BEGINS DRAWING ANTI-KLAN BILL

Emmert Acts on G. O. P. Policy Group's Order.

Attorney General James A. Emmert today began the task of drafting a bill to outlaw the Ku Klux Klan and other hate organizations in Indiana. He was authorized to undertake preparation of such a law in a meeting yesterday of the Republican legislative policy committee. The committee, which is the legislative arm of the party, will follow up on the initial action by throwing its weight behind the bill when it is introduced before the 1947 general assembly.

The proposed law will be patterned after an existing New York statute which already has been upheld in a supreme court action and which forces secret hate societies into the open. Membership records as well as basic precepts of such organizations would be made a matter of public record. The proposed act would require secret organizations to file with the secretary of state their constitution and by-laws, the oath required of members, full end up-to-date rosters of membership and officers. Records of major actions taken at meetings, such as resolutions exhorting membership backing in political or governmental causes, would be required to be filed within 10 days of the action.

Officers would be held responsible for compliance with the new law. Labor unions, fraternal and benevolent orders, college fraternities and societies would be exempt from the provisions of the law.

The action followed closely the policy line announced earlier by the legislative group in which it said veterans of state and party leaders would be backed as a matter of party policy. In this case the governor put the party as well as himself in record in favor of "unrobbing" the Klan "once and for all" in a recent official statement.

GARDENING... By Marguerite Smith

Home-Grown Strawberries, Corn on Cob Frozen for a Tasty Thanksgiving Dinner

The Pilgrims never dreamed of anything like this. Many a local gardener family will sit down tomorrow to a Thanksgiving dinner featuring corn on the cob and strawberry shortcake straight from their garden patch—by way of their freezer box.

If you aim to be one of these families next year here are pointers from experienced gardeners. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Armstrong, 5920 N. Ewing st., believe in selection of varieties specially recommended for freezing. Many seed catalogs now carry such information.

The Armstrongs learned from experience that Blue Bantam peas make fine freezer material. A dwarf pea, Little Marvel, that they planted one season, came out of the freezer "with a drab color and little taste." Blue Bantam retained its deep green and was sweet when cooked.

AS FOR CORN. Mrs. Armstrong experimented with freezing it on the cob though she mentions that this isn't usually recommended. But they found their Golden Cross Bantam served on the cob Thanksgiving time was pretty special. Red raspberries from their own patch of Lathams are "delicious" when frozen.

Frank Dawson, River rd., believes selection of variety is not so important for good results as getting the produce frozen when it is at the precise stage for best eating. He points out that the handling of frozen food affects its quality on the table, too.

HE PREFERS the small peas of dwarf varieties because they "look better on the table" but says the larger late varieties are no less tasty. But peas of any sort not taken care of at the proper time will come out of the freezer no better than when you put them in. Mr. Dawson does much of the preparation and freezing of his fruits and vegetables as well as raising them.

For lima beans he raises the small fat Fordhook, finds it "very satisfactory." Sowles' evergreen (white) and Golden Bantam corn are equal in quality. All of his varieties of strawberries, raspberries (red and black), and cherries come out of his freezer garden fresh. He even freezes persimmons so he can have pudding the year around.

THEN FOR his small granddaughter, Donna Lee Dawson, almost 4, he freezes quantities of applesauce. Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Gordon, 1302 Lindley ave., stress getting produce into the freezer while it is fresh.

and tasty. In the case of lima beans however, they have tried both the thin baby Henderson, and the small fat Fordhook. While the Henderson is more prolific, the Fordhook makes a better frozen product.

FOR GOOD green beans they pick their crop while the beans are young, tender and stringless. Country Gentleman, Stowell's evergreen and Golden Cross Bantam corn have been equally successful in their freezer. But corn that's a day too old, or corn that has stood around after it was picked will make an inferior frozen product. Premier and Senator Dunlap strawberries make equally good shortcake after freezing. A pointer on preparation that Mrs. Gordon worked out for herself to get a juicy product with sugar well distributed through the package—she layers berries and sugar in a large bowl, lets them stand in the refrigerator until well juiced before packing.

The Gordons emphasize the necessity for a large freezer—no less than 12 cubic feet for two persons.

SLUM CLEARANCE PROGRAM UNDER WAY

The initial step of the city redevelopment commission to clear Indianapolis of its slum areas got underway yesterday.

Action followed approval Monday by the city plan commission of a resolution declaring the area bounded by 10th st., West st., 16th st. and Milburn ave. as "blighted."

After approval of the resolution, the redevelopment commission set a date for a public hearing to give citizens an opportunity to voice their opinions on the decision, according to state law. Tentative date for the hearing is Dec. 18.

The redevelopment commission hopes to begin buying the tract next spring. It will designate certain portions for recreational, educational and flood control purposes. The remainder will be put up for resale to private builders for housing.
