My Day— Henry Wallace Will Destroy Own Goals

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT
HYDE PARK, N. Y., Jan. 1—So Henry Wallace is really going to head a third party and run for President in 1948! What strange things the desire to be President makes men do!

He has probably forgotten, but I remember his coming to see me in the summer of 1948 in Washington. At that time, I felt very strongly that it would be good for the country if Henry Wallace, whom we all believed in and admired, would leave active politics and become the leader of the independents of the country.

Their vote had increased greatly in the years between 1928 and 1944, but they needed leadership and organization.

They were neither Republicans nor Democrats. They were primarily interested in getting the kind of leadership which would keep them free of economic depressions.

And they wanted to continue what had been a peaceful but steady revolutionary movement which had given us, over the years, a greater number of people in the middle-income brackets and fewer people in the millionaire group or in the substandard-income groups.

THIS had been accomplished in smaller countries like Norway, Sweden and Denmark, but it was a little more complicated in a country the size of ours and had to come more gradually. It could be done under our capitalist system with proper regulation and was being done, but the independent vote of the country was very largely responsible for the way our economy and social thinking was developing.

I felt that out of politics Henry Wallace could do a tremendously valuable piece of work to keep both of our political parties on their toes; to make both of them less prone to act for purely political reasons; to make both of them realize that to win any election this independent, liberal vote was essential and must be courted by each.

AT THAT time, Henry Wallace told me he believed it was his duty to stay and work in the Democratic party. I knew then, as I know now,

A white satin gown with a marquiset yoke accented with seed pearls was worn by the bride. The full gathered skirt of the gown extended into a cathedral train. Her two-tiered fingertip length veil of illusion fell from a tiara of orange blossoms, and she carried white camellias.

There was a reception in the church immediately following the ceremony. After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home at 5143 Carrollton Ave.

The bride and bridegroom were graduated from Butler University last June. She is a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Sorority and he is affiliated with Sigma Mu Fraternity.

that he was doing what he thought was right. But he never has been a good politician; he never has been able to gauge public opinion, and he never has picked his advisers wisely. All of these things might have been less important if he had been a disinterested, nonpolitical leader of liberal thought, but as a leader of a third party he will accomplish nothing. He will only make very things he wishes to believe. I am sorry that he has listened to people as inept politically as he is himself.
