Bride-to-Be Helps Build Home to Be Carried Into

Wedding Depends on Date Couple, Working Alone, Completes Structure
By DAVE BOYER, NEA Staff Writer

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 24—Just to be sure, Phil Whitbeck will have a threshold to carry her across on their wedding day next month, Evelyn Van Dam is helping him build it.

Their new home is really only a garage, but they're putting it up themselves. Their actual marriage date is contingent on when they get it finished. After that they hope to expand it into a real home.

A contractor, looked over their work recently and said it was "can tear the wood out and build 'among the best' he had ever seen, right on."

"A year ago, neither of us had. Until that happy day, the Whitbecks worked with cement or swung beams will live in the one spacious a hammer," Evelyn declared.

room of the garage. Drapes will "Wa-made one side of the garage partition the area into kitchen, liv- of wood," Phil explained from atop room and bedroom when divi- a stepladder. "Comes the time we soon seems desirable. A bathroom, start the real house next door, we utility room and oil heater occupy a convenient corner of the dream: Digging their own well and in- stalling a septic tank on their 60x house.

"Phil works all the time on the 150-foot lot is part of the project house, now that he's left the auto body plant." Evelyn continued, most alone. Plumbing and some hoisting more cement to her fiancé, other technical phrases of the job "I work only in the mornings, and spend afternoons saying 'Number, please' at the telephone company," closer to their wedding day.

Study Training of Fleet Drivers

The science of selecting and training commercial motor vehicle drivers will be studied by 60 fleet supervisors from all parts of the United States in a five-day short course at Purdue-Marott Agricultural Center Nov. 3-7.

Sponsored by local, state and national safety and fleet organizations, the course will be conducted by the Purdue University Public Safety Institute.

The course will feature instruction, forums, round-table discussions and speakers. Highlights will be laboratory and field exercises using driver-testing equipment and special driving skill-developing exercises.
