

New Flood Crests Battled On Mississippi

Residents Labor To Save Levees

The Mississippi river, on its worst rampage in recent years, set new flood marks today as high water battered levees protecting Illinois and Missouri river towns. Five levees had been smashed by the raging waters. Residents of scores of towns rallied to strengthen embankments protecting their homes.

Rains which hit the midwest over the weekend let up today and the weather bureau predicted fair weather for 24 hours. Authorities had forecast a major flood disaster unless the rains let up.

22 Drowned
At least 22 persons were drowned in Iowa, Missouri, Ohio and Oregon, and five others were killed by tornadoes in Pennsylvania and Ohio, bringing the death toll from natural disasters over the weekend to 27.

An estimated 10,000 persons were homeless. Thousands of acres of rich farmland were laid waste. Property damage was counted in the millions of dollars.

At least 15 persons were believed to have drowned in Ottumwa, Iowa, where 6000 were forced from their homes when the Des Moines river went on a rampage. Six bodies have been recovered.

All power facilities were knocked out at Ottumwa, partial service was restored today and residents lined up for anti-typhoid shots as authorities sought to prevent the outbreak of an epidemic.

Start Returning
Those who evacuated the city began returning to shattered homes today as the flood waters receded.

A layer of mud inches thick covered the streets. Water had reached a depth of six feet in the business district. Streets had holes 12 feet deep and eight feet in diameter.

The city was patrolled by navy and civilian police until midnight and all persons had to show passes.

Below Ottumwa, the muddy flood covered the business districts of Keosauqua, Bonaparte and Farmington, Iowa. Alexandria, Mo. (population 600), was evacuated.

There was six inches of water in the main street of Canton, Mo., and Hannibal, Mo. Mark Twain's home town.

Two levees gave way near Quincy, Ill., when the flood crest hit an all-time high of 23.6 feet before receding.

Twenty-five blocks of Louisiana Mo., were under three to four feet of water.

U. S. Museum Seeks Early Reptiles' Remains

NEW YORK, June 9 (U. P.)—The American Museum of Natural History announced today an expedition was en route to New Mexico to search for the 200 million-year-old fossil remains of early reptiles, including ancestors of the dinosaurs.

Dr. George Gaylord Simpson said preliminary surveys made last summer disclosed that rock beds near Lindrith, in the San Juan basin of northern New Mexico, contain fossils of 20 or 30 different types of early mammals, including the earliest type of horse which grew to a height of only 18 inches.

Quarrels Result In Death, Injury

Chest Bullet Wound Cause of Death

Two lovers' quarrels during the week-end resulted in death for one man and a severe ice pick wound for another.

Charles B. Barnes, 22, of 614 W. New York st., died of a bullet wound through his chest. He was found dead in bed at his rooming house by police.

Miss Pearl Johnson, 18, same address, was arrested on a vagrancy charge in connection with the shooting. Other roomers said they heard a shot after Barnes and Miss Johnson had been arguing for about an hour.

Dewey Kimbrough, 47, of 1015 W. Pearl st., was in City hospital today with a deep ice pick wound in his chest after what neighbors described as a quarrel with Molly Dulan, 42, of 897 W. 27th st. Miss Dulan was arrested on a charge of assault and battery with intent to murder.
