konstantin von Neurath—Guilty on all counts; 15 years.

Fritz von Papen—Acquitted.

Hjalmar Schacht—Acquitted.

Hans Fritzsche—Acquitted.

Arthur Seyss-Inquart—Guilty counts two, three, four; death by hanging.

Karl Doenitz—Guilty counts two, three; 10 years.

Albert Speer—Guilty three, four; 20 years.

Martin Bormann (tried in absentia)—Guilty three, four; death by hanging.

Fritz Sauckel—Guilty three, four; death by hanging.

Baldur von Schirach—Guilty count four; 20 years.

Erich Raeder—Guilty one, two, three; life imprisonment.

Walther Funk—Guilty two, three, four; life imprisonment.

Julius Streicher—Guilty count four; death by hanging.

Wilhelm Frick—Guilty two, three, four; death by hanging.

LINTON MAN SUFFOCATES

LINTON, Ind., Oct. 1 (U. P.).—Herbert Alderson, 55, died today of suffocation in a fire which firemen blamed on a cigaret. Mr. Alderson died in Freeman Greene county hospital a short time after the fire caused minor damage in his three-room home.

year-sentence with a wooden face.

The 73-year-old diplomat merely nodded, and departed.

Martin Bormann, Hitler's deputy at the end of the war, was sentenced to hang, but the announcement was made to an empty dock: Bormann disappeared in the last confusing hours of the collapse of Berlin, and was being tried in absentia.

Each defendant was in the dock only about 30 seconds while his sentence was read.

Earlier, all had been seated while the tribunal announced the guilty verdicts and the three acquittals.

Julius Streicher... "His incitement to murder and extermination clearly constitutes persecution on political and racial grounds in connection with war crimes and constitutes crime against humanity."

Fritz Sauckel... had "overall responsibility for... slave labor of more than five million human beings, many of them under terrible conditions of cruelty and suffering."

Alfred Jodl... "Participation in such crimes as these has never been required of any soldier, and he cannot now shield himself behind the mythical requirement of soldierly obedience."

Arthur Seyss-Inquart... "He assumed responsibility for governing territory which had been occupied by aggressive war and administration of which was of vital importance in aggressive war."

Wilhelm Keitel... "Superior orders even to a soldier cannot be considered in mitigation where crimes so shocking and extensive have been committed consciously, ruthlessly and without military excuse."

Basis Upon Which Three Defendants Went Free

Hjalmar Schacht... freed on "reasonable doubt" that his actions constituted crimes within the specific terms of the international tribunal's charter.

Franz von Papen... denounced Nazi reign of terror and was dismissed as vice-chancellor, but guilty of "moral lapse" not within jurisdiction of court to punish.

Hans Fritzsche... freed as "merely a conduit" for dissemination of orders handed down from Joseph Goebbels, his propaganda boss.

BURCH 'IN THE CLEAR' AFTER G. O. P. RALLY

Times State Service

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 1.—A. V. Burch, state auditor who incurred the wrath of Republican party leaders when he got out of line on a hot issue recently, was temporarily "in the clear" again today after a party rally here.

Mr. Burch spoke at the meeting here last night without alluding to the direct primary method of nominating state candidates. It was his sponsorship of this issue, also a Democratic plank, which got Mr. Burch into trouble with party leadership.

Party observers had been watching last night's meeting with interest as the first purely organizational affair at which the independent Mr. Burch was to appear since his faux pas at Muncie Aug. 17.

The turnout at the meeting was just about average, however, and observers were unable to see it either as a move to fall in line behind Mr. Burch or as a reaction against him.

Fact that he remained non-committal on the controversial direct primary issue led to belief he was waiting for the muddled political waters to clear before making his next bid for independent party leadership. Republicans generally agree that Mr. Burch, although ostensibly running for re-election as auditor, actually is campaigning to lead the G. O. P. ticket in votes cast today to 15 years imprisonment for atrocities committed against British and Canadian prisoners of war.

Sees Push Button Weather Control

NEW YORK, Oct. 1 (U. P.).—Rain or sunshine at will by the flick of a button.

This was envisioned today as one of the possibilities of science by Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, president of Radio Corporation of America.

"We may yet have rain or sunshine by pressing radio buttons. "When that day comes we shall need a world weather bureau in which global forecasting and control will have to be vested," Mr. Sarnoff told guests at a Waldorf-

Astoria dinner last night. The dinner honoring him for his 40 years in radio.

Mr. Sarnoff said an important scientific figure recently told him that experiments already are under way in weather control.
