

It's Up to Ike in '48, Say Political Chiefs In Kansas Arena

General's Name Expected to Be Placed Before GOP Convention at Philadelphia

By CHARLES T. LUCEY, Scripps-Howard Staff Writer
TOPEKA, Sept. 10.—A searing wind burns brown across the prairie. It dries up fields and ponds and bakes little flatland towns in scorching late-summer heat.

But there's another wind blowing, a political wind, and on it rides a Kansas name daily heard louder in the land—the name of Eisenhower. Kansas seems as surprised as anyone at the rising presidential talk of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Abilene boy who led the allied armies to European victory. And Kansas political leaders say:

"It's up to Ike. If he wants the Kansas delegation in the next Republican convention nobody could take it from him. He is liked and admired all over Kansas. We know he can't talk while still in uniform. But if he indicates after becoming president of Columbia university that he is at all receptive, he'll have our votes."

Wide Support Seen
Seasoned Kansas politicians predict that unless he says "no" irretrievably, the general's name will be presented to the Republican convention at Philadelphia and that not only will he have the 19-man Kansas delegation but support from other states.

They've heard out there how he drew a bigger hand at the American Legion convention than New York's Governor Thomas E. Dewey, and how polls show his political appeal. Those who were there know, too, that then the 35th division held its reunion recently in Kansas City. Gen. Eisenhower received a greater ovation than the Missouri Truman stood beside him, President Truman.

There's no Eisenhower boom out here yet. But every Kansas politician, many previously leaning to Governor Dewey or Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft, is conscious of swelling Eisenhower talk.

Landon Support Hinted
One leader genuine friendly to an Eisenhower movement is ex-Gov. Alf M. Landon, watchful student of public affairs. Mr. Landon is impressed with the spontaneous nature of the growth of the Eisenhower movement in recent weeks. He believes any worsening of U. S. relations with Russia would give impetus to Eisenhower talk.

2 Democrats Hint New Price Lids

Declare Nation 'Clamors' for Action

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (U. P.).—The steady rise in living costs may bring a strong drive for restoration of price controls when congress reconvenes.

Senators Harley W. Kilgore (D. W. Va.) and Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D. Wyo.) said the country was "clamoring" for some action against high prices.

They disagreed with a statement by Senator Robert A. Taft (R. O.) that there were no domestic issues requiring a special session of congress.

Senator Kilgore said he favored restoration of price controls unless there was a sudden break in the price spiral, and predicted many others would share his view. He expressed hope that President Truman would make such a recommendation in his January report to congress on the nation's economic health.

Senator Taft, chairman of the senate Republican policy committee, expressed his opposition to a special session to newsmen at Columbus, O., prior to starting his political tour of the west.

Senator O'Mahoney predicted that before Mr. Taft had traveled very far, he would find that "domestic issues are clamoring for attention."

He said the recent boost in prices on most steel products represented the most tragic decision ever taken by business leaders.

S. Belmont's 'Lost Folks' Campaign for Bus Service

Some Forced to Walk 11 Blocks to Catch Ride; Neighborhood Clamors for Sewer, Too

By The Times Civic Reporter

Residents in the "lost acres" of S. Belmont ave. who have had to fight for nearly every one of their public utilities are on the warpath again.

This time their campaign is for bus service. "How would you like to have to walk 11 blocks to catch a bus," asked Mrs. John Jenkins, 1732 S. Belmont ave. "That's what several of the residents on Thorpberry st. at the south part of our neighborhood must do."

"It's been the same with everything," declared Mrs. John Coffey, 1806 S. Belmont ave. "We even had to fight to get a water system. They gave us nothing but excuses until we finally got help from The Times."

Opened Campaign Months Ago
Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Coffey said the campaign for a closer bus connection began months ago.

They said a man they talked to at Indianapolis Railway, Inc., told them they must file a formal petition. They scoured the neighborhood and got 600 signatures.

Mrs. Jenkins said, "We filed the petition with the company last November but nothing has been done. They said when they get some new buses they would extend the line to us. Now they tell us they must take care of Mars Hill section first."

The nearest transportation is the W. Morris st. line which runs from west to east on Howard st. between Pershing st. and Reiser st.

Say Line Could Be Extended
Residents contend this line could be extended farther south on Pershing st. before it turns east on its loop back to W. Morris st.

A second suggestion they offer is to extend the stock yards bus south-west on Kentucky ave. to Belmont, north on Belmont to Minnesota st. and east on Minnesota st. to Kentucky ave., all over paved streets.

"We feel like we are in a lost world down here," said Mrs. Jenkins, "with no sewers, no sidewalks and no bus service. When we talked to a man at city hall about a sewer he told us it couldn't be built. When we asked why he said, 'Oh, that's just trash down there anyway.' It's pretty discouraging."
