NATIONAL 24-HOUR FORECAST SUMMARY: Your weatherman says Northeasterners can look forward to cold, windy and snowy weather to follow the wake of today's rain, sleet and glaze. Snow is expected through New England, New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Rainy conditions will continue in the Cape Cod section of Massachusetts. Forty to 50-mile biting cold northwest winds will lash the coastline from Eastport, Me. to Cape Hatteras and assist in breaking down power lines and trees already covered and weighted down with a heavy coat of ice.

By morning thermometers are expected to be in the 20's from Boston to Ohio and as far south as Georgia and Arkansas. This colder weather following on the heels of rain, sleet and glaze will cause dangerous driving conditions in the entire Northeast and continue to delay the transport of goods which have been far off schedule because of the recent heavy snow storm. Early morning temperatures will also be in the 20's in most of the Rockies. (Note freezing line along which Weather Bureau forecasters say minimum temperatures will be 32 degrees.)

Rainy weather is scheduled for sections of the Dakotas, California, Washington and Oregon while the northern Rockies will have rain or snow. Showers of snow are predicted for Colorado and Wyoming. (Symbols in the legend box at the bottom right of the Fotocast Denote types of storms. The Fotocast map through use of these symbols pictures storms which will occur over the nation in the coming 24 hours.)

Notice the solid black areas on the small inset map. This means skies will be cloudy in and near the storm areas. It will be clear from the Gulf States, Texas and New Mexico up the Mississippi Valley as far north as St. Paul, Minn. This is the light area on the inset map.

Minimum temperatures will be in the 40's along the Pacific coast while coldest weather in the U.S. will be reported in Minnesota and Wisconsin where early morning temperatures will be near 5 degrees. Minima will range from 10 to 20 degrees from Michigan and Illinois through the Dakotas.

Minimum temperature forecasts include Duluth and Milwaukee 5; Chicago 10; Detroit 15; Cleveland 20; Memphis 23; Philadelphia 25; New York and Boston 26; Washington and Atlanta 28.
