3 NATIONS RAP
'SOFT' VERDICT

USSR, France, Reich Critical; British Approve.

By SEXON E. HUMPHREYS

Times Telegraph Editor
Russian, French, and German public opinion today appeared to condemn the Nuernberg trial verdict as not severe enough.

However, all London newspapers, except the Communist organ, Daily Worker, approved the verdict.

The Moscow newspaper Pravda agreed with the dissenting opinion of the Soviet judge, Maj. Gen. I. T. Nitichchenko, that the three acquitted Nazis should have been punished and that Rudolf Hess should have been sentenced to hang.

Collaboration Hailed

Nevertheless Pravda said that the trial was an expression of post-war collaboration among the Big Four. Moscow's other leading paper, Izvestia, also expressed surprise and regret at the "leniency of the judges." It summarized the verdict by saying that "the tribunal did only the essentials in the interest of justice," but added that the Nuernberg sentence will "serve as a grim warning to all who quietly, under the mask of alleged love for peace, are . . . trying to develop a new war."

New Munich, Says French

French newspapers called the acquittals "scandalous" and "another Munich."

The French Communist newspaper ingeniously explained the acquittal of Schacht and Von Papen as the first manifestation of the policy of German recovery, desired and aided by "American trusts."

Even the conservatives in France opposed the verdict. The explanation for this is simple: "The French still have too much hatred for the Germans to understand any measure of clemency for Nazi leaders."

In the words of Paul Ghali, Paris correspondent of The Indianapolis Times, "most Frenchmen still hold to the view that there is no good German—except a dead German."

One of War Aims Won

In Berlin the members of the Soviet-sponsored Socialist Unity party staged a mass protest against the "astonishingly mild" verdicts.

The London Times said that the British people would consider the verdict as "a quiet acknowledgement that one of the purposes for which the allies went to war has been accomplished."

Half-way around the world, there was another reaction. The 27 accused Japanese war criminals smiled as they discussed the Nuernberg verdict, which seemed to give some of them hope of escaping the death penalty.

PEPPER HIJACKERS SOUGHT BY POLICE

Deputy sheriffs today sought three hoodlums who hijacked an automobile and a trailer containing 10 cases of scarce pepper from a Richmond, Ky., restaurant operator, en route home from Chicago.

The trio stopped E. O. Husbands, the restaurateur, one mile south of Troy ave. on Road 31, he reported. Leaping from another car, one of them drove Husbands' automobile and trailer toward Indianapolis. The other two escaped in the second vehicle.
