

Pay Hike Eases Teacher Shortage

New Term to Begin Next Tuesday in Most Of Indiana's Schools

First Class of 'War Babies' Expected To Cause Sharp Rise in Enrollment

Indiana's teacher problem has eased considerably in the past year, the state department of public instruction said today.

Ben Watt, state superintendent, said more teachers are available this year to meet the ever-increasing school enrollments. He described the shortage of qualified teachers during the war years as "critical."

The easing of the teacher problem, Mr. Watt said, was mostly due to the increased pay schedule passed by the 1947 general assembly. There was no lowering of qualification standards for Hoosier teachers, he added.

Most of Indiana's public schools are scheduled to open for the fall semester Sept. 2—the day after Labor day. Mr. Watt said preparations have been made for receiving approximately 156,000 high school students and some 475,000 grade school pupils in the state's public schools.

Deadlock Persists In Greek Crisis

ATHENS, Aug. 27 (U. P.)—The Greek cabinet crisis today appeared no nearer solution.

King Paul was reported strongly considering calling a council of the crown in an effort to break the deadlock.

Premier Designate Constantin Tsaldaris, apparently giving up his efforts to form the kind of coalition government acceptable to the United States, was attempting to make up a cabinet exclusively of Populist (Royalist) party members.

It was doubted that such a cabinet could win parliamentary approval.

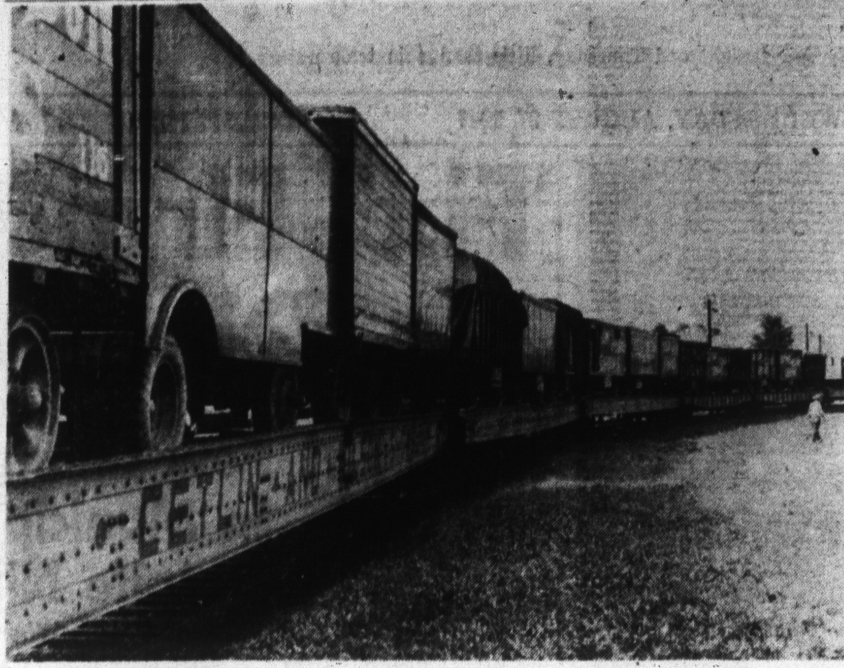

Enrollment Jump Seen

He attributed a sharp rise in the anticipated grade school enrollment to coming-of-school-age of Hoosier "war babies."

"Every war brings an increase in the number of births," Mr. Watt explained. "It's time for those born at the beginning of world war II to start to school."

In the nation at large, higher salaries and in some cases, lower qualifications for instructors will save most communities from the severe teacher shortages which educators expected this fall, a survey showed today.

A United Press survey indicated

Girls Escape, Lead Police Merry Chase

TECUMSEH, Okla., Aug. 7 (U. P.)—Seven barefoot teen-age girls clad only in nightgowns or panties, led policemen a merry chase through the wooded countryside for six hours yesterday after bolting from the Oklahoma state training school.

It took half a day for winded muscle-weary highway patrolmen and sheriff's officers to run them down.

By nightfall six had been recaptured and the apprehension of the seventh was believed near.

Mrs. M. E. Fuller, superintendent at the school, said a tall, blond 18-year-old girl, eligible for release soon, led the mass "break." It was the first time in 18 months that the honor system at the school had been violated, Mrs. Fuller said.

The seven girls had been placed in what Mrs. Fuller called the "mediation ward" after they staged a riot and threatened to kill a matron.

Chicago Hunts Madman-Slayer

Parts of Body Found In Slums Along River

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 (U. P.)—A killer, believed to be a madman, was hunted by police today after portions of a man's body were found along the Chicago river in the slum and industrial Goose island area.

The victim, whose body apparently was cut up with a power saw, was not identified. Police said he apparently was a laborer about 45 or 50 as the hands were rough and calloused.

The body segments were found yesterday. Clifford Mankiewicz, 21, a utility man for a soap works, found a newspaper-wrapped package lying on a wharf adjoining the factory. The wharf is almost directly under a bridge which carries North ave. a main-traveled thoroughfare, across a branch of the river.

The package contained two feet, severed at the ankles, a lower left arm and hand, and a section of left thigh. On the opposite side of the river police found a brown paper bag containing the calves of two legs and the lower right arm and hand.

Authorities dragged the river branch today for the torso, head and remainder of the body. The fingerprints were sent to the FBI at Washington.

Letters found in the dead woman's purse exonerated Kreig in her death. One was addressed to him, a second to her parents and a third to the police.

"I, Kay Carroll, am taking my own life," the note from the brown-haired victim to police read. "No one knows of my intentions or they would try to stop me."

Deputy Coroner Richard McDonald said he would return an official verdict of suicide.

Meanwhile, police are awaiting reply to a cable to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, London. Disposition of the body will depend on their answer.

Nothing is known by local authorities of Mrs. Carroll's husband.

The romance with Kreig began in Belfast, Ireland, when the two met at a Red Cross show during the war. He was a tool and die maker civilian employee of the Lockheed Overseas corporation at the Lockheed airbase.

Returning to this country in 1945, Kreig later went back to Ireland on business and renewed his friendship with Mrs. Carroll.

In January, they left England for Mexico where she obtained employment. Kreig was unable to find

2-Nation Romance Ends In Violent Death at Muncie

English Woman, Who Loved Father, Of 3 Children, Dies Under Train

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 27.—A triangular romance of two nations was shattered today with self-imposed death of an attractive 27-year-old English woman who could not marry her American sweetheart.

Mrs. Catherine Smith Carroll, London, England, was found yesterday along the New York Central tracks here. Her mangled body lay near the Country club crossing, a lover's lane.

Apparently despondent over his leaving, Kreig told police she demanded he return to Mexico or she would take her life. Shortly afterward she arrived here.

Mrs. Carroll registered at a local hotel under the name of Miss Crawford.

The romance ended abruptly with the death of Mrs. Carroll, Monday night the couple had dinner together and took a stroll.

Kreig told police that Mrs. Carroll said she "was going to walk on further." He returned to his home.
